Pilot Listed As "Fair" Following Tuesday Crash

A Federalsburg man remained listed in fair condition Wednesday at Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, where he was taken after the helicopter he was piloting between McHenry and Friendsville crashed Tuesday morning.

Dirk Dekker, 45, operating a 1966 Bell helicopter, was spraying for gypsy moths on the Ernest K. Houser property, near the Bishoff Road off Rt. 42, when the helicopter lost altitude, struck a tree, and crashed to the ground.

According to a report filed with Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry, Dekker, who was flying for the Glenn A. Martin Company of Frederick, sustained injuries to both legs, as well as broken ribs in the 7:30 a.m. crash. Dekker was still strapped in the helicopter when rescue crews arrived. He was transported to the hospital by MSP Trooper 5 helicopter.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) was contacted, according to the report, and officials were on the scene by Tuesday afternoon. No determination has been made on the cause of the accident.

Others responding to the scene of the crash were Deep Creek volunteer firefighters, Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Civil Air Patrol.

Plans Being Finalized For 17th Annual Grantsville Days Event

Plans are being finalized for the 17th Annual Grantsville Days celebration, slated for June 24-26 and sponsored by the Grantsville Lions Club.

The Grantsville Lions and the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department will again co-sponsor the annual parade this year. This will be the 11th consecutive year that the firemen have organized and co-sponsored the parade.

According to Duane Stein, parade chairman, there will be nearly $2,000 in prizes and trophies this year. The fire apparatus will be judged and trophies will be awarded to 11 different classes of equipment. Bands, floats and other entries will also be judged and prizes awarded. Invitations will be sent to those who participated last year, but those who don't receive an invitation and would like to participate in the parade may contact Stein at 895-

ESCAPES DEATH - The pilot of this 1966 Bell helicopter miraculously escaped death in a Tuesday morning crash, while spraying for gypsy moths in the McHenry area. Dirk Dekker, Federalsburg, sustained broken ribs and injuries to both legs in the crash, and was flown by Maryland State

Weekend Mishaps Send Six To Area Hospitals

An Oakland teen remains hospitalized in Cumberland Memorial Hospital, listed in stable condition, after a one-vehicle mishap early Friday on the Friendsville-Addison Road, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry.

John W. Pilkerton, 19, reportedly lost control of the pickup truck he was operating. The vehicle reportedly traveled off the roadway and struck a ditch, trapping him inside. Friendsville firefighters freed Pilkerton from the wreckage.

Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad also responded to the scene, and transported Pilkerton to the hospital.

CYCLIST INJURED

A Florida man was injured Friday when the motorcycle he was operating was struck by a car attempting to make a turn on U.S. Rt. 219, near Johnny's Bait House.

Gary L. Wadding, 50, Titusville, Fla., was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital following the 8 p.m. mishap, according to state police reports, where he was treated and released.

Wadding was traveling north on Rt. 219, when Dolores Vecchio, 67, Swanton, operating a 1989 Dodge Ram, reportedly drove into his path. She was charged with failure to yield right of way by the investigating officer.

Sex Offender Sentenced To Three Years

An Oakland man previously convicted of third degree sexual offense has been sentenced to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections. Daniel W. Wolfe, 35, was handed the jail term by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer. Three other cases were also heard last week.

Wolfe was convicted of the sex offense in a March trial. The charge stemmed from an incident in 1980 when the defendant molested an 8-year-old boy. Wolfe was babysitting the boy at the time, according to the report. The defendant was 18 years of age when the incident took place.

In a separate case, a Rowlesburg, W.Va., man convicted of breaking and entering a storehouse was sentenced to three years in the department of corrections. Roger W. Moats, 36, was convicted of the charge in a February trial. He was also sentenced to three concurrent years in jail for the charge of theft.

Moats incurred the charges after he allegedly broke into Sisler Lumber Company in August and October of 1993 and stole over $4,000 in tools and supplies. He apparently cut the lock off a door to gain entry.

Moats was ordered to be on three years of supervised probation following his incarceration.

In a third case, two defendants pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of marijuana. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for both Billy Jo Corby, 20, and Thomas E. Parker, 19, Deer Park.

Special D-Day programs are being planned by the World War II Commemoration Committee to be presented on Monday, June 6, at Northern and Southern high schools and at Garrett Community College that evening.

According to John Grant, chairperson of the planning committee, the program will be presented in the Southern High School cafeteria at 10 a.m.; in the Northern High School cafeteria at 2:30 p.m.; and in the Garrett Community College auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The programs will commemorate the 50th anniversary of the invasion of Normandy, a major turning point of World War II.

The programs will open and close with a color ceremony by a guard comprised of high school students and members of the Oakland, Grantsville, and Accident posts of the American Legion. John Grant will narrate the program that will be interspersed with video footage of combat operations of the Army, Air Force, and Navy involved in the allied landing on the shores of France.

Veterans of that conflict will recall their experiences of that day. William Stemple will speak about the 8th Air Force activity involving

by Mary Sincell McEwen

In a quiet house on a quiet street in Mountain Lake Park lives a friendly man. A man who is active in the town council, a man who enjoys his grandchildren, a man who takes good care of his tidy home. He is cheerful and positive, and has thus far led a full life of hard work, responsibility, and success. He is Charles MacIntyre, decorated veteran of World War II, who has many stories to tell. And at this time in history, his account of a momentous day in June 1944 should be heard by all who are free.

The fate of freedom was unknown 50 years ago as the world was engaged in a vast conflict. Valiant soldiers fought to the death in a tremendous effort to preserve the sacred freedoms now taken for granted. All could have been lost. But the tidal wave of war against freedom reached its crest and broke on D-Day, June 6, 1944, as nearly 133,000 soldiers stormed the beach at Normandy, France. It was READY AND WAITING FOR D-DAY - Army Corporal Charles C. MacIntyre, a 22-year-old from Kitzmiller, is pictured above in a photograph taken two days before the famous World War II invasion of Normandy, France, on June 6, 1944. MacIntyre was aboard an LCI (Landing Craft, Infantry) for three days and two nights before receiving the order to proceed to the beach. His experiences were harrowing at the least, and his ability to escape death on numerous occasions was remarkable. His account of those days will be told on Maryland Public Television on June 6 at 7:30 p.m., as that station airs "Maryland Connections." See feature story.

Oakland Youth Dies Following Friday Mishap

A 15-year-old Oakland youth died Saturday night after the motorcycle he was operating on the Table Rock Road, near the Mettiki Coal Company, ran down a five-foot embankment and struck trees and rocks, according to a report filed at Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry.

Jeffrey E. Upole was pronounced dead at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, following the 9:13 p.m. accident.

Police reports indicate Upole was operating an unlicensed dirt bike on the road, with a passenger, when he failed to negotiate a turn, resulting in the accident.

The passenger, James E. Arnold, 17, also of Oakland, was listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday at Garrett Memorial.

Upole was transported to Garrett Memorial by Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter, and Edwards by Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. Also responding were Gorman and Bayard (W.Va) volunteer firefighters.

Upole was born Aug. 5, 1978, in Oakland, a son of R. Eugene Upole, Deer Park, and Audrey R. (Leiter) White, Inwood, W.Va. He was a ninth grade student at Southern High School.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two sisters, Patricia A. Upole and Jackie C. Upole, both of Oakland; his step-father, Delbert White, Inwood; step-mother, Theresa L. (Cline) Upole, Deer Park;

Commissioners Once Again Decide To Leave Tax Rate At $2.24/$100

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners announced this week that the county tax rate for fiscal year 1995 will be $2.24 per $100 of assessed taxable property. The announcement came less than a week before the commissioners finalized their budget for the next fiscal year, which will begin July 1.

The constant yield rate calculated for fiscal '95, a rate that would have generated exactly the same number of dollars in tax monies as the present fiscal year, was $2.19. Because the tax assessable base has increased about 2.4 percent since last year, the proposed $2.24 rate will generate approximately $358,000 in additional tax revenue.

Meanwhile, the various county agencies are requesting a total increase of some $4.6 million, so by going with the $2.24 tax rate the commissioners will be unable to fund most of those requests.

Capital projects are among the big ticket items that have greatly increased request amounts, such as an additional $120,000 requested by the Ruth Enlow Library to fund automation and the expansion of the Accident branch of the library, an extra $700,000 requested by the Board of Education to fund the addition of six classrooms at Northern High School and another $742,000 to help fund the $2.4 million bus transportation system.

Garrett Community College is requesting $180,000 in additional funds, $375,000 has been requested by the Garrett County Development Corporation for upgrading the Northern Garrett Industrial Park and enhancement of the county airport, and the county bureau of solid waste is asking for another $800,000 for new and additional landfill and collection site expenses.

The commissioners noted

Friendsville Man Arrested For Child Abuse, Battery

A Friendsville man accused of beating a child with a belt was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office this week on charges of child abuse and battery. Paul E. House, 33, was charged with the offenses on Tuesday.

The defendant allegedly beat a 7-year-old boy with a belt, causing "massive bruising" to his back, thighs, and buttocks. He is also accused of banging the child's head against a wall. The boy reportedly suffered a perforated eardrum as a result of the blow.

The incident took place on May 23, and the child's injuries were reported to authorities when school officials noticed his injuries on May 25, according to the police report.

A bond hearing is scheduled for today, according to a sheriff's office spokesperson.

GRANTSVILLE DAYS will be held for the 17th straight year June 24-26, and First United National Bank & Trust and American Trust Bank are among the local businesses that have made financial contributions to the Grantsville Lions Club to support the annual celebration. GCSO Probing Reported Thefts Thefts of tools, cash, and car parts have been reported to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office this week, according to the police log. Investigations are continuing in each case.

Timothy Whitacre of Garrett Transmission, Oakland, contacted police when he discovered the apparent theft of several tools from the business. Whitacre told officers that someone had entered the establishment sometime between 4 p.m. on May 28 and 10 a.m. on May 30.

Stolen from the business were an assortment of "Snap-On" brand tools worth over $1,000. The culprits may have had a key to enter the building as there were no signs of forced entry, according to the report.

In another case, a Swanton man reported the theft of several hundred dollars in cash. Randy W. Sweitzer told officers that he had been selling Memorial Day flowers in front of Schmidt's Store on May 27. He placed the money bag and receipts under the front seat of his vehicle that evening, and the car was parked at his residence on Spring Lick Road.

On the morning of May 28, Sweitzer discovered that some of the money in the bag was missing, and later figured the amount to be approximately $702.

In a third case, four aluminum five-lug "mag" wheels were reported stolen by Richard L. Ward. The wheels were stored in a shed on property located off Hutton Road, and were seen in the building on May 25.

When Ward returned to the shed on May 29, the wheels were gone. They are valued at a total of $400, according to the report.

BARRY BEAL HONORED - Barry Beal, a resident of Grantsville who has been instrumental for a number of years in the area of emergency medical services, was recently named a recipient of the Governor's Volunteer Award. Beal has been involved in emergency medical care in the northern area of Garrett County for the past 22 years and is among the founders of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. Beal is pictured above, seated, with his wife, Doris, and, standing from left, children Randy Beal, Treva Beal, and Terry Beal, son-in-law Bill Durst, and daughter Kim Durst, most of whom are also involved in emergency medical services. See story.

Beal Receives Volunteer Award From Governor

Barry Beal, Grantsville, recently received the Governor's Volunteer Award for "faithfully maintaining a deep commitment to positively touching the lives of fellow Marylanders."

For the past 22 years, Beal has been involved in emergency medical care and safety of the residents and visitors in northern Garrett County. Beal is one of the founding members of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad in Grantsville. Initially he served as an emergency medical technician and currently as a cardiac rescue technician. In addition, he volunteers his time as a first aid instructor and teaches CPR to citizens of the area and members of the squad.

Beal has served eight annual terms as captain of the rescue squad and has in this role provided direction to three ambulance stations which run over 800 calls a year in a 400-square-mile area. He actively runs on the ambulance and rescue truck. In 1993 he personally responded to 250+ emergency ambulance calls and over the years, 4,000 ambulance calls.

Beal serves on the Region I EMS Advisory Council and EMS Transportation Committee. In this role he helps set regional policies and advise the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services on state training requirements and other EMS issues.

He serves as a peer support person on the Maryland Critical Incident Stress Debriefing Team and provides counseling support to emergency workers who have witnessed traumatic experiences resulting from response to emergency calls.

Beal is an active member of the Oak Grove Mennonite Church, where he serves as youth leader and superintendent.

"Mr. Beal exhibits professional skills and attitudes in a volunteer capacity. His years of dedication and service to EMS have resulted in life saving care to thousands of individuals," stated a spokesman for the governor's office.

Doris, Barry's wife, is also an EMT since 1975. His son, Terry, has been a driver since 1990, daughter Kim is billing secretary, son-in-law Bill Durst is an EMT and CRT, and son Randy just completed his EMT class.

"Calling 911 brings immediate response because of dedicated volunteers. With Governor Schaefer, residents of Maryland and especially Garrett County appreciate this family's outstanding contribution to caring through these thousands of volunteer hours," the spokesman said.

Correction Noted In Two-Vehicle Accident Report

In last week's issue of The Republican, it was incorrectly reported that Wayne Fike, 30, Accident, failed to stop at an intersection on the Mattingly Hill Road and Maple Street, causing an accident with a 1993 Chevrolet Cavalier, driven by Lisa G. McComas, 23, South Point, Ohio.

The article should have stated McComas failed to stop at the intersection, causing the accident with the 1990 Mack truck, operated by Fike, and was cited following the 6:15 p.m. mishap. The Republican regrets the error and any inconvenience it may have caused.

GLAF Season To Open With Free Outdoor Concert

The first offering of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival's 1994 season will take place Sunday, June 12, as the United States Navy Band "Commodores" will present a concert of jazz and "big band" music. The concert is free, and will begin at 6 p.m. on the lawn of Garrett Community College. Concert-goers are encouraged to bring picnic suppers and lawn chairs to the event.

The Commodores group is a specialty unit of the United States Navy Band in Washington, D.C., and as the Navy's premier jazz ensemble, the group offers the finest in jazz, according to a spokesperson for the group.

Under the direction of Senior Chief Musician Gerard Ascione, the group features 18 of the Navy's top jazz and "big band" musicians. The Commodores combine jazz and popular music, offering styles ranging from the authentic sounds of the swing era and "bebop" to contemporary high-energy music.

Formed in 1969, the Commodores have toured Central and South America, Europe, and the United States.

The band was featured on the Department of the Interior's 1993 Memorial Day Radio Program "Flying Home: Commemoration of the Swing Music of World War II," airing on over 1,100 stations nationwide. Other recordings by the Commodores include the "Some Bop" album and "Full Swing Ahead."

The concert marks the opening of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival season, which this year will extend into the fall, according to organizers. A brochure outlining the entire season is now available at all brochure and leaflet displays.

For more information about GLAF offerings or to receive a brochure, persons may contact the GLAF office at 387-3082.

GCHD Reports Fifth Confirmed Rabies Case

The Garrett County Health Department has announced the fifth laboratory confirmed case of rabies for the year. The animal was a groundhog, which reportedly ran after an individual in an attack.

The incident occurred May 25 on Route 53 near the intersection of Old Morgantown Road. The person was able to outrun the rabid animal and avoid any human exposure to the disease.

Health department officials urged residents to make sure their pets' rabies vaccines are current. The department will be sponsoring a low-cost rabies vaccination clinic from June 7-10. See scheduled elsewhere in today's issue.

Low-Cost Rabies Clinics Scheduled By Health Dept.

The Garrett County Health Department announces the second series of low cost rabies clinics for the vaccination of cats and dogs, beginning Tuesday, June 7, and concluding Friday, June 10. Area residents are encouraged to check the following schedule for exact times and locations of the clinics in their area: Bittering fire hall, Tuesday, June 7, 5-6 p.m.; GCC Maintenance Bay, McHenry, Wednesday, June 8, 5-6 p.m.; Deer park fire hall, Thursday, June 9, 5-6 p.m.; Rt. 40 School, Longstretch, Friday, June 10, 5-6 p.m.

Cost of the vaccination is $5 per animal. Dogs should be brought to the clinics on a leash and under the control of a responsible individual. Cats should be brought to the clinics in a wire cage or tightly secured box with air holes.

According to a Health Department spokesman, the vaccination of dogs and cats is one of the most critical measures which can be taken by pet owners in protecting their families and themselves from possible exposure to the rabies virus. As the number of reported cases of wildlife rabies in Garrett County continues, the vaccination of pets becomes even more important, the spokesman said.

As of May 31, the Environmental Health Section of the Health Department has documented five positive cases of rabies in Garrett County. Thus far, the animals positive for the disease are three raccoons, one skunk, and one groundhog. Last year Garrett County experienced 12 laboratory confirmed positive rabies cases.

Because of the wide geographical distribution of rabies seen thus far, no dog or cat being kept in Garrett County can be considered safe from exposure to the disease. Pet owners are strongly encouraged to check the expiration date on their pet's rabies certificate to determine the need for revaccination at one of the upcoming clinics or at a local veterinarian's office.

While Maryland law requires dogs and cats over four months of age to have the required vaccination against rabies, animals at least three months of age can be brought to the clinics and adequately protected by vaccination.

an unprecedented offensive move - never before witnessed and never to be staged again - to push Hitler's forces out of France and weaken him to the point of defeat. Ultimately, the invasion was successful, but the victory came at great cost.

Mr. MacIntyre was there. A 22-year-old boy from Kitzmiller, he rode the rough waters of the English Channel with his buddies in an LCI, or Landing Craft - Infantry, for three days and two nights, waiting for orders to begin the invasion.

"The weather was bad, so the water was rough. A lot of my buddies were awfully seasick," he said. "I somehow managed to keep from getting sick. But we were on the LCI for so long with no food except C-rations, cold and tired - and we were all scared. Finally we heard there was to be about a 28-hour break in the weather, which meant we would be landing soon."

The Allied warships opened their cannonade fire at 5:50 a.m., blasting the entrenched Germans, and the first U.S. troops landed on code-named Omaha Beach at "H-Hour," or 6:30 a.m. MacIntyre was of the U.S. Army Third Armored Division, and had been assigned as "artillery support" for the Army Rangers. The Rangers' assignment was to scale the cliffs at Pointe Du Hoc, located about three miles west of Omaha Beach. When they reached the top, they were to destroy German howitzers, or cannons, which were said to be situated at the top of the cliff in "pill-boxes."

The then Corporal MacIntyre watched the morning of chaos from the LCI, and was not sent off the boat until sometime near noon. He had seen several soldiers leap off the carriers only to instantly sink in the English Channel.

"Those men were carrying about 60 pounds of equipment on them," the vet explained. "If the boat stopped in deep water, the men couldn't reach the bottom and sank. They never came back up."

"I watched a few of them do that and when it came time for us to head out, I started to unload. I took off my pistol belt and my gas mask. An officer saw me and asked what the hell I was doing - 'What if you need those things once you get to the beach?' he asked me. I just told him I'd get others off of men who didn't need them anymore. And anyway, a gas mask? At that point, what difference would it make if the Germans did gas us? I did put my pistol belt back on, though. Thankfully, our LCI hit sand - no one went under."

MacIntyre hit the beach and began to run.

"It was chaos - total chaos. We had no radio contact, officers were getting hit. One officer was ordering us to go, and as he was yelling to us, his head was sheared off - just like that. He took four more steps before he fell. A gruesome thing. I'll never forget it."

2nd Lieutenant Charles C. MacIntyre

"I remember looking down at a soldier who was just sitting in the sand, sifting it through his fingers. He was just passing the time. Bullets were flying everywhere and we were yelling at him to run. But he just sat there. He just couldn't take it, I guess."

MacIntyre reached the cliff base and began the perilous climb to the top. Being assigned as "artillery support" for the Rangers quickly became irrelevant - it was truly every man for himself at that point.

The ropes had been fired by rocket guns up the cliff face, with grapnels digging into the earth. The climbers prayed that their grapnels would hold fast as they ascended. Some slipped out, letting the climber fall to his death. Other soldiers were shot down by Germans who rained gunfire down upon them from the cliff top, or cut the ropes, or threw grenades. MacIntyre made it to the top, having seen many others die trying.

Once on level ground, the young soldier was no where near safety. Having been suited with the wrong sort of boots - leather-soled instead of rubber - he had a difficult time standing.

"I'd take a step, slip, and fall - take another step, slip, and fall," MacIntyre said, chuckling. "Every time I hit the ground, bullets would whiz all around me. I think those boots saved my life."

When they reached the pillboxes that were to be housing the large guns, the soldiers discovered that the guns were not there at all.

"They were empty! No guns. We couldn't believe it." The men did find the weapons some time later, situated farther back in trees. They were then destroyed.

MacIntyre was injured during the battle.

"I reached up to shield my face one time, and got hit with a piece of shrapnel in my wrist. Several years after the war, my doctor removed four or five pieces of metal from my arm there."

MacIntyre received one of his five Purple Hearts for the D-Day injury. Out of the 238 soldiers who ascended toward Pointe Du Hoc with him, only about 100 survived. The enormity of loss is too difficult to fathom - what effect does it have on a 22-year-old?

"I got old real fast," the veteran said.

His career as a WWII soldier was hardly over at D-Day. The weeks that followed were harrowing as the Allied Forces continued to shove Hitler's army out of France. Thousands more lives were snuffed out in the battles, and MacIntyre was in the thick of it.

In the next year, the Garrett Countian participated in the battles of Northern France, the Bulge, Belgium, and Germany. The five Battle Stars on his well-preserved jacket reflect his hard-won accomplishments. He faced death constantly, and in addition to the wrist injury at Normandy, was wounded at different times in the forehead, shoulder, and calf. He was also nearly killed when the jeep he was riding in was destroyed by a mine. Two buddies with him died in the explosion.

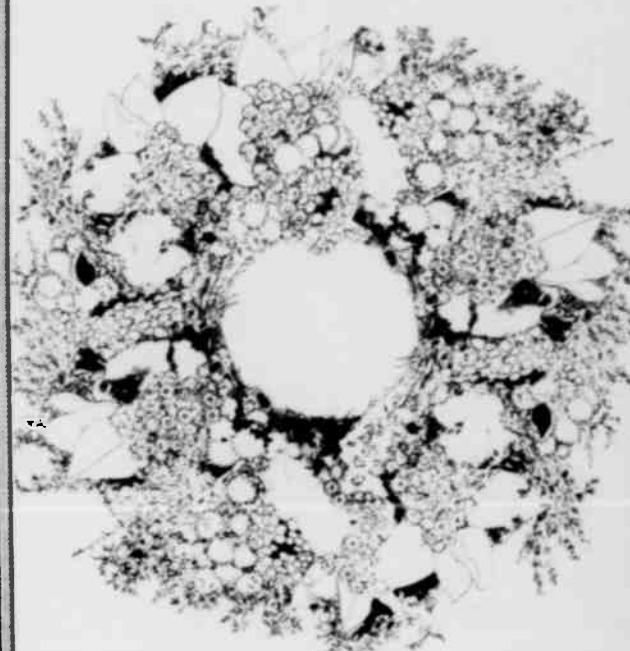

MacIntyre was rarely far away from the Germans, sometimes crouching along roads where they marched. At least twice he was nearly captured by the enemy. At one point, he and several soldiers - including his General Maurice Rose - were suddenly surrounded by German soldiers. As the general attempted to give them his pistol, he was shot dead. The noise roused the

A LITTLE R&R IN PARIS - MacIntyre is shown above left with Sgt. Hadgohid as the two take advantage of passes to Paris. The soldiers had just returned from the front lines after no fewer than 110 days there. They had no opportunity to bathe, no hot food, and were in constant danger. "I remember that they took our uniforms from us after that and I think they buried them," he said, smiling. "We got all new clothing."

MPT RECORDS MR. MACINTYRE'S ACCOUNT - A filming crew from Maryland Public Television recorded Charles MacIntyre's account of D-Day, and will air the piece on the event's 50th anniversary, Monday, June 6, at 7:30 p.m. The veteran is pictured below with his well-decorated jacket, a Nazi flag he yanked down from a building in France (while a buddy held fast to his belt), and his helmet, which has a significant dent in the back where a bullet hit. "I was flat on the ground from that one," he laughed. "I wasn't hurt, though."

Better than french fries for a crowd is a platter full of roasted potato wedges. Cut big nissets into eights lengthwise. Toss with olive oil and salt and roast on baking sheets in a 450-degree oven. Lay 'em flat on one side for 15 minutes, then flip to roast for 12 minutes more.

Special "sauce" for an ice cream sundae or a fresh fruit melange is a mango that's peeled, pitted and then pureed. Simply super!

Chocolate liquor, which comes from the core of cocoa beans, is the base of all chocolate and cocoa products. After cocoa butter is removed from the liquor, what remains is unsweetened cocoa.

Secrets of the chefs Julia Child's trick to thicken soup is a little rice cooked with the soup ingredients, then it's all pureed finely in the blender to a rich velvet. Another kind of magic is to fold in instant mashed potato flakes.

How to Watch a Soccer Game

Part I

Let's face facts! Most Americans don't really understand the game of soccer. Unlike the rest of the world, we've grown up with several other major sports to choose from when it comes to participation or spectating. But now, the World Cup games have come to the U.S. and it may be the only time in our lives that the competition will be held here since so many countries compete to host the event.

Well, if this might be the only chance to host the significant event, you wouldn't want to be the only guy or gal on your block to be left in the dark and not understanding what's going on. That's the purpose of these articles. We're here to enable you to talk like you know what is going on and, just maybe, you'll understand the game enough to actually enjoy what most people consider "The World's Greatest Sport!"

Let's start with the trivia:

*Soccer is played by more people worldwide than any other competitive physical sport.

*More than 16 million people are registered soccer players in the U.S.

*There are more registered youth soccer players in the U.S. than any other youth sport.

*The largest TV audience in history watched the final game of the 1990 World Cup game...more than 2 billion people.

*The World Cup has been played every four years since 1930 except for one break during World War II.

*141 teams play more than 500 games to qualify for the World Cup games.

*22 teams are chosen based on qualifying. Two other teams are placed automatically; one is from the host country, the other is the previous World Cup winner for a total field of 24 teams.

*The teams are divided into 6 groups for the first round which is played "round robin" style where teams receive 2 game points for a win, 1 point for a tie and 0 for a loss.

*The top two teams from each group and four third-place teams with the best record qualify for the Round of 16. This round is played as a bracket with single eliminations similar to basketball tournament eliminations. Next come quarter finals, semi-finals, and then the final round. There are no tie games after the Round of 16 starts.

*In the U.S. games are played in 9 cities with the finals set for the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California.

*Games begin on June 17th and end on July 17th.

*Qualifying teams this year include: Argentina, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Cameroon, Columbia, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Mexico, Morocco, Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Romania, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States.

*Only six nations have ever won the World Cup. Brazil, Germany, and Italy have won it three times. Argentina and Uruguay have won it twice. England has won it once (the first time).

*Germany is the reigning champion from the 1990 games held in Italy.

*Brazil is the only team to qualify for every World Cup competition.

*The U.S. Post Office is issuing 800 million stamps to commemorate the event; that's 300 million more than the Elvis stamp.

O.K., so now you know enough to hold your own in a discussion at your favorite corner store. In the next segment, we'll see just how easy this game is to understand. (There are only 17 rules - Laws of the Game - and only 10 of them actually pertain to how the game is played! Surely anybody can remember 10 rules.)

Oakland Oaks Drop Three In Pen-Mar Action

The Oakland Oaks of the Pen-Mar Baseball League opened their season this past week by dropping their first three games, with a 12-2 pounding by defending league champion Cumberland First Federal on Saturday at Garrett Community College and a doubleheader loss to visiting Keyser, 11-1 and 8-3, Monday.

Twenty Oakland batters were struck out by three Cumberland pitchers in Saturday's game, as Troy Whiteman, Greg Whiteman, and Rick Swanger combined for a two-hitter.

Kevin Green accounted for both Oakland runs with an RBI double in the sixth inning.

Troy Whiteman homered and doubled to send home six runs for Cumberland, while John White singled twice and doubled and Merle Gross added a pair of singles.

The Oakland offense did no better in the twinbill with Keyser Monday, as the Oaks recorded a total of only three hits, one in the first game and two in the second.

Mike DuVal fired a one-hitter with nine strike-outs in the first game. Randall Ours had a two-run homer and Todd Snyder doubled and singled to pace Keyser's offense.

Jason Biafore had the lone hit for Oakland.

Steve Bell, Chris Wilson, and Rodney Kesner combined on the mound for the two-hitter in the second game, while Todd Snyder went three-for-three at the plate, and Mark Miller and Ours each finished with two hits. The win gave Keyser a 3-0 mark.

Governor Invites All To Participate In Fishing Derby

Governor William Donald Schaefer invites families to register their children to participate in the 1994 Governor's Youth Fishing Derby -- Get Hooked on Fishing Not on Drugs -- to be held at 24 sites across the state beginning June 4.

In Garrett County, the derby will be held this Saturday, June 4, at Herrington Manor State Park.

The derby, a statewide, non-competitive, one-day event, is not only a family outing, but an opportunity for environmental education for young and old, according to the governor. Many state agencies, as well as county governments, corporations, and private organizations, have joined together to sponsor the event.

"Since this program started in 1990, more than 17,000 children have participated," said Governor Schaefer. "Young people need positive activities to enjoy. Fishing is a great way to have fun and learn about our natural resources."

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary Torrey C. Brown, M.D., said, "I am proud to be involved with this program that provides positive alternatives for youths. With the number of interested and concerned organizations also involved, I expect to see the Derby program continue into the 21st century."

Each of the 24 sites has arranged educational activities related to aquatic resource education and the wise use of natural resources. Topics include recycling, boating, and water safety. These are all part of the original goals of the program, which were to offer and opportunity to learn about fishing, the environment and alternatives to substance abuse, instill an environment/conservation ethic, promote state, county, and city parks and promote a fun, inexpensive family day.

Major sponsors for this year's event include WBFF-TV Fox 45, Baysox baseball, Crown Central Petroleum, Baltimore Gas and Electric, Nations Bank, and the Chesapeake Bay Trust.

DNR, the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission, and the Maryland Recreation and Park Association and county agencies provide direction, advertising, transportation, educational activities and manpower to support activities at each of the 24 sites.

An awards ceremony has been scheduled for Sunday, July 17, at the new Prince George's Stadium in Bowie. A random drawing at each of the Derby sites will choose a representative participant to take part in the ceremony.

June 4 and 11 are free fishing days across the state. Adults may fish without a license while observing all other fishing regulations.

Local persons desiring more information about the derby at Herrington Manor may call 334-9180.

Gibson Receives Award From GCC Board Of Trustees

The award for outstanding contributions to Garrett Community College, presented each year by the board of trustees, was given for the first time to a college employee. Dennis Gibson, head coach of the men's and women's basketball teams at GCC, received the award during commencement ceremonies on May 21.

As Board Chairman Charles "Bus" Bender presented the award, he commended Gibson for his outstanding leadership in winning the Division II Maryland JUCO and Region XX tournaments, and in taking the men's team to the national tournament in Danville, Ill., where it finished sixth in the United States.

"You brought great credit to the college and to the entire community," Bender said.

Ann Wellham, coordinator of athletics at GCC, nominated Gibson for the award. "His leadership has enabled this team to compete at the national level in Division II, where 121 schools compete for this honor," she said. "His hard work and dedication have made him and his team real winners. This achievement makes him worthy of the honor of the outstanding contributions to GCC award."

Garrett Teams Fare Well In Bi-State Action

Grantsville won a pair of games and Central Garrett won one of two this past week in Bi-State Pony Baseball League action, as Grantsville rolled over visiting Midland, 9-1, on Friday and topped George's Creek on Monday, 7-1, also in Grantsville, as Aaron Blocher recorded a no-hitter. Central Garrett crushed visiting Westernport on Friday, 21-1, behind a one-hitter by Andy Brennenman and then lost a squeaker Tuesday afternoon at 13-12, Mt. Savage.

Matt Fritz fired a three-hitter and struck out 10 for Grantsville against Midland, while Nick Hetz snacked a third-inning grand slam to pace the offense. Fritz also recorded a pair of singles and Joe Layman tripled.

Blocher, a standout for Northern High School, struck out 11 enroute to his no-hitter on Monday against George's Creek.

Cody Brennenman snacked a two-run homer in the fourth and also singled, while Fritz contributed a single and a double for two RBI.

It was the third win in as many games for Grantsville.

Zack Leverenz backed up Andy Brennenman's one-hitter for Central Garrett over Westernport by hitting a triple, double, and a single for three RBI. Jason King also had three hits for two runs and Scott Sisler added two hits, including a double, to send home three runs.

It was a single by Mt. Savage's Mark Moulden late in the game that resulted in Central Garrett's first loss of the season on Tuesday.

Zack Leverenz tripled and doubled, Andy Brennenman tripled, and Sisler and King each doubled for the Central offense.

Corey Twigg, who won on the mound for Mt. Savage, aided his own cause with two singles. Jerod Martin also singled twice and Chad Huffman doubled.

Grantsville will host Westernport this Friday when Central Garrett will entertain Midland.

Deep Creek Yacht Racing Association Begins Season

by Harry Filemyr

The first weekend of sailboat racing on Deep Creek was held under the beautiful sunny skies, but disappointingly light winds. Races were delayed up to an hour waiting for breezes steady enough for fair competition. Don Hott, weekend race commander, was anxious to use the new signal shapes, but for lack of wind was often flying the postponement flag.

ated. The Spinnenweber brothers again brought out their high performance 505 to challenge the heavier Flying Scots. But light air prevented their using the boat's full potential. John Meredith held off 24 other competitors to take the cup.

Keith MacMillan won the Becker Cup in the Laser class with a first and three seconds in the four-race regatta. After the second race, with stiff upper lip, he reported that he was leading all the way until a group of Flying Scots surrounded him, blanketed his air, and pinned him dead in the water while he watched Gordon Cleffton sail into the lead.

In Flying Scot B Fleet the regatta was won by Mo Willey and Vicki Jeffrey -- a good opener for a couple who will be wed on July 1. When asked his tactics, Mo said, "We just played the hand that we were dealt."

In Flying Scot A Fleet, the regatta was a Carpenter-Meredith "shoot-out." In the first race, Don Hott set up a traditional "Becker finish" at the Turkey Neck club dock. This, with shifting winds, led to an unusual downwind finish for the leaders. Meredith and Carpenter, sailing neck and neck with spinnakers flying, were both caught in a swirling gust which nearly capsized them both.

In the second race, Dick Gregory would have won if he had known that the course had been shortened and the finish line moved. But he didn't and he didn't!

The finish of the third race was described by Jack Carpenter as the most excited spinnaker duel that he had ever experienced, or heard of. With the Carpenter and Meredith boats as little as two feet apart, he said, they jibed at least a dozen times. As they approached the finish line, Sally said, "Let's tell them, 'no more jibes!'" After four races, Meredith won the regatta by just one point.

Results
Steiding Cup Perpetual Trophy -- Cup won by John Meredith and Tony Kaminski.

Becker Cup Regatta: Laser -- Keith MacMillan, first, Steven Wilson, second, Gordon Cleffton, third.

Flying Scot A Fleet -- John Meredith and Tony Kaminski, first, Jack and Sally Carpenter, second, Dick Gregory and Allison Felix, third, Bruce and Lauren Spinnenweber, fourth, Doug and Audrey MacMillan, fifth.

Flying Scot B Fleet -- Mo Willey and Vicki Jeffrey, first.

Veteran Recalls

attention of nearby U.S. troops and the Germans were disarmed.

Some time later, MacIntyre made the mistake of approaching a group of men he thought to be Americans but quickly discovered to be otherwise. Germans were marching along several American prisoners who had their hands on their heads, and the enemy officers ordered MacIntyre to fall in line. He was marched away from his camp as evening fell.

"It was getting dark, and I was the last one in line. I kept falling back and falling back . . . finally I dropped and rolled down the bank. I knew if they saw me they would shoot me. But I got away and ran back to my camp full speed."

When he approached the guard at the camp, he was stopped in his tracks. The guard didn't know him and MacIntyre knew he may shoot him if he couldn't convince him he belonged there.

"So he shouts out to me - 'what's Sinatra's first name?' And I was so scared he was going to shoot I just couldn't think. 'I know it - I know it - wait a minute!' I was racking my brain and shaking. Finally I remembered."

"FRANK - it's FRANK!" I yelled. And he let me in."

As the war entered the last several months, MacIntyre was one who participated in the liberation of the concentration camps at Buchenwald, Dachau, and Sanderhausen. He bent the rules by taking photographs of some of the horror scenes, and smuggling the film home. The massive waste of human life was nearly incomprehensible to the soldiers, and the pictures taken by MacIntyre tell the story in a most gruesome fashion. Bodies upon bodies upon bodies - burned and rotting. To those who hold the belief that the holocaust "never happened," MacIntyre snorts and says grimly, "Well, that's a crock. I saw it."

The veteran, promoted to lieutenant, came home to Kitzmiller in 1945 - in the midst of a bus strike and a telephone strike - to greet his beloved wife and the nearly 5-year-old daughter he had not seen since shortly after her birth. He became a successful businessman, the father of another child (a son) and later the grandfather of five children. His story of D-Day will be televised on the 50th anniversary of that event - Monday, June 6 - in a Maryland Public Television program titled "Maryland Connections." MacIntyre will be featured in the 7:30 p.m. program along with two other Marylanders who have stories to tell.

Mr. MacIntyre's stories should be heard so that all who listen may have a small glimpse of the price so dearly paid for the freedoms now enjoyed. The veteran saw more death in the span of a few years than most people see in a lifetime, yet he was able to move beyond those horrors to establish his home and care for his family.

On this 50th anniversary of the Longest Day, we should all listen.

ALL WAS WELL WHEN THIS PHOTO WAS TAKEN, but on the following day, this jeep struck a mine and was blown up. MacIntyre, seated in the passenger side, was thrown out and remembers seeing a tire flying through the air. He hit the ground, bleeding from the ears and nose. His two buddies, Billie Glover, center, and "Red," were killed. "That was my worst injury," MacIntyre said. "But we were in the middle of battle and I couldn't even be transported to the hospital." The local veteran received one of his five purple hearts for the injuries he sustained in the accident.

bombers, gliders, and paratroopers. Fred Carroll will speak of the U.S. Navy's role in protecting the convoys, transporting supplies, and bombarding the German defenses with naval gunfire to protect the landing forces. Three members of the U.S. Army, Walter Hanft, Carl Haefling, and Charles MacIntyre will relate experiences of the actual invasion forces. Polly Hanst will present her recollections of what was happening on the home front that day, and Col. Doug Johnson, professor at the U.S. Army War College, Carlisle, Pa., will speak on the logistics and organization of the Normandy Invasion.

The public is invited to the evening program at GCC where World War II exhibits will also be on display. Following the program, refreshments will be served in the Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery.

that they voted unanimously to not increase the county's "piggy back" tax rate of 50 percent that is added to the state taxes paid by individual taxpayers, and pointed out that about one-third of the state's counties have done so in the past few years. The state allows counties to increase the piggy back rate by as much as 10 percent, as was done by Allegany County last year.

A public hearing, which is required by law when county commissioners plan to deviate from the constant yield rate, was held Tuesday, but no one attended that meeting.

VISITING THE TROOPS BEFORE D-DAY - The young soldier from Kitzmiller, Charles MacIntyre, had the opportunity to photograph both Eisenhower (above left of center) and Truman (below center) as they visited with the troops before the great invasion. MacIntyre was in fact stunned as Truman turned to him in the crowd to shake his hand. "He was talking to several soldiers, but I didn't expect him to come to me. He asked me my name and where I was from. I was so thrilled I could barely say 'Cumberland, Maryland.' And then I told him that I was actually from farther west in Maryland, in Garrett County, and he said, 'Oh, a ridge-runner.' I'll never forget that," he laughed.

by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force that took place several months ago. According to the report, an informant was sent to the home of Parker where he was able to purchase a baggie of marijuana from the defendants. Both Parker and Corby were present at the time of the exchange, according to the report.

Sentencing dates for the two defendants were not indicated on the court document.

Celebrity Waiter Event Scheduled At Silver Tree

An annual American Heart Association event called Celebrity Celebration for Heart will be held June 17 at the Silver Tree Inn, Deep Creek Lake, where some of Garrett County's best known citizens will serve as waiters for the evening.

The volunteer waiters will be John and Pam Brasky, Brenda Butcher, David Callis, David Martin, Bill Grant, Jim Harvey, Steve Hamilton, Ned Holloway, Lisa Thayer, Jean King, Dale Rodeheaver, Bonnie Sines, Doug McClive, and Robert Hesson. They will be serving their guests a variety of dinner items including water, dinnerware, napkins, songs, dances, etc., each for the price of a "tip."

The menu includes shrimp and crab Norfolk, chicken Neptune and filet mignon with sauce bernaise.

"Celebrity Celebration for Heart will be a great time for the waiters and their guests," said Elaine McDonald, chairperson for the event. "It could be our best opportunity to watch Garrett County's celebrities act as crazy as they can to raise money for a good cause!"

According to McDonald, the waiters will earn tips based on the quality -- or lack -- of service. "All the waiters hope to convince their guests that they're the best and most entertaining waiters. Accordingly, they'll perform antics such as singing, dancing, magic tricks, and more. Anything goes on this fun-filled evening!" she said.

Celebrity Celebration for Heart is a fund-raising event benefitting the research, public education, and community service programs of the American Heart Association in the fight against heart and blood vessel diseases.

McDonald concluded, "We hope that you will join us for a fine dinner and in the fight against heart disease. Your support can make a difference."

Area Speedway Review

Somerset County Speedway

The chilly weather did not stop race fans from watching 65 cars battle for the checkered at the Somerset County Speedway in Meyersdale, Pa., last Friday night.

In the Strictly Stock Class, four heats, a consy and three features were run. In the first heat, Brian Taylor took a commanding lead before a blown engine turned the win over to Jamie Kemp from Confluence, Pa. The second heat was won by Tom Humberson in car #02. The third heat went to Dale A. Miller, from Berlin, Pa., while Bobby Smith, from Meyersdale, ran away with heat four. Vince Smith, from Confluence, took the checkered in the Consolation event.

The "C" Main saw a first time winner this week when John Tressler, from Confluence, took the lead in the second lap and held the lead for the win. He was followed by Dave Greer, Charlie Phillippi, Dennis Sell, Brad Reckner, Dave Geyer and Ed Livengood.

The "B" Main changed leads several times between Dwane Shultz, Doug Kimmel, and Rodney Youmans before Youmans took the checkered flag. Powering his way to second place was Nelson Bailey from Berlin. They were followed by Doug Kimmel, Duane Shultz, Clair Duppsstadt, Tim Rounds, Abin Hosselrode, Dale Wilt, Roger

Roger Shaulis, from Somerset, Pa., won the "A" Main while point leader Tom Humberson charged from the back of the pack to take second. They were followed by Jon Deal, Greg Cornell, Kevin Bender, Duane Horning, Doug Barclay, Bob Davis, Denny Rounds, Jamie Kemp, Vince Smith, Brad Dickey and Kevin Sanner.

The new class of vehicles continues to grow at the speedway as 11 Pure Stocks took to the track. Two time winner J.R. Isner, from Cumberland, led the way to the checkered in the heat. During the feature event for the Pure Stocks, Isner had to start at the back of the pack since he is top point man. During the 20-lapper, he made his way to the front and was looking for his third win but Eric Corella, from Hollsopple, Pa., wanted his turn in victory lane. Corella was followed by Isner, Dennis Sponaugle, Dana Cotten, Gene Moats, D.J. Griffith and Doug Shaffer.

Racing will continue in Meyersdale on Friday, June 3rd at 7:30 p.m.

Cumberland Raceway

Bob Salathe, of Bedford, Pa., driving the #RG3, won the third leg of the Bedford-Winchester-Cumberland RG Food Shops Late Model Challenge. Salathe received a $200 bonus from "The Gang" and Lambert's Auto Service and a $100 bonus from the Ponderosa Steak House. The win was worth a total of $2300.

The Hamilton-Dodge Semi-Late Feature was won by Jim Deneen, of Hyndman, Pa., his second in a row, and the Pure Stock Feature was won by Johnny Harr, of Claysburg, Pa., his first win at Cumberland.

There were 27 Late Models, 22 Semi-lates and 38 Pure Stocks in the pits.

In the Late Model Feature, Bob Salathe started second and took the lead on lap one. Gary Stuhler moved past J.R. Keifer for second. Even with two caution flags, Stuhler could not catch Salathe who picked up his first win this year at Cumberland. Gary Stuhler finished second, followed by J.R. Keifer, Bob Herschman, Tom Myers, Charles Shaffer, Scott Brode, C.S. Fitzgerald, Carl Bilet and Todd Price. Heat winners were C.S. Fitzgerald, Gary Stuhler, and Larry Wright. The Consy winner was Mike Altobelli.

The overall top three finishers at the three tracks were first, Gary Stuhler, second Bob Salathe and third Tom Myers. Stuhler received $1000 bonus and is the 1994 RG Food Shops Tri-State Model Challenge Champion. Salathe received a $500 bonus and Myers received $300.

In the Hamilton Dodge Semi-Late Feature, Brian Weyandt led Lynn Ogden for seven laps when Weyandt dropped out of the race. Ogden held off Jim Deneen, who started 11th, until there were four laps to go. Deneen got by Ogden for the lead and the win. Ogden finished second, followed by Jack Pencill, Donnie Witt, Shane Beegle, Wade Peer, Brian Lowery, Dave Troutman, Greg Fuller and Gary Kimmel. Heat winners were Lynn Ogden and Jim Deneen.

In the Pure Stock Feature, Dennis Sponaugle held off Darras Deneen for three laps when Deneen took over the lead and went all the way to the checkered. Deneen was found to be illegal and was disqualified. Everyone moved up one spot which made Johnny Harr the winner. Behind Harr was Dennis Sponaugle, Allen Stone, John Malcolm, David Riley, who started 19th, Bill Buchanan, Ralph King, Rick Saville, Dewey Hall and Bill Goss. Heat winners were Dennis Sponaugle, Donnie Twigg, and Rick Saville. The Consy winner was David Riley.

Elkins Motor Speedway

Tim Hitt, of Weston, W.Va., took the pole-position start, blistered the packed flag oval at Elkins Motor Speedway and won the $1,500 Memorial Day Late Model Classic Saturday night.

Hitt was never seriously challenged but Doug Hall, Denny Chamberlain, Henry Hornsby and Frank Wilson, driving Steve Booth's #B5, were in an all-out struggle throughout the 35-lap feature.

Hornsby took second from Chuck Harper on lap four and remained there until Hall found the groove low in turn three on lap 14. Then Chamberlain came up to challenge Hornsby on lap 18 and out-powered the Beckley car on the back straightaway. Chamberlain closed in on Hall as Frank Wilson moved up to fifth on lap 26. On the last lap Wilson passed Hornsby to take fourth and Hall used lap traffic to ward off a final assault by Chamberlain to capture the second spot.

The last lap of the Semi-Late Feature was one of the strangest and most thrilling EMS has seen in a long time.

Gary Dalton came into the race a borrowed driver as he continues to wait for the finishing touches which will get his own late model up and running. In previous years, he drove to many late model feature wins. Last week, he drove to victory in the UMP Modified class. Saturday night, he found himself behind the wheel of the semi-late, Lazy 3. He won his heat then started the feature on the pole.

The crunching metal began on the second lap when Robbie Scoot found himself sideways in turn two. Steve Wilmoth and Scott Miles reacted quickly to avoid disaster but Duane Moreland was not as fortunate. He slammed into Scott broadside and both cars went to the pits.

Mechanical troubles and collisions eroded the sixteen car field down to nine going into the final lap. Dalton led Jerry Haseleu and Scott Miles in a tight line around the first two turns and into the back straightaway. Up ahead was lapped racer, Kenny Gould. Dalton slowed and seemed indecisive on which groove he'd take to pass Gould, but Haseleu knew exactly where he wanted to go. Coming out of turn four, Haseleu dropped low, came up beside Dalton who was still trying to maneuver around Gould, and nosed into the lead. A seam opened between Haseleu and Gould and Dalton tried to cram the Lazy 3 into the narrow space. He lost control with the attempt, slid to the right and smacked head-on into the concrete retainer wall 10 feet from the finish line. Miles followed Haseleu into second place and Dalton, still creeping forward with momentum from the collision, crossed the line backwards for third then rolled to a stop sideways below the flag stand.

Danny Hamrick sped past to take fourth and John Tallman placed fifth. Then came Shawn Davis and Tom Harsh. Upon seeing the stranded Lazy 3 directly ahead, Davis moved left and unveiled a horrible surprise for Harsh. Harsh, still moving at full speed, rammed the driver's side of the Lazy 3. Both drivers were not injured but their cars were scrap.

Thomas Simpson could not believe that he had lost the Four-Cylinder Stock Feature. Even after the race was over, he stopped under the flag stand to receive his trophy. But Tommy Pennington, after running second the entire 12 lap event, passed Simpson at the finish line by the slimmest margin and much to Simpson's dismay, was receiving all the attention after the race. Simpson waved to the crowd then drove away from the disbelief. Third place went to Rich Teter in his first appearance at EMS this season.

In the UMP Modified feature, Steve Cook led the way to victory ahead of Ron Parrish and Phil Jeffries while in the Pure Stock feature, John Smith Jr. made it two-in-a-row as he edged out Allan Teter and Alan Malone.

Interstate 79 Speedway

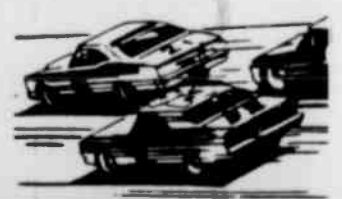

Steve Shaver, of Parkersburg, W.Va., drove his red and white #30 Rocket to the 50-lap $5,000 to win the first leg of the West Virginia Champ Series. Other winners were Jack Kress in the UMP Modifieds, Jim Byers in the Pure Stocks and Mike Lewis in the Four Cylinder Stocks.

Doug Hall and R.J. Conley brought the field down for the feature. Conley took the lead on the start and led the first four laps. Steve Shaver came up from sixth to move past Conley on lap five. Conley pressed Shaver for the next seven laps. Defending track champ, Tim Hitt, moved into contention on lap 23 by taking over the third position and then moved to second on lap 30. At this point Shaver was long gone as Hitt could not run him down. Hitt ended up second with R.J. Conley in third. Dave Groves was fourth followed by Mike Smith, Mark Banal, Butch McGill, Grant Wilson, Jr., Henry Hornsby and Doug Hall. Forty-one late models were in the pits. Mike Smith was the fast qualifier with a 15.41. Doug Hall won the dash while the heats went to Hitt, Shaver, Rod Conley and Banal. Wilson took the Consy.

In the 25-lap UMP Feature, Jack Kress beat out Kevin Jones, Bernie Petanowick, Kevin Rogers and Ron Parrish. Jim Byers won the Pure Stocks over Alan Malone and Alan Arnold. Mike Lewis took the Four Cylinder Stocks over Terry Monroe and Tom Pennington.

This Friday, June 3, will see a regular racing program plus bike races for the kids. Kenny Schrader will make an appearance on June 10 and race with the regulars.

Clown Commissioning Ceremony Conducted at Evergreen Baptist

"We are fools for Christ's sake," (1 Cor. 4:10) was the theme of Sunday evening's Christian clown commissioning ceremony at the Evergreen Baptist Church in Terra Alta.

Six members of the "Bow Bow" clown family were commissioned into the Christian clown service and received the mark of a clown by the church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Brubaker. The Bow Bow family signifies the rainbow, according to the Rev. Brubaker. "We are all 'fools for Christ' under the umbrella of the covenant of the rainbow," he said.

Each clown had gone before a commissioning board and answered specific questions relating to the clown ministry. Upon successful completion of the questioning, the applicants qualified for commissioning.

Clowns commissioned during the ceremony were Mamma Bow Bow, Donna "Aldyl" McCloud, and her children, Sarah "Brambles" Brubaker, Dawn "Bubbles"

Oliver, Gloria "Flower" McCloud, Rebecca "Hakeber" Brubaker, and Elda "Tabitha" Wilhelm. Each was given a special prop designed especially for her own clown personality, and the Rev. Brubaker applied a special mark on the side of each clown's face, signifying acceptance into the Christian clown service.

Dave "Herald" and Darlene "Share" Terlizzi, Oakland, were also commissioned during the service. They were instrumental in helping the Bow Bow family apply clown make up and learn to perform clown ministry skits.

Also during the evening's activities, Karen "Roufe" Stiles, a "baby" clown in the Bow Bow family, received her face. Prior to that time, her face had only a white, expressionless look.

Other younger clowns in the "family" are Bessie "Abysael" McCready, and Anna "Demeeder" Poling, who was not present for the evening's service.

Two of the Bow Bow family members will graduate tomorrow evening, June 3, from Preston High School in Kingwood. Seniors Sarah Brubaker and Elda Wilhelm were also recognized as "graduates" from the clown ministry. Each expressed her desire to continue being a "fool for Christ" as she went on to further her schooling.

A clown ministry followed the commissioning service. Without words, and with plenty of Christian clowning, the Bow Bow family members told the story of Jesus' crucifixion.

Wheeling Symphony To Perform Again In Canaan Valley

The Tucker County Arts Council is making final preparations for the Fourth Annual Celebration of the Arts set for Saturday, July 2 at the Canaan Valley State Park, Davis, W.Va. The Celebration of the Arts is a music festival that is free of charge to the public and is sponsored by the Tucker County Arts Council with funding from the West Virginia Division of Culture and History, Arts and Humanities Section, and the National Endowments for the Arts.

The Wheeling Symphony, under the direction of Maestra Rachel Worby, is once again the featured performance for the Celebration of the Arts. The past three events have seen thousands of music lovers come to hear the Wheeling Symphony in the natural amphitheatre near the ski area in Canaan Valley State Park. The Symphony begins its performance at 7 p.m.

The program on July 2 will begin at 3:30 pm with "The Elftones," West Virginia's Wild Wonderful Women's Band, comprised of eight Elkins musicians, all of whom play a variety of instruments and sing everything from a cappella and blues to vintage rock 'n roll, to "cutting edge" contemporary. They are known for their tight vocal harmonies and flashy stage presence, which evolved over four years of performances at conferences, clubs, and benefits throughout the region.

Taking the stage at 5:30 p.m. will be David Morris from Clay County, W.Va., a well known traditional storyteller and musician. David and his brother, John, have performed at fairs, festivals, and concerts both inside and outside of West Virginia, as well as on radio and television.

Those attending the Celebration of the Arts are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, blankets, some sunscreen, and jackets. Guest Services, Inc., will offer concessions at the site, providing a chicken barbecue, hamburgers, hot dogs, soft drinks and dessert for all the music fans. The stage and dining areas will be covered during the celebration and the event will take place rain or shine.

Anyone requesting additional information on the Celebration of the Arts, where to stay in the Canaan Valley and Tucker County area, or information on becoming a member of the Tucker County Arts Council, may call the Tucker County Convention and Visitors Bureau at 800-782-2775.

Q. My round oak pedestal table has legs that look like eagle claws. It is marked "Watertown Wise, Slide Co. patented June 13, 1899, Oct. 1, 1912. What makes it unique enough to be patented?

A. Anson P. Boardman was granted a patent for an extension table slide. The table must have wooden slide bars and semispherical metal plates that helped it open and close. Oak tables with carved pedestal legs have become popular again and are being reproduced and offered in many furniture stores. An old one in good condition sells for more than $700. This would also depend on where you live. Antique tables sell for the highest prices in the Western United States.

Q. I have a bronze figure of two dogs on a 25-inch-long base. It is signed "L. Riche." There is also a small stamped seal that says "Joliet & Cie, Bronzes, Paris." What can you tell me about the maker and the value?

A. Louis Riche was born in Paris in 1877. He was a sculptor of animals and peasant groups and his works were exhibited in Paris from 1898 to 1924. A large bronze figure like yours, especially if the dogs are attractive, would sell for more than $2,000.

Q. My egg steamer is silver-plated and has the following marks on the bottom: "Meriden Company (in a circle around a pair of scales), 050, silver soldered." Can you tell me when and where it was made?

A. Meriden Britannia Co. was in Meriden, Conn., from 1855. Egg steamers were popular with housewives about 1880.

Q. We just bought an odd Hall Teapot. It has a spout at each end. Inside there is a wall creating two chambers. How was the teapot used?

A. Hall China introduced the double-spout teapots in the late 1940s. One style had a round body and was called the Twinspot. The other had an oval body and was named Teataster. The two chambers allow one side to be used for tea and the other for hot water. The pot can also be used to serve two different kinds of tea.

WHO LIVES IN THESE JOINTS? You do. And depending on how healthy those knees, shoulders, wrists, hips and other bendable parts of you are, often determines how you live. Pain, while some religious philosophies consider it ennobling, can also be disabling. One's otherwise golden years can tarnish as those joints seem to rust away.

But there's help available today for many, if not most people who suffer from various joint problems. (One of the key factors in the proposed health reform package will be to provide for such procedures, especially since the older population is growing.)

According to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, total joint replacement, could help restore a pain free and more active life to many who had been disabled by arthritic pain and swelling as well as through injuries such as falls or accidents.

The AAOS makes the point that for most older people who undergo these procedures, the replacement joint is likely to last a lifetime, younger people may have to have a second operation after several active years. Occasionally, an implanted joint may break, and would have to be replaced. There may also be dislocations, especially in total hip replacements. These usually occur right after surgery and are most often corrected manually, rather than in another operation. As for nerve damage, this can occur at the site of the surgery, especially if much corrective work needs to be done. But in most cases, the nerves begin to function normally after a while.

Home Tips

NO MORE SQUINTING — This is for people who wear reading glasses. I order large-print magazines to read while having my hair done. My favorite magazine is not only easy to read, it fits in my purse. When I finish it, I can leave it for the next person. Maria T., Waldorf, Md.

WITHIN REACH — After getting my 3- and 4-year-old grandchildren a drink every few minutes, I discovered a timesaver. I now put two sipper cups of cool water on a flat sponge on the counter within their reach. I change the cups of water several times each day and they can help themselves whenever they're thirsty. I do supervise them all the time so there is no mess. Katie H., Joplin, Mo.

WOODEN HANGERS — If your husband's trousers slip through those weak old wooden pants hangers, wrap a wide rubber band around the end of each wooden leg of the hanger. This will hold them so tightly that he will have to open it to get them out. Tara G., Vero Beach, Fla.

ARTIST'S PAINTBRUSH — I've been painting for years and paintbrushes can be expensive. When my flat brush bristles start to spread and are almost too bad to use, I get extra life from them by trimming the top bristles. Even though they become shorter, cutting them makes a sharp edge. I'm sure this can be done to regular paintbrushes too. Helen C., Berne, Ind.

FRESHEN UP — Instead of purchasing expensive potpourri, I use two tablespoons of lemon juice concentrate mixed with one cup of water for a "fresh lemon" scent. I also use one teaspoon of ground cinnamon and one teaspoon of cloves mixed with one cup of orange juice for an "orange spice" scent. Mindy O., Commerce City, Colo.

SHAMPOOS AND STROKES:

A year ago, a report came out citing the disturbing coincidence of strokes among several women who had their hair washed in beauty salons. Each stroke victim had had her head tilted back over the edge of the sink in the position often used to shampoo hair or neutralize after a permanent wave.

Health writer Jane Brody, reporting in the May 4 edition of the New York Times, noted that after a year of detailed study of blood flow to the brain, Dr. Michael Weintraub, a neurologist, reported that the risk of stroke, as well as lesser forms of brain damage that can occur when the neck is arched or twisted in extreme positions, is high in these situations, indeed, higher than Dr. Weintraub originally speculated.

The hazard is not limited to any one age group, nor does it exist only in beauty salons. Dr. Weintraub points out that young people with a hidden malformation of a main artery leading to the brain may also be at risk if they assume extreme neck positions such as prolonged dental work. Also vulnerable are those who spend a great deal of time painting ceilings or doing work over their heads or who undergo extreme chiropractic neck manipulations. Being fitted with a breathing tube in surgery, where the neck is arched to straighten out the airway, can also pose a risk.

When the neck is in any of these positions, the blood flow to the brain through one or both vertebral arteries can be reduced, leading to stroke or other brain damage. Although the risk is present for all age groups, seniors who may have high blood pressure, or who have undergone arthritic changes in their necks, among other conditions, are especially vulnerable, so are diabetics who may have circulatory problems. Also at high risk are those who are obese and who smoke. Two groups already vulnerable to stroke: (a) doctors may suggest people in high risk categories might consider wearing a cervical collar while sleeping to keep the neck from being arched.)

Besides protecting the neck during sleep, the risk of stroke may be reduced by having one's hair washed in a salon with the head bent forward rather than backward, tilting the entire dental chair way back, not just the patient's head, and, in surgery, having the anesthesiologist restore the patient's head to a normal position after inserting a breathing tube.

Mrs. Butscher's political background includes being elected to the Republican Central Committee twice and serving as chairman for eight years. She has been the only Republican woman to be elected for the sixth congressional district as delegate to the Republican National Convention. ed Garrett County commissioner.

As county commissioner, Mrs. Butscher represents the county on many boards. She serves on the Youghiogheny Advisory Board, Maryland Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board, Garrett County Forestry Board, Social Services Board, Community Action Board, Garrett Memorial Hospital Board, Western Maryland Health Planning Agency, ex-officio member to the Board of Education, Deep Creek Advisory Board, and the local Emergency Management Planning Committee.

COVER STORY

Fox's 'Essence Awards' to honor men this time

BY JEFF PLASS

For Essence magazine Editor in Chief Susan L. Taylor, the popular women's monthly publication has always been about being on the cutting edge of issues, trends and opinions.

"Essence was the first women's magazine to cover more than what was considered women's magazine fare," Taylor notes. "Social, international and political issues have been a part of our editorial content since the magazine's inception."

It is in this spirit that "The Essence Awards," airing Monday, June 6, on Fox, will be presented.

This year, for the first time ever, the women's magazine pays tribute to eight outstanding black American men for their accomplishments in their respective fields.

"Essence is a women's magazine," explains the awards show's executive producer, Carol Rosenstein. "It is geared toward addressing the wants, desires, hopes and dreams of African-American women. So it was always appropriate that the 'Essence Awards' paid tribute to accomplished African-American women."

"Susan Taylor just really got a sense in this last year that black men were really feeling beaten up. And so, therefore, the editors got together and said, 'Well this isn't really what we do. We celebrate women, but we really think we should celebrate our fathers, our husbands, our brothers, our friends at this time.'"

The show's co-hosts, Vanessa Williams and Sinbad, will be joined by celebrity performers and presenters, including Maya Angelou, Bill Cosby, Queen Latifah and Martin Scorsese. They will honor the following men:

Dr. Benjamin S. Carson Sr., director of pediatric neurosurgery at Johns Hopkins; the Rev. Jesse Jackson; multimedia entrepreneur Quincy Jones; filmmaker Spike Lee; Joseph

Susan L. Taylor

E. Marshall Jr., co-founder of the Omega Boys Club, an organization that promotes academic achievement; Robert P. Moses, civil rights activist, educator and director of the Algebra Project; and highly successful film actors Eddie Murphy and Denzel Washington.

While this group is representative of a cross section of positive role models in black American society, there is one group that seems to be inexplicably missing: athletes.

"Well, there is one feeling that athletes do get a lot of press," Rosenstein notes, "and that there is perhaps a different view among black boys that being an athlete is easy, quick and successful. But, we did not choose to not honor athletes."

"We wanted to honor Michael Jordan, who was thrilled and delighted and wanted to accept the award, but we had a series of deadlines where we were just waiting to see what was going to happen with his baseball career. It simply reached a point where we needed to finalize who we were going to go with."

Rosenstein concludes, "We do want to give awards to people who can be there, and being that we are honoring people for their lifetime accomplishments, if they can't be there, then we'd rather say, 'Well, how about next year?'"

IN FOCUS

John Goodman reads to Kino during PBS' premiere of "Storytime," Monday, June 6.

The series serves a dual purpose: to introduce children to the world of literature at an early age, and to inspire parents and caregivers to spend more time reading to children.

Hosts Lucy (Anne Betancourt), Mara (Marabina James) and kid/puppet Kino (performed by Mark Ritts) introduce celebrity guest readers and discuss stories.

The series airs weekdays.

CABLE OVERVIEW

'Century of Women' has a formidable company

BY JOHN CROOK

Mrs. Ted Turner - a.k.a. a two-time Oscar winner Jane Fonda - is the principal narrator of "A Century of Women," an ambitious and largely absorbing look at the 20th century from a female perspective.

The six-hour documentary airs Tuesday-Thursday, June 7-9, on PBS, and features the participation of such formidable figures as Meryl Streep, Jodie Foster, Jessica Lange, Olympia Dukakis, Carol Burnett, Cicely Tyson, Blythe Danner and Hillary Rodham Clinton, along with many, many others.

"A Century of Women" is framed by a story line about a holiday gathering of family and friends, played by Dukakis, Justine Bateman, Teresa Wright and Brooke Smith (Buffalo Bill's intended last victim in "Silence of the Lambs"), among others. This kind of thing is usually a drag, but these actresses achieve a loose, semi-improvisational feeling that is very engaging.

Here's a brief overview of the series and its themes:

"Work and Family" (Tuesday) includes Clinton's comments about how Eleanor Roosevelt's social activism energized her own life, and Amy Irving's vivid account of the devastating fire at the Triangle Shirtwaist Factory, which killed 149 workers - 146 of them women.

"Sexuality and Social Justice" (Wednesday) features interviews with Gloria Steinem, Joan Baez and Grace Slick, along with Danner's richly characterized portrait of Edna St. Vincent Millay.

"Image and Popular Culture"

Jane Fonda

(Thursday) includes a tribute to Lucille Ball by Burnett. Roseanne Arnold and writer producer Linda Bloodworth-Thomson, as well as an appreciation of Lena Horne by actress Halle Berry.

On the same night Clinton is featured in "A Century of Women," the first lady is profiled on A&E's "Biography," airing Tuesday.

Oscar winner Marlee Matlin guest stars as the March Hare's hearing-impaired cousin, April, on The Disney Channel's "Adventures in Wonderland" Thursday.

Three charming actors - Mary Stuart Masterson, Johnny Depp and Aidan Quinn - star in "Benny & Joon," which has its Showtime premiere on Sunday, June 5.

Tim Matheson and Lysette Anthony star in "Target of Suspicion," a USA Network original movie that debuts Friday, June 10.

Anthony also co-stars with Eric Roberts in "The Hard Truth," a made-for-HBO movie premiering Sunday.

Q: We saw the 1971 movie

Emma Thompson

"Duel" on TV recently in which Dennis Weaver was being chased by a huge truck. The ending gave no explanations - the juggernaut just went plunging off a cliff. Can you fill in the whys and wherefores? -E. Wassmer, Dingman's Ferry, Pa.

A: I wouldn't dream of it. What you're talking about is ambiguity, a powerful tool in the horror/thriller genre because terrifying things happen for seemingly no reason. It's been around as long as stories have been told and will be used for years to come.

MANY THANKS to Alan Hoffman of Sioux Falls, S.D., for providing an address for James Stewart (P.O. Box 90, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90213).

'CENTENNIAL' ALERT: Cable's Family Channel will offer the oft-requested miniseries starting Saturday, June 18. Caution: As with the original network airing, the episodes will air on a somewhat irregular basis, so be sure to check local listings.

It's strictly 'Boheme' from Australian Opera

BY JOHN CROOK

Baz Luhrmann, the brilliant director of last year's sleeper hit "Strictly Ballroom," updates a beloved Puccini opera to the 1950s.

And "Great Performances: La Boheme" captures Luhrmann's stage production on tape. It airs Wednesday, June 8, on PBS (check local listings).

Luhrmann first staged the Australian Opera production, boasting a strong native cast, in 1990. It remains the biggest crowd-pleaser in the history of the Sydney opera house.

The 31-year-old director says the opera company approached him as part of its effort to reach out to a new audience. To prepare for "Boheme," Luhrmann and his creative team spent time both in Puccini's native Italy and in Paris, where the opera is set.

While researching the rise of 19th-century bohemianism in that city, he found parallels with events there in 1957.

To achieve a "Boheme" without cliches, Luhrmann says, "We just threw everything out and said, 'OK, Puccini is next door, he's just written this piece and we're about to rehearse it for the first time.'"

The director has overall praise for the telecast (which he did not direct), but he admits that he finds televised opera problematic in general.

"(A telecast is) a kind of photocopy of a theatrical experience," he suggests. "I think you can make an operatic film, indeed."

"There's a language to yet be invented. There's a whole lot more going on in the (stage) production that you simply cannot see in the television version. This is a facsimile of an experience, not the experience itself."

Wednesday, Christine Douglas dances before onlookers in PBS' "Great Performances: La Boheme," a taped version of Baz Luhrmann's stage production (check local listings).

IN FOCUS

Eleanor Roosevelt is one of many women in history brought to life in TBS' six-hour series, "A Century of Women," airing Tuesday through Thursday, June 7-9.

Actresses Laura Dern, Candice Bergen, Sally Field, Jodie Foster, Amy Irving, Meryl Streep and many others provide narratives that give voice to historical female figures of this century. Jane Fonda will provide overall narration.

Topics discussed include women's images of themselves.

HBO invites viewers to Rikers Island prison

BY RON ELLIOTT

Cell blocks. Barbed wire. Contraband searches. For 70 minutes, viewers will be prisoners on Rikers Island. They won't like it.

Video journalist Jon Alpert brings his famed "I am a camera" approach to HBO when "Lock-Up: The Prisoners of Rikers Island" premieres on Monday, June 6.

Alpert attempts to put human faces on the grim statistics of America's largest correctional facility. Located only six miles from New York City's Empire State Building, Rikers is a city jail covering 415 acres. Two-thirds of its inhabitants were arrested for drug-related crimes. Most of those released will return.

"Lock-Up" gives the viewer the same baptism in fire each new prisoner or guard receives. Alpert's camera captures both sides of the law enforcement coin. The viewer experiences first-hand prison violence, strip searches and guards' not training.

The strength of "Lock-Up" isn't radical camera angles, or its shock value. Alpert personifies Rikers' barbed-wire-and-concrete fence in Jimmy Mirabel, an AIDS-infected inmate born in prison to a drug-infected mother, and Jackie, a 22-year-old inmate about to deliver her child in prison. Mirabel's friends watch him "fade away," and Jackie ponders her baby's chances with prison-quality care.

However, this strength also turns out to be a weakness for "Lock-Up." When given a chance to tell their stories, convicts and guards alike mumble vague, hostile answers. The viewer's pity for Jackie fades when she turns up back in jail on another drug charge, her baby taken away by the city.

Mirabel's quest for salvation is more than balanced out by Eddie "The Running Man" White, still unrepentant after three escapes and murders. Alpert is defeated by his own subject matter.

Other movies dealing with serious subjects this week include "A Child Lost Forever," with Beverly D'Angelo and Michael McGrady, Monday on NBC. Judith Light and Peter Strauss turn the tables on domestic violence in CBS' "Men Don't Tell," airing Tuesday, June 7.

The always popular TV staple of polygamy is revisited on CBS Sunday, June 5, in "The Man With Three Wives," starring Beau Bridges.

For lighter entertainment, seek out NBC's "Hart to Hart: Home Is Where the Hart Is," also on Tuesday.

TIME OUT

NHL playoff games definitely unpredictable

BY JEFF PLASS

The NHL Stanley Cup championship has arrived, and for ESPN hockey analyst Bill Clement, its arrival has come none too soon.

"Let me put it this way," Clement says, "the way hockey is right now, the guy on the street has as good a chance as the expert at predicting the games' outcomes. It was probably my worst year of predictions ever. And I'm supposed to know."

ESPN will air Game 4 of the Stanley Cup Finals on Tuesday, June 7, and Games 5 and 6 (if necessary) on Thursday, June 9, and Saturday, June 11.

At press time, Clement, like so many other hockey fans across the continent, stands flabbergasted at the bizarre nature of the early-round playoff games' outcomes.

"The trend," Clement explains, "is that there are no trends. The only trend that is visible is that defense wins playoffs. The San Jose Sharks upsetting the Detroit Red Wings was defense beating offense in its purest form. The Washington Capitals beating the Pittsburgh Penguins was defense beating offense. The New York Rangers two shutouts against the New York Islanders in their four-game sweep, that's defense beating offense."

"So that's the only thing that's a tried and true trend. Other than that, there weren't any. It was one of the most bizarre beginnings, I think, to any playoff year."

The veteran hockey analyst notes that the inherent strangeness of this year's playoffs was not limited to the first-round matches.

"Even in the second round," Clement states, "the Boston Bruins won their first two games in New Jersey. They were winning the series two-to-zero, and they lost it in six. They lost all three games in that series on home ice. I just keep shaking my head."

With the league's expansion last year, NHL teams now have to endure an 84 game schedule while trying to stay injury-free for the grueling eight-week playoff format.

The pluses are for people who really crave hockey," Clement says. "It's a full plate all season long. The negative is that because of the length and rigors of the schedule, you are not going to get 20 athletes giving their peak performances every night."

That is certainly not true in the playoffs. The stakes are so high. Everybody is functioning at just about 100 percent efficiency in the playoffs. But during the regular season, that definitely is not the case."

Accident Elem. Recycling Effort Stalled By Local Limitations

Students in the fourth grade talent pool of the School Enrichment Program at Accident Elementary School have learned a great deal about the complications of the evolving recycling programs at both a local and state level, as a recycling project they initiated grew quite complex before it was complete. The effort, centered around Earth Day, involved the collection of "drink boxes" often packed in students' lunches.

Student Todd Foley brought a magazine article to class last September which suggested the drink box collection effort and stated that many schools throughout the country were initiating such a project. School officials and talent pool advisor Sheila Russell decided to join the effort and suggested that the talent pool students launch the project during the week of Earth Day, which was April 22.

The students prepared a large box and placed it in the cafeteria. They instructed students to place their drink boxes there instead of throwing them in the trash. The project went well, and was extended two days. Students participated, and the talent pool students kept their classmates motivated by reading recycling facts and figures during the morning announcements each day during that week.

"We found out that one person uses two trees worth of paper per year," said Brooke Butler.

"And each person creates twice his body weight in household garbage each year," said Mark Roberts.

When the students ended the collection and got the drink boxes ready to transport to the local recycling agency, they hit the first snag in the effort.

"I suppose our first mistake was in not contacting Rodney Giotfelty (local solid waste and recycling management director) before we initiated the drink box drive," Mrs. Russell said. "When I called him to ask where to take the boxes, he informed me that Garrett County does not have the capability of recycling such items."

The drink boxes are coated in plastic, the teacher explained, and thus cannot be recycled locally. Giotfelty then directed the class to contact a Howard County official who had spearheaded a similar drive in that county's school system. However, the contact person told the class that the drive had been ended several months ago, and there was no specific place in Howard to ship the boxes.

Giotfelty then advised the class to send the boxes to the Aseptic Packaging Council in Washington, D.C., which they proceeded to do last week. Accompanying the package was a letter written by students Amanda Bell and Rebecca Friend. The students explained their ordeal in the letter and asked the council to let them know what happened to the drink boxes. The class is looking forward to receiving a response soon.

"What began as a relatively simple effort turned into a real learning project," Mrs. Russell said. "It has been a memorable experience for them."

When asked if they will attempt such a project again, the students all readily said they would. They indicated, however, that the next time they would be sure to collect something that can be recycled locally.

Other students involved in the project not previously mentioned were Erin Nell, Micah Plevyak, Tom Crozier, and Steffanie Kahl.

Governor Signs Manufacturing, Financing Bills

Governor William Donald Schaefer has signed into law bills that will improve the competitiveness of Maryland's manufacturing and high tech sectors and expand the state's financing programs for new business creation and the retention of existing businesses.

"These new laws will help improve the state's climate for business," said Governor Schaefer. "They will reduce the tax burden on manufacturers and high technology companies, and will help strengthen the state's financing programs for small businesses."

The governor signed two bills that will assist the state's manufacturing sector, including HB 1511, which will exempt from the state sales and use tax the purchase of supplies, material and equipment used to repair/service assembly line machinery and produce tools and other equipment used to repair assembly line machinery.

"This change in the law will enable Maryland's manufacturers to compete more effectively against companies in other states," said Secretary of Economic and Employment Development (DEED) Mark L. Wasserman.

The governor also signed SB 380 establishing a permanent Advisory Commission on Manufacturing Competitiveness, charged with overseeing and providing guidance to DEED in its efforts to strengthen manufacturing in Maryland. The commission will take the place of a Manufacturing Advisory Committee which has been assisting DEED for the past 18 months in developing and implementing its Action Plan for Manufacturing Competitiveness.

"We must continue to do everything possible to make it easier for Maryland's manufacturers to compete against overseas competition," said Wasserman. "The change in the sales and use tax will make the state's tax system fairer for manufacturers."

The permanent Advisory Commission on Manufacturing Competitiveness will continue to study and recommend ways to improve the competitiveness of the state's manufacturers in the years ahead," he added.

The governor also signed HB 1544, which will exempt from the state sales and use tax energy expenditures made by biotechnology companies to ensure the sterility of clean rooms for manufacturing.

Governor Schaefer signed HB 1566, which will position the state of Maryland to become the nation's first state to use public funds to capitalize a Specialized Small Business Investment Company (SSBIC), creating a venture capital pool to assist Maryland-based small and minority-owned companies. The bill authorizes DEED to contract with a private management company, composed of the current management team of DEED's Maryland Small Business Development Financing Authority (MSBDEFA), to administer MSBDEFA's existing programs. The bill also authorizes DEED to use a portion of its existing funds for the formation of an SSBIC, to be managed by the private management company. These funds will be used to leverage federal funds from the Small Business Administration, which will be added to the state funds and any private funding obtained by the management company. The SSBIC will then use the fund pool to invest in Maryland-based small and minority-owned businesses.

The bill is the end result of a process begun in 1990, when DEED worked with Congressman Kweisi Mfume (D-MD) and the National Association of Investment Companies to develop federal legislation to amend the U.S. Small Business Investment Company Act of 1958, which prohibited the use of public funds in the formation of an SSBIC. In 1992, the U.S. Congress passed an amendment to the 1958 act, permitting public funds to be utilized for this purpose.

GROWING CORN WITH WORMS AND WITHOUT was one of the many science experiments undertaken by students at Swan Meadow School's second annual Science Fair, held last week. Students in grades first through eighth demonstrated their scientific expertise in areas of plant life, animal life, the universe, weather, energy (electrical/mechanical), the human body, flight, and earth science. Participants were graded on originality and creativity, use of research techniques, amount of work and organization, validity of information, evidence of knowledge gained, and oral presentation. Parents, education board representatives, and community members attended the oral presentations, and Certificates of Achievement were presented to all participants. The parents prepared and served refreshments. The fair was coordinated by teachers Jenece Tice, Linda Fleming, and Elizabeth Gilbert. Connie Meyers, secretary, assisted in the project. Jason Yoder is the young scientist pictured above.

"The new Specialized Small Business Investment Company will increase the amount of financing available for small and minority businesses in Maryland," said Wasserman. "In the long run, it will create a regenerating investment capital pool that can be used repeatedly to assist Maryland companies."

The governor also signed HB 1536, which creates a Defense Adjustment Loan Fund to be used to make loans for working capital to new or existing companies in communities suffering from cuts in federal defense spending. The loans can be used by the companies to modernize their manufacturing operations, develop commercial applications for the technology used by the companies and to enter and compete in new markets.

Somerset Rural Electric Coop. To Meet Friday

Members of Somerset Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc., will mark 55 years of rural electrification in Somerset County at their annual meeting on Friday, June 3, at 7:30 p.m., in the Somerset Senior High School auditorium.

Registration for the meeting will begin at 6:15 p.m., with the business session starting at 7 p.m.

The meeting provides an opportunity for members to take part in the cooperative's operation.

Members will consider reports on the past-year's operation as well as plans for the future by cooperative General Manager Harold E. Nicholson; Board President Dalton B. Walker; and Secretary-Treasurer Lowell L. Friedline.

One of the highlights of the annual meeting will be a report from Holly Manges, who is a member of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association Youth Consulting Board.

Miss Manges is a senior at Shade High School where she is president of her class. She was one of four youth who represented Somerset REC on the 1993 National Rural Electric Youth Tour to Washington, D.C.

The cooperative's service area is composed of nine districts and one director represents each district. At each annual meeting, members elect directors for three of the districts for a three-year term.

Districts involved in the 1994 election and the townshipships which make up these districts, are as follows: District 1 - Conemaugh, Paint, Ogle, Shade, District 5 - Middlecreek, Millford, and District 9 - Addison, Henry Clay, Md.

Nominees in each of the three districts include: District 1 - John D. Naugle, Hooversville, Phillip G. Ott, Windber, and Willard C. Will, Central City; District 5 - Clarence Waltermire, Rockwood, Clarence R. Schrock, Rockwood, and Harold Shaulis, Somerset; District 9 - Edward Burnworth, Confluence, Betty J. Guard, Friendsville, and Harold J. Griffith, Friendsville.

The Vicksburg Quartet will provide entertainment for the evening. They originated in Duncansville, Pa., in the early 60's and since have entertained thousands of people at fairs, banquets, festivals, conventions and variety shows across the country plus 15 foreign countries.

The evening will conclude with the awarding of door prizes.

Sizzlin' Summer Suppers

Fabulous, fuss-free food enjoyed outdoors is definitely one of the pleasures of summer. When the mercury rises, no one wants to spend hours in the kitchen.

Plan an easy, leisurely menu from start to finish. Dried Tomato Rancho Relish does double-duty, serving both as a meal starter and main dish accompaniment. Use it to top trendy bruschetta, the Italian favorite of garlicky toasted French bread slices that has become so popular on American menus. The relish is made with Sonoma marinated dried tomatoes, which add intense flavor to the fresh tomato, bell pepper and cilantro combo. To make the bruschetta summer-special, brush the bread slices with some of the olive oil from the marinated dried tomatoes, then grill over medium coals to add a subtle smoky flavor.

Mediterranean-inspired overtones are added to the menu with Lemon-Basil Marinated Veal Steaks and Grilled Rosemary Idaho Potato Wedges — a delicious main and side dish duo for the grill. Thanks to the soil and climate in which they're grown, russet potatoes from Idaho have a high solids content (more potato, less water), so they shrink less than other russets when grilled. Their elongated shape makes them ideal for cutting into wedges. For full rosemary flavor, they only need to marinate for 30 minutes.

Economical veal shoulder arm and blade steaks weigh about one pound each, so you can expect about two to three servings from each steak. Because they are a less tender cut, these steaks benefit from marinating six hours or as long as overnight. This marinade, too, takes advantage of the flavorful oil from the dried tomatoes. It's enhanced with lemon juice, basil and garlic — all flavors that complement the delicate flavor of veal. For a perfectly timed meal, put the potatoes on the grill first — they require a few minutes longer to grill than the veal. Cook the potatoes until they are browned outside and tender when pierced with a fork. At medium doneness, the veal steaks will be juicy and flavorful.

Herbed Veal Kabobs showcase a unique way to grill another favorite veal cut — leg cutlets. Cut into strips and woven onto skewers with pieces of green onion, they grill in just 4 to 5 minutes.

No summer repertoire would be complete without potato salad, and Potato Salad Dijon combines versatile Idaho Potatoes with Sonoma dried tomatoes for a unique flavor combination that's a perfect accompaniment to the veal kabobs or marinated steaks. Plump the Sonoma dried tomato halves in boiling water to soften and bring out their bold yet sweet flavor. While the tomatoes are plumping, simmer the potato slices until tender, then gently toss both with the zesty vinaigrette.

More Tips for Easy Summertime Meals

- Sonoma dried tomatoes, either marinated or dry-packed, are an easy way to add zesty flavor to potato salads, pasta salads and sauces. These Roma tomatoes are dried without salt or preservatives for pure, intense tomato flavor. Use the oil from the marinated dried tomatoes in salad dressings and other marinades, too. Look for both dried tomato varieties in the produce or specialty food section of the supermarket.

- When selecting Idaho Potatoes for grilling and salads, choose potatoes with a net-textured skin, deep brown color and a round, slightly elongated shape. Genuine Idaho Potatoes feature the "Grown in Idaho" seal—a silhouette of the state of Idaho—on every package.

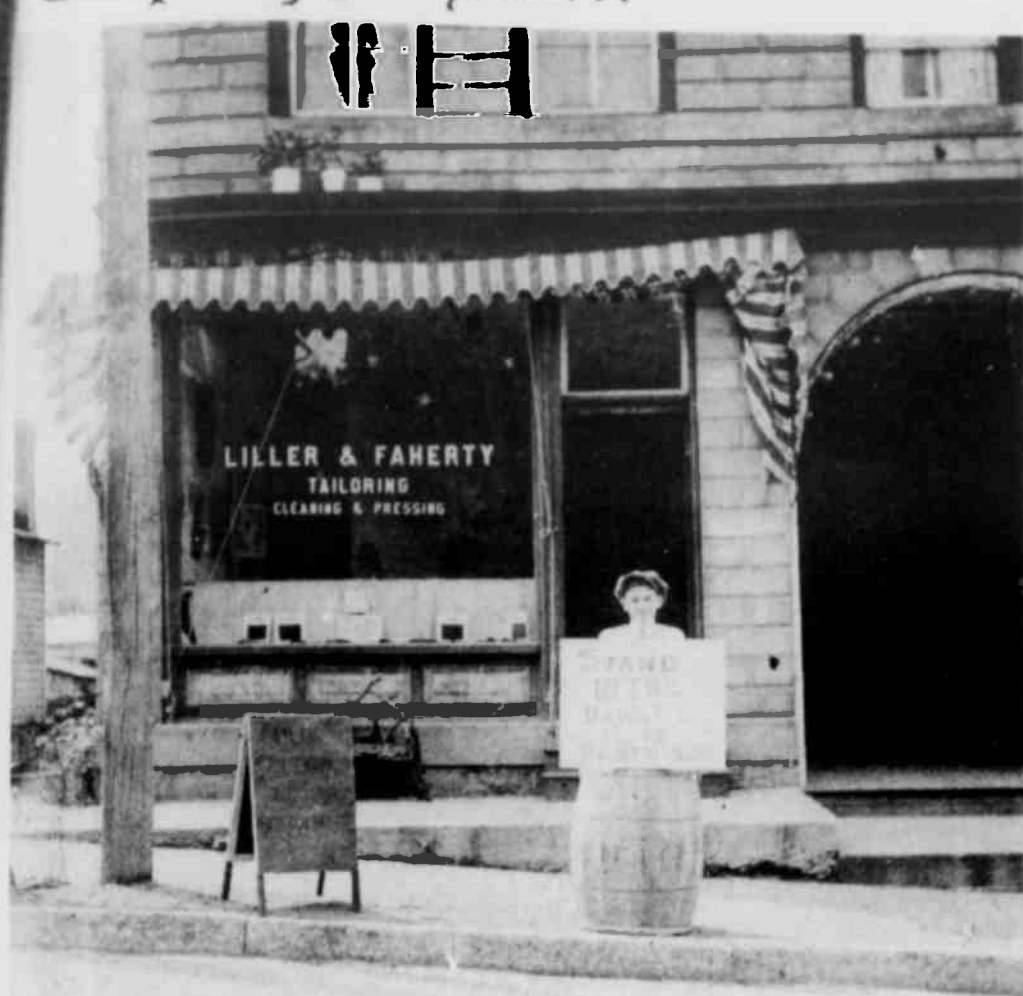

- Grill veal over medium coals to ensure even cooking, if coals are too hot, the outside can char before the inside is cooked through. To check the doneness of bone-in veal cuts, make a small slit near the bone and check the color, make a slit near the center of boneless cuts. At medium doneness, veal will be slightly pink.

- Coals are at medium temperature when they're about 70% covered with gray ash. At night they will have a red glow. To check the temperature of the coals, cautiously hold your hand, palm side down, at cooking height (just above the grid). Count the number of seconds you can hold your hand in that position before the heat is uncomfortable and you have to pull it away.

TIME / TEMPERATURE

2 seconds	Hot (high)
3 seconds	Medium-hot
4 seconds	Medium
5 seconds	Low

Glimpse Of The Past ...

WE WONDER if anyone accepted the offer of Liller and Faherty to literally "drop off" his pants to have them pressed for just 25 cents and stand in the barrel while waiting. Perhaps the young man in the barrel pictured above was such a customer. The building in the photo, which was located above Third Street in Oakland, is the Knights of Pythias building that was later remodeled into a movie theatre, and then destroyed by fire in 1963. Note the brick streets and brick sidewalk. It's believed the photo was taken sometime around 1915. It is from a private collection of the late Adeline (Sincell) Ruckert and published courtesy of the Garrett County Historical Society and The Republican.

Oakland Man Convicted On Theft Charge

An Oakland man was found guilty on one count of felony theft in recent Garrett County District Court proceedings.

Christopher J. Oldham, 20, was sentenced to an 18-month jail term by Allegany District Court Judge Timothy Finan. In a plea agreement with the state's attorney's office, one count of breaking and entering, and one count of malicious destruction of property were not prosecuted.

The charges against Oldham were brought by the owner of Madigan's Auto Sales, Deer Park, on Aug. 24, 1993. Oldham reportedly broke a window, entered the garage, and stole numerous items. Detective Randy Shaffer, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, was the investigating officer.

In other district court news, Michael A. Corby, 19, Swanton, was found guilty on one count of CDS (controlled dangerous substance) possession. He was handed a 30-day jail sentence, with all suspended except 48 hours, fined $350, and placed on one year of supervised probation. An additional charge of CDS paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted by the state's attorney.

Corby was arrested Feb. 12 by Deputy J.B. Sowers, who was on routine patrol of Par-Matt Bowling Lanes. The officer observed a truck and small car parked at the rear of the lot. Upon inspection of the vehicles, he noticed a pack of rolling papers on the seat of the defendant's vehicle, and a small plastic baggie containing marijuana in his shirt pocket, resulting in his arrest.

Michael W. Phillips, 37, Thomas, W.Va., pleaded not guilty, and was granted probation before judgment on a charge of possession of a handgun in a vehicle on a public road. The judge placed Phillips one three years of unsupervised probation for the offense.

DEER PARK HISTORY PUBLISHED - Deer Park, Maryland ... Then and Now is the title of a new publication by the Garrett County Historical Society. The 44-page magazine-size booklet includes numerous "then and now" photographs of the famous summer hotel, cottages which surrounded it, and views in the town of Deer Park. An explanation of the development of the resort area is part of the text accompanying the photographs. According to a Society member, the book is the result of a popular display which was arranged at the Ruth Enlow Library, Oakland. The display, arranged by Robert Boal and Marianne Green, stirred such interest that the Society members decided to preserve the photographs and information in book form. Pictured above, left to right, as they examine a copy of the book are Martha Kahl, Dorothy Cathell, and Carol Davis. The book can be purchased for $5 at the Historical Society's museum in Oakland or at any branch of the Ruth Enlow Library.

cords, Oakland Police Chief John K. Sines investigated a report on Nov. 5, 1993, that someone had a handgun in his possession. Upon contact with the defendant, Sines found a 9mm Ruger handgun and two loaded clips in the console of his vehicle.

Lonnie D. Rush, 42, Oakland, was not prosecuted in Judge Finan's court on one count of battery, after an incident on Dec. 2, 1993, involving Vicki J. Rush. She accused Rush of grabbing her around the throat, knocking her head against a cabinet, and then throwing her to the floor.

Steven G. Savage, 34, Friendsville, was convicted on one count of malicious destruction of property. He was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of unsupervised probation by Judge Finan. In a plea agreement with the state's attorney, one count of battery was not prosecuted.

Savage reportedly became involved in an altercation with Diana L. Cosner, Friendsville, and her son, Ryan Sines, on March 12. Savage reportedly smashed the windshield of Cosner's vehicle. He then got on the car and rode to the end of the parking lot, resulting in the charges.

Timothy P. Slonecker, 39, Mt. Pleasant, Pa., pleaded guilty to one count of possession of CDS paraphernalia in recent court proceedings. He was fined $550 and placed on one year of supervised probation for the offense. An additional charge of CDS possession was not prosecuted.

Slonecker was reportedly charged with the offense after he was stopped by Maryland State Police on Nov. 6, 1993, on I-68 at the Amish Road. The officer initially had stopped the defendant for traveling 95 miles per hour in a 55 mph zone.

A subsequent search of the defendant and his vehicle resulted in the recovery of a metal smoking pipe with marijuana residue. Further search revealed a marijuana cigarette, a plastic baggie containing marijuana, and a brown box, also containing marijuana, resulting in Slonecker's arrest.

Biotechnology Changing The Face Of Modern Agriculture In America

Biotechnology is one of the most talked about, but least understood, forces changing the face of modern agriculture, according to Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Speaking before a meeting of the National Ag Bio-tech Council, Kleckner said agricultural research is largely responsible for forging U.S. agriculture into an industry that is "the envy of the world." Advances in biotechnology will continue that trend.

"We will be responsive to consumer demand, whether it involves producing leaner meat or color-coordinated cabbage," he said. "We will deliver products aimed to please the consumer's specific demand, which could rapidly make obsolete traditional grades and standards."

According to Kleckner, a hog and soybean producer from Rudd, Iowa, biotechnology will be harnessed to feed a world population that experts predict will double within the next generation.

"Acreage of productive farmland won't keep pace with expanding population, but that is an opportunity, not a threat," he said.

Farmers are accustomed to responding with the help of technology. Today the world's farmers are feeding twice as many people, from the same amount of land, as they did in 1960, Kleckner told the group.

Farmers worldwide will face an even greater production challenge in the near future, Kleckner said. In the next 40 years, according to experts, the world's farmers will be asked to produce as much food as they have grown in the entire 14,000-year history of agricultural production.

Biotechnology will play a vital role in meeting future demand, not only for increased tonnage, but also for higher-value products as the worldwide standard of living is boosted, according to Kleckner.

Biotechnology also may surface alternative uses for major farm commodities, which will help ensure the financial viability of future agricultural producers. U.S. farmers will be "more innovative and productive than can be imagined" if the opportunity to make a profit is present, he said.

"Farmers will raise pharmaceuticals in specially bred cattle, human blood substitutes in hogs, or antibiotics in tobacco, lettuce and cherry tomatoes," Kleckner said. "Farmers will adapt and adopt. We will look to the marketplace for production signs. Our goal is no longer to sell what we produce. Instead, we must produce what we can sell."

Achieving the full reward of biotechnology depends on a number of other issues. According to Kleckner, the world marketplace must be open, personal freedoms must be bolstered, incentives must replace costly and burdensome regulations and fiscal responsibility must be instilled in the U.S. government.

Bernice Keppla, Farm Editor

"Farmers and other entrepreneurs—society's creators and doers—are under ever greater pressures," he said.

Only after those pressures are successfully addressed and domestically imposed restraints removed, can American agriculture truly take advantage of biotechnology's benefits, Kleckner told the group.

House Panel Begins Clean Water Hearings

A Clean Water Act reauthorization measure being debated in the House (H.R. 3948) fails to foster the cooperation and partnership needed between landowners and government to ensure water quality efforts are achieved, according to Farm Bureau.

Hearings on the measure, sponsored by Rep. Norman Mineta (D-Calif.) were held last week by the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, which is chaired by Mineta.

In a submitted statement, Farm Bureau said the bill as currently written "is simply the wrong way to address water quality" and is unnecessarily prescriptive, inflexible and punitive.

Farm Bureau said the committee stands at a "clean water crossroads," where political and fiscal realities present very clear policy choices.

"The choice should be one that provides the opportunity to achieve water quality and greater environmental improvement at lower cost and with minimum restrictions," Farm Bureau said. "We believe the Clean Water Act should provide enough flexibility to allow states and landowners to develop cooperative, site-specific solutions to water quality problems."

Farm Bureau is seeking legislation that will require compensation for the loss of property value resulting from regulation. It also is seeking an adequately funded non-point source program, pointing out that failure to appropriate adequate funding has hampered progress in non-point source pollution efforts.

"It is essential to ensure that resources are made available to farmers and ranchers in the form of technical assistance, cost-sharing and tax credits," Farm Bureau said.

Voluntary conservation endeavors by farmers and ranchers have been instrumental in bringing about meaningful and cost-effective solutions to agricultural non-point source pollution problems, Farm Bureau said. It encourages enough flexibility to allow local solutions to local problems and supports incentives for individuals and states to voluntarily adopt site-specific management plans and watershed-basin approaches to water pollution control.

In the Senate, Farm Bureau is supporting efforts to place "holds" on clean water legislation (S. 2093) sponsored by Sen. Max

Baucus (D-Mont.) until many concerns are addressed. A letter signed by 46 senators listing a number of problems with the bill was sent to Baucus. Farm Bureau also is supporting development of a bipartisan alternative to S. 2093 that represents a more mainstream approach and would lead to enactment of a clean water bill in this session of Congress.

What's That Big Bee?

A relatively new insect has moved into the area. Recently I have had several calls from homeowners excited about finding a huge bee in or around their home. A couple of years ago the "Cicada Killer Wasp" found its way into our area. It is a large wasp, two inches or more in length. The wasp gets its name "Cicada Killer" because it feeds upon Cicada (locusts). Normally, this wasp is solitary; therefore, you will not find large nests. They burrow into the ground where they store cicada for their young to feed upon. They will fly around searching for food and commonly will find their way indoors. They are not normally aggressive, but will sting if bothered. The main characteristic of the wasp is the dull yellow stripes around the tail. I would not recommend using an insecticide.

Are You Properly Rinsing The Pesticide Container?

Rinsing is required by federal law as a safe, environmentally sound agriculture practice. Under the Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, a pesticide container is not considered empty until it has been properly triple rinsed. A properly rinsed container is classified as a municipal solid waste and will usually be accepted at a local solid waste site.

Rinsing can save money. For many commonly used pesticides, a drip-drained container may still contain as much as three percent of its contents. Rinsing the container and adding the rinse water to the spray mix will save more than $2.50 for every 2.5 gallon container. If you need additional information on the "triple rinse method," call my office at 334-1990.

Remember To Record Your Pesticide Application Information!

As most of you are aware, the Federal Fama Bill made law that you must keep records of all restricted pesticides used on your farm. The state of Maryland went one step further in requiring that you keep records on all pesticides used on the farm. You should record the following information: 1) the product name and registration number; 2) the date of application; 3) the amount applied; 4) location and size of the treated area; 5) the crop and target pest; 6) the name of the certified applicator who made or supervised the treatment.

Rural Health Care Reform Concerns Cited

Farm Bureau and 22 other farm organizations have joined forces to list their top health care reform concerns for rural communities.

The groups sponsored an advertisement that appeared May 23 in Roll Call, a newspaper covering the nation's capital. The ad called on lawmakers to "take action this year to move all Americans toward affordable coverage. Work on health care legislation got under way in major House and Senate committees last week.

Their top concern is to provide tax fairness, or 100 percent deductibility of health insurance costs, for self-employed individuals. More than 95 percent of farmers and ranchers are self-employed, generally pay the full cost of their insurance coverage themselves and are unable to price their products to pass on health care costs, the ad noted.

The self-employed had been able to deduct 25 percent of their health care coverage prior to 1994, while corporate employees and employers have long received a full 100 percent deduction.

The groups oppose a government mandate that all employers provide health insurance, saying that such a mandate would lead to lower wages and fewer jobs for agricultural employees. Health care alliances should be voluntary, allowing rural people and groups to choose between competing alliances, form their own alliances or keep their current plans, the ad groups recommended.

Other recommendations include greater assistance to recruit, train and place medical professionals in underserved rural communities; increased public support for telecommunications linking rural practitioners with regional medical centers and specialists; and enactment of reforms to cut insurance costs, including portability of coverage and guaranteed access.

In addition to Farm Bureau, the groups sponsoring the Roll Call advertisement include: Agricultural Producers, American Dry Pea and Lentil Association, American Soybean Association, Communicating for Agriculture, Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association, International Apple Institute, National Association of Wheat Growers, Nation-

By Dean Kleckner
President

American Farm Bureau Federation

Following are American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner's comments regarding the announcement on renewal of China's most-favored nation trade status:

"We applaud the Clinton administration for reauthorizing China's most-favored-nation trade status. China is and will continue to be a critical market for American agricultural exports. Continued and unabated trade flow with this huge country is important to agriculture and to American farmers. China is our seventh largest trading partner overall, purchasing nearly $400 million in agricultural commodities this year.

"The enormous growth potential of the developing Chinese market underscores the importance of the decision. With the president's approval, American agricultural products can continue to enjoy an ever-increasing and profitable share in Chinese markets.

"We believe the best way to engage China in meaningful dialogue on human rights is as a partner in trade and economic development."

Beetle May Be Controlled By Cold Weather

Although much attention has been paid this year to the winter weather's negative effects on forest and ornamental trees, the extreme cold may have helped destroy populations of southern pine beetle on the Eastern Shore and in Western Maryland.

"In 1993, there was an extensive outbreak of the southern pine beetle on the lower Eastern Shore. Close to three thousand acres of loblolly pine forest were infested and killed by the beetle last summer and fall. We are particularly aware of southern pine beetle because every year it causes millions of dollars of losses in pulpwood and sawtimber throughout the southeast," reported Dr. Robert Rabaglia, Maryland Department of Agriculture forest entomologist.

The tiny adult beetles bore holes through the bark of pine trees and tunnel between the bark and wood. Healthy trees will "pitch" them out of the holes, but trees weakened by a hot dry spring cannot. The female lays eggs in her tunnel and tiny grubs hatch and feed on the inner bark. The grubs become adult beetles, tunnel out through the bark and attack other trees. Small populations of southern pine beetles often live in weakened or dying trees in generally healthy forests and only become a problem after a warm winter or dry spring.

"The southern pine beetle, as its name implies; is a southern insect that occurs from Texas north to southern Maryland and Delaware. While the beetles are able to withstand the 'normal' winter temperatures that occur on the Eastern Shore, the extreme cold this winter may have 'frozen' many of the beetles," Rabaglia said. Several days of near zero degree temperatures can kill the southern pine beetle eggs and young grubs that live in the moist area between the bark and wood. A survey of infected trees on the Eastern Shore conducted early this spring by the Maryland Department of Agriculture found nearly 100 percent mortality of the young grubs.

"Unfortunately, the more mature grubs living in the dryer outer bark, or those protected by the insulation of thick bark, may have survived, so the news isn't all good," said Rabaglia.

Previous outbreaks in Maryland and the southern Appalachians have reportedly declined after unusually cold winters. Temperatures this winter on the lower Eastern Shore bottomed out near minus four degrees Fahrenheit and remained near 10 degrees Fahrenheit for over 24 hours, a combination which should significantly reduce populations of the beetles this spring.

In Western Maryland, where there were several small, localized beetle infestations in Allegany and Washington counties in 1993, January's near minus 20 degree temperatures should certainly affect beetle populations this spring.

"Although beetle populations may be low this spring and early summer, southern pine beetles have a high reproductive capacity. By late summer, beetle populations could be back to high levels again. If spring and summer conditions remain cool and wet, trees should be able to defend themselves against the low spring populations, but only time will tell us how they will fare this fall," Rabaglia said. Maryland Department of Agriculture and Department of Natural Resources personnel will continue to monitor beetle populations this spring and, beginning in June, will conduct monthly aerial surveys to identify beetle infested stands of pine.

markets, Miller warned.

U. S. wheat growers already have idled a significant amount of their wheat base acres in the conservation reserve program and other farm program options. As a result, 23 percent of the nation's wheat base will not be used for wheat production.

Miller also pointed out that increasing the ARP above zero could damage the competitiveness of U.S. wheat in world markets. Each five percent cut in harvested acreage reduces wheat exports about two percent.

Setting the ARP higher than zero also would negatively impact net farm income, Miller said. Each one percent increase in the ARP cuts the average wheat producer's net farm income by 1.1 percent, according to AFBI analysis. That means an ARP of five percent would translate into a loss of $450 for each 100 acres of production. An acreage reduction requirement of 10 percent would cost a farmer $900 per 100 acres of production. On a national basis, a zero ARP would result in nearly $570 million more income for wheat farmers than a 10 percent ARP, Miller said.

Farm Bureau also recommended that the 1995 price support loan level for wheat be set according to the formula provided in the 1990 farm law, without implementing the discretionary price support reductions. Since marketing loan provisions mandated by the 1990 Budget Reconciliation Act will be in effect for wheat and feed grains in the 1993 through 1995 crop years, the alternative loan repayment provisions of that program will keep prices competitive in world markets without any discretionary price support level adjustments, Miller said.

KINDERPRINTS - In recognition of Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week, Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently participated in the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department's 100th anniversary celebration. In cooperation with the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, the hospital's community relations staff provided Kinderprints (fingerprints) as a free community service to children ages 3 and up. A Polaroid photograph as well as a data sheet about physical characteristics were also provided for each child. Seventh Grade Students Study At Hickory Center

What do soil profiles, tree diameters, pH readings, river otters, weather instruments, fossils, Cove Run, bears in the forest, compasses, predator/prey, trapping, rabies, echolocation, splash cards, M.R. Ducks, nature games, recreation, soil erosion, products, consumers, decomposers, and graphing have in common with 157 seventh grade students?

According to Joseph L. Winters, coordinator, these were topics, programs, and activities at the Hickory Environmental Education Center this spring attended by these students during several three-day resident programs. This program, coupled with the fall resident sessions, allowed all seventh grade students from Northern and Southern middle schools the opportunity to participate.

The Law Enforcement program will prepare students for entry-level positions such as correctional officer, parole and probation officer, additions specialist, private investigator, counselor, and communications officer. Special courses in the program include Introduction to Law Enforcement, Introduction to Criminal Justice, Criminal Law, and Law Enforcement and the Community.

The Social Services program will prepare students for assistant positions such as social worker, home health aide, and family care provider. Special courses in this program include Introduction to Abnormal Psychology, Psychology of Adjustment, Social Problems, and Deviant Behavior.

Although the Special Education Assistant option was designed for students planning to work in educational settings, it can be modified to provide training needed for employment in

Sports Tip:
Painful hamstring strains occur frequently in runners. The hamstring becomes pulled while trying to decelerate the leg and foot prior to hitting the ground. Often this injury is due to improper training techniques and inflexibility. Proper warm up exercises are very important in preventing hamstring pulls.

Bartlett Asks For Helicopter Records Again

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (MD-6) wrote President Clinton, Tuesday, reiterating his request for the release of the flight records and manifests for all helicopters in Marine helicopter squadron HMX-1. The request was first made to the White House by Bartlett last week after White House staff used the helicopters to take a golf trip in the congressman's Maryland district.

Although White House staff publicly said they are examining said records themselves, and are confident the golf trip last week which prompted the immediate resignation of top White House official David Watkins, was a "one time" event, Congressman Bartlett is not convinced the pertinent information necessary to clear the matter is being ferreted out.

"Over the course of the past few days with regard to the White House staff use of helicopters, information from the White House has been contradictory and confusing," said Bartlett. "Initially, White House aides claimed the golf trip by helicopter was a legitimate use of the craft, then later backed away from those statements, saying President Clinton and top Administration officials were unaware of and displeased with the outing. Additionally, the White House stumbled when they first denied the existence of a second helicopter on the outing, then said one was in the area on a training flight and that its proximity to the first one was only 'coincidence,' and later admitted there was, indeed, a second helicopter on the trip," lamented Bartlett.

"The inconsistencies in the information released by the White House renders their efforts unreliable in determining if such abuse of Marine helicopters by staff is common."

In his letter to the president, Congressman Bartlett stated, "I believe the public release of this information is the only way to restore public confidence in the White House use of this military service, and so I would like to reiterate my earlier request that these documents be released as quickly as possible." He also told the president he will continue to stay in contact with White House Chief of Staff McLarty's office.

CRELLIN STUDENTS STUDY JAPAN - Students at Crellin Elementary School were recently involved in a special program at the school titled "A Day of Japanese Culture." The students began by engaging in classroom activities such as reading Japanese stories, writing poetry, learning about Japanese art, playing Japanese games, counting in Japanese, and sampling foods of the country. A special program was presented to each classroom by guest speaker Maureen Brown, pictured above, who provided a slide show of her visit to the country, and demonstrated traditional Japanese clothing, money, handmade paper gifts, pottery, and place settings for a traditional meal. The students learned to use chopsticks and each received a pair to take home. Ms. Brown's husband, Dr. George Plintik, who is a professor at Frostburg State University, also visited the school and presented each music class with a demonstration of Japanese musical instruction. He is pictured below. The couple spent two years in Japan, where Plintik taught and did research at the University of Tsukuba. "This program enhanced the children's cultural awareness," said Principal Keith Harvey. "It was a stimulating and enjoyable experience."

Goldstein Sends Notices To Find Property Owners

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said the Internal Revenue Service is cooperating with his office in an attempt to locate thousands of people who appear to be owners of unclaimed funds. The IRS is sending notices to 12,824 apparent unclaimed property owners for whom they have a current address.

"This is an excellent way to locate people who have moved out of Maryland and for whom the Comptroller's Office does not have a current address. The IRS is just forwarding the notices for us and they will not disclose your address or any tax information," Goldstein said.

This is the second time the IRS and the Maryland State Comptroller's Office have teamed up to locate unclaimed property owners. In 1992, the IRS sent out more than 20,000 notices which generated about 7,500 responses from unclaimed property owners, resulting in 6,400 claims worth $1,927,000.

People who receive notices from the IRS in the next two weeks should consider them as legitimate. These individuals may have moved or changed their last names and did not notify the state, their financial institutions or other businesses which may owe them money.

Those who receive the notice, should call the unclaimed property office toll-free 1-800-782-7383 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. eastern time.

The IRS mailing is just one of the efforts to locate owners of unclaimed funds. Other efforts include computer file matches with other government agencies to reach the rightful owners and setting up computer booths at the State Fair, local fairs, and various trade shows and shopping malls to allow people to check the unclaimed property files.

The office also advertises the most recently reported names of property owners in local newspapers each spring and fall.

"Our statewide publication of full-size ad supplements during the spring was very successful, generating nearly 13,000 calls between March 22 and April 1, 1994," Goldstein said. "The unclaimed property section of our office has already paid 1,372 claims as a result of that advertisement and many other individuals were able to claim money from holders before it was turned over to the state."

Because of all these outreach efforts, in fiscal year 1993 - which ended on June 30, 1993 - the unclaimed property section returned $5,248,400 in unclaimed funds to 7,188 individuals. Among the claims paid in fiscal year 1993 were two accounts worth $87,211 and $29,806. The average claim amount was $730.

Country Squire Realty, Realtors Receive Awards

Century 21 Country Squire Realty was recently named a Century 21 Gold Club Office for the first quarter by Century 21 of the Mid-Atlantic States Shenandoah District. The Gold Club Office Award is the highest quarterly award in the National Capital Region and represents only 29 percent of Century 21 offices. The criteria for receiving the award is based on sales volume and units sold.

Libby Moreland and Lana Roby were honored with Sales Excellence Gold Award, which is the highest quarterly award in the district. The award represents only the top four percent of sales associates in the district and the top two percent in the National Capital Region.

Century 21 Country Squire Realty is located along U.S. Route 219 North in McHenry. The office is part of a network of more than 6,000 Century 21 offices and nearly 70,000 full-time associates affiliated with the Century 21 system in North America, Japan, Hong Kong, the South Pacific, New Zealand, France and the United Kingdom. Co. Commissioners Allocate POS Funds

The Garrett County Commissioners approved the allocation of some $86,500 in Fiscal Year 1995 Maryland Program Open Space (POS) funds when they met Tuesday.

A little more than $36,000 was reserved for the town of Loch Lynn Heights for its community park project, including money for playground equipment, volleyball courts and picnic area trash receptacles. The town was reportedly high on the list for allocations because it has never before received any funds.

Other projects designated by the commissioners for POS funds include:

--Friendsville, $25,110 for the development of a little league field, excluding lighting;

--Kittymiller, $6,000 for a paved exercise trail;

--Accident, $2,600 for picnic tables;

--Grantsville, $8,000 of a $46,350 request for a performing arts pavilion, tennis court lighting, and volleyball courts;

--and Garrett County Memorial Hospital, $8,400 of a $23,670 request to develop a walking hiking trail around the hospital's pond.

According to John Nelson, county planning director, allocations must be approved by county government, and local municipalities must individually apply for the open space funding. Although some towns have already made application for funding, others still need to take the first step in what is typically an eight-week process.

TADPOLE HUNTING, FULL-FLEDGED WADING, and other summer ventures can now be enjoyed by all who choose to do so, as the weather has finally taken on the true characteristics of the warmest of the four seasons. This young Huckleberry Finn was intent upon his search for some aquatic being when photographer Craig Phillips caught him midstream. All area kids are counting the days

'til school doors are closed, at last, for the summer months. The warmer climate has caused a sea of green all over the county, and gardens and fields are beginning to sprout seedlings of all the good growing things. A little more rain would be appreciated, and is expected to fall tomorrow for a little while at least.

WV Man Accused Of Assault With Intent To Murder

A Clarksburg, W.Va., man was arrested Saturday by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office after he reportedly assaulted and threatened four teenagers. Joseph (NMN) Alvarez, 46, was charged with assault with intent to murder, two counts of reckless endangerment, four counts of battery, and one count of destruction of property following the weekend incident.

According to the police report, Alvarez became involved in a verbal altercation at Red Run Inn with Jack H. Alvarez, 15, and David Erik Riley, 19, both of Oakland; and Tonya M. Lloyd, 17, and Jeremy S. Riley, 17, both of Mtn. Lake Park. When the argument was over, the teenagers left the establishment and went to young Alvarez's home on Turkey Neck Road, where the defendant was reportedly waiting for them.

The accused is alleged to have approached the teenagers' vehicle and forced young Alvarez out of the car. According to the witnesses' statements, he pushed the teenager against the car and assaulted him. The other two boys got out to assist and were also assaulted, according to the report.

One of the boys was able to hold Alvarez down, and the others assisted in restraining him. When the

State Police Make Arrests Wednesday In Paving Scam

The Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry, have made an arrest in a paving scam that circulated the county this past week.

A spokesperson for Barrack W. told The Republican this morning that Rowdy DePasquale, 27, Giambrilli; Raymond Carl DePasquale, Odenton; and Timothy Dwayne Anderson, 33, and Danny Williams, 36, both of Inwood, W.Va., were arrested Wednesday afternoon on the Zehner Road, near Grantsville, by 11c. Robert Sharp.

According to 11c. Sharp, the scam began in the county on June 3, when an elderly woman paid nearly $3,000 for a driveway paving job that was worth about $1,000.

The four men allegedly operated out of a dump truck and offered to pave driveways with asphalt for half price. They would also tell the potential customer that if payment was made in cash, no tax would be added. The final price ended up costing the homeowner more than a legitimate paving job, and only part of the work agreed to was completed, Sharp said.

The four men were reportedly in the process of paving a driveway at the time of their arrests.

The men were charged with home improvement violations, and are currently free on bond.

The following guidelines, furnished by the state po-

His condition reportedly worsened to "serious" after surgery last Tuesday, but a hospital spokesperson told The Republican yesterday afternoon that Dekker is again listed in "fair" condition.

The helicopter crashed on private property off the Bishoff Road, near McHenry, at 7:30 a.m., May 31.

Commissioners Adopt $27 Million Budget For Fiscal Year 1995

The Garrett County Commissioners at their Tuesday meeting formally adopted their fiscal 1995 budget and their proposed $2.24 per $100 of assessed value tax rate, marking the fourth year in a row for that tax rate.

The total budget for FY '95 is $26,985,600, nearly $2 million above the current budget of $25,082,093. More money was allocated by the commissioners for capital projects, particularly for the Garrett County Board of Education, the Garrett County Roads Department, the Ruth Enlow Library, and Garrett Community College.

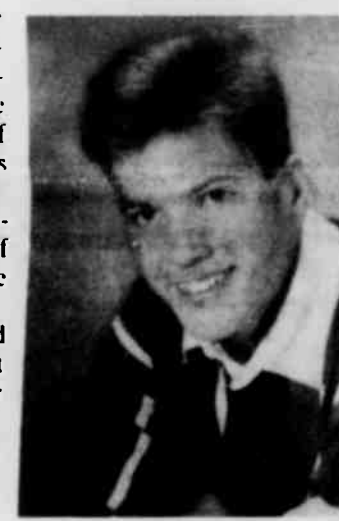

Nearly 43 percent of the budget has been allocated to the board of education, which will receive $10,552,000 in operating monies, plus an additional $918,000 for capital expenditures. Last year the board received $9,834,700 in operating funds and $372,300 for capital projects.

The education board had requested $12,268,000 for capital projects, with the bulk of that for the addition of six classrooms at Northern High School. However, the commissioners are recommending that the board fund the project at Northern over a two-year period, with the second half of the funding to come from the county in the FY '96 budget.

The education board had requested $10,959,000 in operating monies, $407,000 above what the commissioners allocated. Included in that request was funding for six additional elementary school math teachers, four of which can be funded with state and federal monies. The commissioners recommended that the board hire four rather than six math teachers, which would save about $70,000.

Oakland Man Sentenced In District Court

Among the recent cases heard in Garrett County District Court was one involving an Oakland man who was found guilty of one count of being disorderly in a public place.

The judge handed Scott E. Patton, 19, a 60-day sentence for the offense, with all being suspended except 30 days, and placed him on 18 months of supervised probation. Additional charges of malicious destruction of property and being disorderly on private property were not prosecuted by the state's attorney, at the request of the complainant.

Patton was charged with the offenses by Cpl. E.L. Alexander, on Feb. 28, at the home of Martin E. Gay, Oakland. Court records indicate Alexander responded to a report about a fight at the Martin residence. When he arrived on the scene, Patton was sitting on the porch, holding his hand. Alexander questioned the defendant, who became belligerent and abusive with the officer, resulting in his subsequent arrest.

In other district court news, Stephen A. Bender, 43, Grantsville, was granted probation before judgment on one count of CDS (controlled dangerous substance) possession, and was placed on six months of supervised probation. An additional charge of possession of CDS paraphernalia was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement with the state's attorney.

According to court records, Bender was arrested for DWI (driving while intoxicated), Dec. 23, 1993, by Maryland State Police, after he failed to stop at a stop sign. A subsequent search revealed a corn cob pipe with marijuana residue in his shirt pocket, and a container filled with marijuana in the vehicle's map compartment.

Karen L. Corley, 27, Swanton, was not prosecuted on one count of felony theft at the request of the complainant, Melda Georg.

Cogley had been charged with the offense, Dec. 3, 1993, after she reportedly stole household effects valued at more than $300, belonging to Georg.

Junior R. Lewis, 20, Oakland, had a charge of harassment against him placed on the set docket, at the request of the complainant, Crystal L. Mann. Espy L. Parker, 44, Wheeling, W. Va., and Gary L. Beckman, 32, Mtn. Lake Park, were each found guilty of non-support of a minor child. Parker was sentenced to two years in jail, with all suspended except one year, and was given 66 days' credit for time already served. The judge placed him on three years of supervised probation. Beckman was also handed a two-year sentence, with all suspended except 180 days. The judge placed him on two years of supervised probation, and conditions of probation stated he must enter into a complete contract to pay child support, and arrange a schedule to be adopted by the Probation and Parole Board.

Michael W. Dever, 22, Oakland, was granted probation before judgment on one count of CDS possession. He was handed a 30-day sentence, with all suspended except 48 hours, fined $150, and placed on one year of supervised probation. The judge ordered all conditions of

Meyersdale Man Pleads Guilty To Sexual Offense

A Meyersdale, Pa., man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to one count of third degree sexual offense, and Judge Fred A. Thayer ordered a pre-sentence investigation in the case.

Gary L. Wedge, 38, incurred the charge after he reportedly sexually abused an 8-year-old boy on various occasions between September and November of 1992. A physician's report apparently confirmed that the boy had indeed been sexually harmed.

Other charges against Wedge that were not prosecuted included second degree sexual offense and unnatural and perverted sexual practice.

Thayer revoked the defendant's bail pending sentencing. Third degree sexual offense is a felony and carries a penalty of no more than 10 years in jail, according to the court document.

Daryl I. Walters served as Wedge's attorney.

A Mountain Lake Park man was sentenced to one year of home detention for the charges of DWI (driving while intoxicated) and driving with a revoked license. Carl W. Gosnell, 64, pleaded guilty to the charges, which stemmed from an incident in January at the Fuel City parking lot, Grantsville.

According to the report, Gosnell was involved in a one-vehicle accident on Jan. 9 in which his 1974 Oldsmobile slid into a fuel pump.

For the DWI conviction, Thayer sentenced him to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections and fined him $1,000. For the revoked license charge, Gosnell was sentenced to two consecutive years in jail. Four years were suspended, and the judge placed the defendant on home detention, under the authority of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, for the remaining year.

Gosnell was also ordered to be on three years of supervised probation, according to the report. Defending attorney was Robert Hesson.

An Oakland couple stood trial on the charge of perjury. Single and Sherry Brown, 31 and 22 respectively, both pleaded guilty to the charge and pre-sentence investigations were ordered for both defendants.

The Browns were indicted by the March Term Grand Jury after they apparently made false reports to law officers following a vehicle mishap in November 1993. Single Brown claimed he was not driving the car at the time of the accident, and that in fact his wife Sherry was the driver. Single's license was revoked at the time, according to the report.

Mrs. Brown apparently backed her husband's story, but upon further investigation, law officers determined that Mr. Brown had actually been operating the vehicle.

A sentencing date was not indicated on the court document. Daryl Walters was the Browns' defense attorney.

Correction Noted

In last week's issue of The Republican, a report appeared concerning the sentencing of Daniel W. Wolfe, 33, Oakland. The report stated that the defendant was sentenced to three years in prison. However, Wolfe was actually sentenced to six years, with all jail time suspended. The error is regretted.

Sweitzer Awarded Law Degree In May 15 Exercises

West Virginia University College of Law conferred the degree, doctor of jurisprudence, upon Christine Kepple Sweitzer at its 125th Commencement exercises held May 15. In addition to the Commencement exercises held at the WVU Coliseum, the College of Law honored its 155 graduates at a hooding ceremony held May 14 at the Creative Arts Center and a reception at the Law Center.

A 1985 graduate of Southern High School, Ms. Sweitzer received her bachelor of science degree in agriculture and resource economics from the University of Maryland at College Park in 1989. While attending law school, she clerked for the Oakland firm of Eiswert and Jones, P.A. Following the Maryland bar exam, she will join Eiswert and Jones to practice law in Oakland.

Ms. Sweitzer resides with her husband, Barry, on their farm outside of Oakland. She is the daughter of Howard and Bernice Kepple, Oakland, and the daughter-in-law of Melvin and Ann Sweitzer, Swanton.

Intersections To Be Improved By SHA This Month

The State Highway Administration (SHA) has announced it will improve two intersections along U.S. Rt. 219 in Garrett County beginning later this month.

The project includes improving intersections at Mayhew Inn Road and Glendale Road. Work involves resurfacing, improving drainage with new curbs and gutter inlets, installing guardrail, and restriping. The work is necessary to upgrade the intersections and ensure motorist safety.

Traffic along U.S. 219 at both intersections will be shifted away from the work area. During working hours, Mayhew Inn Road will be narrowed to a single, 10-foot lane and Glendale Road will be narrowed to a single 12-foot lane. All lanes will reopen at the end of each day. Flagpersons, arrow boards, traffic drums and cones will guide motorists through the construction site.

Keystone Lime Company, Inc., of Springs, Pa., has been awarded the $748,000 contract. The project should be complete this fall.

SHA reminds motorists to remain alert and drive safely through construction zones.

SHA To Improve Segment Of 219 At Northern High

The State Highway Administration (SHA) will improve U.S. Rt. 219 at the Northern High School entrance in Garrett County, beginning this month.

The project includes adding acceleration and deceleration lanes along U.S. 219 at the entrance to the high school. Work also includes resurfacing, improving drainage with new curbs, and installing gutter inlets. The work is necessary to improve traffic flow and ensure an adequate turning radius for buses to negotiate the turn to and from the school, according to an SHA spokesman.

The shoulder of southbound U.S. 219 will be closed during the project. Southbound traffic along U.S. 219 in the construction area will be shifted to one of the two northbound lanes. Traffic shifts will only take place during work hours. Flag persons, variable message signs, arrow boards, traffic drums, and cones will guide motorists through the construction site.

Keystone Lime Company, Inc., of Springs, Pa., has been awarded the $186,000 contract. The project should be complete this fall.

SHA reminds motorists to remain alert and drive safely through construction zones.

Crime Figures Down Nearly 13 Percent Locally

Maryland State Police Superintendent Colonel Larry W. Tolliver has released first quarter crime statistics for the state and each county, figures which indicate a one percent decrease in criminal activity statewide and a 12.9 percent drop in Garrett County.

Garrett County reported a total of 149 criminal cases of murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, breaking or entering, larceny, motor vehicle theft, and arson in the first three months of this year, compared to a total of 171 for the same quarter last year.

The most significant drop was in the category of larceny, where there were 99 cases in the 1994 quarter, compared to 127 for the same period last year. The biggest increase was in the number of motor vehicle thefts, from one in the first quarter of 1993 to nine in the first quarter of this year.

The numbers in the other categories for the first quarter of 1994, compared to the numbers for the first quarter of 1993, were: murder, 0, 1; rape, 2, 0; robbery, 0, 1; aggravated assault, 8, 9; breaking or entering, 31, 32; and arson, 1, 0.

The violent crimes of murder, rape, robbery, and aggravated assault fell three percent statewide for the quarter. The cases of murder dropped 20 percent.

"Any drop in crime is a good sign, especially violent crimes," Colonel Tolliver said. "To begin to take credit for this drop or to get overly enthused would be premature, though. We have a great deal of work to do as law enforcers and as a statewide community to continue to bring crime down further."

The only area which showed any increase in the statewide statistics was motor vehicle thefts, as there were more than 9,000 reports of stolen vehicles, compared to nearly 7,700 for the same period last year.

Unemployment In State, County Down In April

Maryland's unemployment rate dropped from 5.4 percent in March to 5.2 percent in April as the state's labor force continued to grow. Unemployment rates were lower in 23 of the state's local jurisdictions, more than half of which reported declines of full percentage points or more.

Garrett County's jobless rate dropped over two and one-half points, from 13.2 percent in March to 10.6 percent in April. The April 1993 rate was 15 percent; however data was collected differently last year.

The national unemployment rate, while declining by 0.6 percentage points, remained a full percentage point above the statewide rate at 6.2 percent in April.

"The continuing drop in the unemployment rate is a definite sign of economic recovery," said Secretary of Economic and Employment Development (DEED) Mark L. Wasserman. "Improvements shown in other economic indicators like retail sales, unemployment insurance claims, new automobile registrations, and manufacturing hours and wages also reinforce the fact that Maryland's economy has turned around."

The number of employed people, which has increased steadily since January, rose by more than 1,600 people to 2,496,277 in April. This gain, coupled with a drop of 15,287 in the civilian labor force, was responsible for lowering unemployment by about 16,900 to 135,969 people.

Following seasonal adjustment, the statewide jobless rate fell from 5.7

percent in March to 5.4 percent in April.

Employers continued to hire workers to fill seasonal openings during April. Hiring was reported in every major industry sector with the exception of transportation, where strike activity was reported. Services and retail trade led the employment expansion, with seasonal gains in amusements, agricultural services, hotels, business services and restaurants contributing to the upturn.

Maryland's economic recovery continued during the most recent months. Unemployment insurance claims, retail sales, auto registrations and other economic indicators point to the fact that Maryland's economic recovery is broad-based.

elder Alvarez was released, he went to his truck and came back with a loaded 357 magnum handgun and allegedly threatened to kill the youths.

One boy ran to the house and contacted the sheriff's office, after which the defendant left the residence. He was stopped by police a short distance from the home and arrested. A second loaded handgun was found under the seat of his truck, according to the police report.

Alvarez was released from police custody after posting bail.

In other sheriff's office news, an Oakland man was charged with child abuse, third degree sexual offense, fourth degree sexual offense, and battery. Bradford Shifflett, 22, is accused of sexually molesting a 10-year-old female. The incident reportedly took place on June 4.

Connie L. Miller, 34, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on the strength of a warrant charging her with harassment. The complainant, James Burns, told police that she had made contact with him several times after being told to stay away.

A body attachment was issued for the arrest of Michael A. Geroski, 33, Elkins, W.Va. He was accused of failing to appear in court.

Timothy A. Whitacre, 33, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on the strength of a body attachment, accused of contempt of court.

James C. Pomey, 25, Oakland, was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant for failing to appear in court. He was to face bad check and theft charges on May 17, according to the report.

A body attachment was issued for Brian E. Deem, 26, Mtn. Lake Park. Deem apparently failed to appear in court on June 2 as a complaining witness.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Charles E. Friend, 54, Oakland, for failure to appear in court.

Theft, Property Destruction

A case of theft and one of property destruction were reported to the sheriff's office this week.

Marla Harvey, Oakland, contacted police after her pocketbook was apparently stolen from her vehicle. The victim had placed the item under the driver's seat of her truck, which was parked at the Broadford ball field on June 4.

Sometime during the early afternoon, an unknown person apparently stole the pocketbook and its contents. The loss was estimated at $122, according to the report.

Lammy L. Fogle, Oakland, called the sheriff's office when she found that someone had thrown a picnic table through her bedroom window. She had left her home on June 5 for the evening and found the destruction of property upon her return.

The damage in the incident was estimated at $300. There is a possible suspect in the case, according to the report.

Support the Arts...

The 1994 summer season of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will begin this Sunday, June 12, with a free concert by the U.S. Navy Band Commodores on the lawn of Garrett Community College. It will be the first of a dozen offerings by GLAF that will be presented through October 1.

We sincerely hope that each of these performances enjoys a large audience of both local residents and summer visitors. A board of directors consisting entirely of volunteers, plus one paid executive director, have once again spent hundreds of hours in planning for these programs to bring some of the finest cultural and artistic talents to the Mountaintop.

The GLAF directors work hard to make sure that the performers are of top quality, they bring in a wide variety of entertainment in an attempt to satisfy the tastes of everyone, and they do their utmost to keep admission costs to a minimum. For some programs, there is no admission charge; for the others, the cost is equivalent to what one pays to see a movie in a city theatre.

Support for GLAF can be provided in a number of ways, including purchasing a ticket for the annual benefit dinner, slated for June 25 at the McHenry House, Wisp Ski Resort. Outright donations to GLAF are, of course, gratefully accepted at any time. Persons wishing to serve on the GLAF board of directors or on one of the several committees are also welcome to make inquiries.

However, the easiest, least expensive, and most enjoyable way to support GLAF is simply to attend as many of the performances as possible. There is nothing more gratifying to a performer, as well as the GLAF organizers, than a packed house.

Let's all help GLAF keep the arts alive and well in Garrett County.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

This letter will appear in your newspaper on the 50th anniversary of D-Day plus 3.

A group of interested veterans presented a program Monday, "D-Day," in three different places: Southern High, Northern High, and Garrett Community College. The program was well received in all three places.

I would like to thank Mr. Retow, Mr. Clever, and the students at Southern for their assistance, Mr. Green, Mr. Board, and the students at Northern for their assistance, the faculty and staff at GCC for their assistance.

In addition, invaluable assistance was given to the three programs by the veterans from the three American Legion posts in the county, the VFW, and DAV.

Sincerely,
John A. Grant,
Chairman, 6th of
June Committee

Dear Editor:

I have three grandchildren who live on Rt. 39 in Crellin. They live right below the big curve just past the Dilley Road. They have to walk up to the Dilley Road, and then 100 feet down the road to catch the bus.

The children range in age from 11, 8 and 7, and my daughter and her husband just had to bury a nephew who got hit by a truck and was killed. Every time I close my eyes I see one of them living dead.

What is wrong with the school board? Don't they care about the children anymore? I called the school board and they said they couldn't put a school bus stop there. Surely they could work something out. Next year there will be four kindergarten students walking that stretch of road.

Thank you,
A worried grandmother,
Virginia Beeman

To the Editor:

It has come to my attention that a RAILS-TO-TRAILS project is being considered for Garrett County. Since some of my friends and I are trail users in the winter for snowmobiling, we offer our encouragement to strongly consider the use of the generally unused resource of abandoned railroad track beds. I am personally aware of activity in Somerset County, Pa., on the abandoned Western Maryland Railroad, and in Mineral County, W. Va., on this type of trails project. It would be counter to tourism and Marylanders' recreational pastime to allow the RAILS-TO-TRAILS programs to be active in our sister states, next to Garrett County, yet not to include Garrett County, Maryland.

Hundreds of Marylanders as well as tourists go into Pennsylvania and New York in the snow season for the hundreds of miles of snowmobile trails, some groomed, some not. The point is that these folks represent a lot of money to the local economy in the way of food, gas, lodging and, to a lesser degree, repairs of snowmobiles and vehicles that is not going to Maryland, but to our neighboring states. I would much rather drive four hours to Garrett County than six hours to Potter County, Pa., or 10 hours to Tug Hill, N.Y., to enjoy the trails, and so would a lot of other people.

I hope that you will give a "thumbs up" on this idea. I remain

Yours truly,
Joseph T. Mihm
Deale

To the Editor:

As a veteran and a member of Proctor Kildow Post 71, the American Legion and Memorial Day chairman, I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to all the individuals who took the time to come and celebrate Memorial Day with us at the Oakland Cemetery. It's encouraging to see that people still care enough to help us honor our deceased veterans by giving of their time, if only for a brief moment. The impression left by those who attended the memorial service will always be cherished by the veterans.

I was especially pleased by the presence of so many young people, and their participation in not only the parade but the services at the cemetery. It's only through the efforts of us all that these children will remember what Memorial Day is all about, and future generations will still come and honor us after we have gone. Our devotion to the flag and our patriotism to our country lies in their hands.

Also, if you are going to be away from home, you may call from Oakland City Police and ask them to do a "House Check." The Crime Watch will then be notified, if you wish, and their personnel will do drive-by house checks.

Any citizen of the Oakland or surrounding areas interested in becoming a member of the Crime Watch may send name and address to Oakland Neighborhood Crime Watch, 220 E. Alder Street, Oakland, MD 21550, or contact Officer Shawn Groves at 334-2100.

If you prefer not to become a member, but would like to support the Crime Watch, donations will be gratefully accepted.

Community support is vital to the success of the Oakland Neighborhood Crime Watch. Sincerely yours,
Glenda Grubb
Coordinator

To the Editor:

I am writing in reference to article on page A-4 of your newspaper, dated June 2, 1994. It reads: DWI Arrests... Lindsay A. Gonder, Age 50, Oakland, arrested by T.F.C. Bentlejewski, May 29, 1994.

We would like to know if this is the same Mr. Gonder that is the probation officer for Garrett County? This is not the first time he has been arrested for DWI. Is this correct? We would like to have some answers, because if this is true, we have better qualified people in our county for this job who are not doing the same thing people on probation are being charged for. Maybe the people of Garrett County better wake up and check out some of our officials before they are elected or put in by the County. We will wait for some answers before we say maybe Mr. Gonder should find another job.

THE PLEASURES OF BEEKEEPING

According to the wisdom of Mother Goose, "A swarm of bees in May/ Is worth a load of hay/ A swarm of bees in July/ Is not worth a fly."

I first kept bees when I was sixteen. At that time fear of being stung prevented me from doing much with them. Like so many new projects in life, it was something I should have done with someone else. When I went to college, I sold the hive, but beekeeping remained in the back of my mind. After moving onto my own homestead, fifteen years later, chickens and bees became my first livestock.

Nearly a generation older I still felt timid before the house of 40,000 ladies all armed. Through mismanagement I lost one of the two hives I had purchased. Oddly enough, it was a mild winter that did the damage. Every time the temperatures rose, the bees broke cluster, and wasted enormous amounts of energy. I should have supplemented their stores, and didn't. They starved to death.

With the infestations of mites that have plagued beekeepers, and the prospect of Africanized bees moving up from Central America over the next decade, I had to be more of a beekeeper or not be one at all.

For three winters now I have faithfully medicated my remaining hive against mites, and it has flourished. When the first signs of spring came on, I dutifully fed the ladies sugar water. I was determined to divide the hive, and to get back to the original status quo. I tried it two years ago, and failed.

I have referred to honey bees as ladies. There are male bees (called drones), but compared to the females relatively few, and they exist only to procreate. The ladies tolerate them through the fat months of summer, but when the north wind blows, the drones are thrown out of the hive, and they die.

Of the ladies all but one are worker bees, and that one other is the queen. The queen lays all the eggs for the worker bees. She is the nerve center of the hive. When the queen dies, becomes old, or when the hive becomes overpopulated, the worker bees open one or more of the worker eggs, feed it royal jelly, create a peanut-like capsule, and wait for a new queen to emerge. If they are in the mood to swarm, the new queen leads them out of the hive, and they rise in a mass, and look for a new home.

My bees have not swarmed, but they probably would have swarmed, had I not sought to divide the one hive. Bees are highly social insects. They not only increase by procreation, they also multiply as hives. The trick is to anticipate and, to some degree, to imitate their instinct to swarm.

I painted the hive body -- the basic house -- and some supers -- the upper stories of their house, in preparation for the move. A week ago last Monday, I made two where there had been one, and just as value was shifting from a load of hay to the silver spoon.

I told the children they could watch me get stung. When after about two minutes that had not happened, they lost interest, and drifted away. I worked in the hives for a half hour, and got stung once, and then only as I began to get a little nervous. There stood two neat beehives, albeit unequally divided.

During the next few days I observed them, and realized how imbalanced was the division. I opened them again last Friday, and moved some bees from one to the other. That too was tricky precisely because they are social. When bees of one hive are thrown into another hive, they can become very anti-social.

So I tried a ploy told to me by an old beekeeper. I laid a piece of newspaper between the lower and upper supers. The theory is that once the bees from two hives have worked together to overcome the newspaper barrier, they achieve a sense of camaraderie, and accept each other. That strategy seems to have been a success.

I have become a more skilled beekeeper this spring, and, just as important, a more relaxed beekeeper. Having overcome the fear of being stung (largely because it need happen so rarely), I find working among the bees as peaceful a recreation as I know. The tranquility of some things can only be discovered by doing them. Veiled and gloved on a crystal clear, late spring day, going through a beehive is rest itself.

LEAVE WILDLIFE ALONE

"Leave wildlife alone" is a friendly warning from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wildlife Division.

Now seems to be the time of the year when people everywhere are more attuned to nature and wildlife. Many people pick up seemingly orphaned or injured wildlife. They do this in an attempt to "save" animals, but in reality they do a disservice to both the animal and themselves.

It is against the law in Maryland, and most other states, to hold in captivity certain wild animals without a permit. This is a protection for both wildlife and people.

Nature is more solicitous of the species than the individual. Many more young are produced each year than can survive. It may be more humane to mercifully destroy a young animal that comes into human possession than to attempt to raise an animal under unnatural conditions, to die a slow death.

Most animals that come into human possession are injured or diseased, and a very small percentage survives to adulthood. Most die through malnutrition, improper handling or shock.

Those animals that do survive have not been prepared for surviving in the wild. The animals may never be able to recognize their natural food, after being raised on artificial foods, and may starve if released into the wild. Others may lose their natural distrust of humans and animals, leaving themselves vulnerable to an unexpected attack.

Few animals are orphans. Some animals are left unattended for hours, while others are watched by concealed parents waiting for intruders to leave their young. For example, rabbits feed their young at dawn or dusk and stay away from the nest at other times.

Before you pick up a seemingly stranded or injured animal, consider these risks and responsibilities: (1) you are violating a law intended to protect wildlife and people; (2) most wild animals are harmed or killed while being raised in captivity in an unnatural environment; and (3) the animal may be diseased or may bite or scratch its captors.

If you should have problems concerning squirrels, bats, skunk, groundhog, etc., call the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Wildlife Nuisance Animals Hotline at 1-800-442-0708.

For additional information, contact your local DNR District or Regional Wildlife Division office.

If they are in the mood to swarm, the new queen leads them out of the hive, and they rise in a mass, and look for a new home.

My bees have not swarmed, but they probably would have swarmed, had I not sought to divide the one hive. Bees are highly social insects. They not only increase by procreation, they also multiply as hives. The trick is to anticipate and, to some degree, to imitate their instinct to swarm.

I painted the hive body -- the basic house -- and some supers -- the upper stories of their house, in preparation for the move. A week ago last Monday, I made two where there had been one, and just as value was shifting from a load of hay to the silver spoon.

I told the children they could watch me get stung. When after about two minutes that had not happened, they lost interest, and drifted away. I worked in the hives for a half hour, and got stung once, and then only as I began to get a little nervous. There stood two neat beehives, albeit unequally divided.

During the next few days I observed them, and realized how imbalanced was the division. I opened them again last Friday, and moved some bees from one to the other. That too was tricky precisely because they are social. When bees of one hive are thrown into another hive, they can become very anti-social.

So I tried a ploy told to me by an old beekeeper. I laid a piece of newspaper between the lower and upper supers. The theory is that once the bees from two hives have worked together to overcome the newspaper barrier, they achieve a sense of camaraderie, and accept each other. That strategy seems to have been a success.

I have become a more skilled beekeeper this spring, and, just as important, a more relaxed beekeeper. Having overcome the fear of being stung (largely because it need happen so rarely), I find working among the bees as peaceful a recreation as I know. The tranquility of some things can only be discovered by doing them. Veiled and gloved on a crystal clear, late spring day, going through a beehive is rest itself.

LEAVE WILDLIFE ALONE

"Leave wildlife alone" is a friendly warning from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wildlife Division.

Now seems to be the time of the year when people everywhere are more attuned to nature and wildlife. Many people pick up seemingly orphaned or injured wildlife. They do this in an attempt to "save" animals, but in reality they do a disservice to both the animal and themselves.

It is against the law in Maryland, and most other states, to hold in captivity certain wild animals without a permit. This is a protection for both wildlife and people.

Nature is more solicitous of the species than the individual. Many more young are produced each year than can survive. It may be more humane to mercifully destroy a young animal that comes into human possession than to attempt to raise an animal under unnatural conditions, to die a slow death.

Most animals that come into human possession are injured or diseased, and a very small percentage survives to adulthood. Most die through malnutrition, improper handling or shock.

Those animals that do survive have not been prepared for surviving in the wild. The animals may never be able to recognize their natural food, after being raised on artificial foods, and may starve if released into the wild. Others may lose their natural distrust of humans and animals, leaving themselves vulnerable to an unexpected attack.

Few animals are orphans. Some animals are left unattended for hours, while others are watched by concealed parents waiting for intruders to leave their young. For example, rabbits feed their young at dawn or dusk and stay away from the nest at other times.

Before you pick up a seemingly stranded or injured animal, consider these risks and responsibilities: (1) you are violating a law intended to protect wildlife and people; (2) most wild animals are harmed or killed while being raised in captivity in an unnatural environment; and (3) the animal may be diseased or may bite or scratch its captors.

If you should have problems concerning squirrels, bats, skunk, groundhog, etc., call the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Wildlife Nuisance Animals Hotline at 1-800-442-0708.

Sixth Case Of Rabies Confirmed By Health Dept.

The Garrett County Health Department announces the sixth laboratory confirmed case of rabies of 1994.

A raccoon was observed Saturday in the Deer Park area behaving in an unusual manner, according to a Health Department spokesman.

The animal entered the property owner's garage and had to be captured by a DNR wildlife officer. The property owner's dog was bitten by the raccoon. The specimen was submitted for testing and confirmed positive by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Rabies Laboratory on Tuesday.

There was no human exposure, as the property owner had used care and gloves in handling his dog after the incident. The dog was currently vaccinated against rabies. Therefore, it will receive a rabies booster and will be closely observed for the next 90 days. The property owner reported that he has heard of numerous other unusual raccoon activities in the Deer Park area.

The public is reminded to keep the vaccination status of their dog and cat up to date. The Garrett County Health Department is currently holding low cost rabies clinics. They will be held from 5-6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday of this week at the Deer Park fire hall and Route 40 School, respectively.

Oakland Man

Dever's original probation be imposed.

Lina D. Bell, 26, Bittinger, was granted probation before judgment on two counts of fourth degree sexual offense involving an underage victim. She was placed on 12 months of supervised probation for the offense, and must complete therapy in accordance with the Probation and Parole Board. Bell was also granted probation before judgment on one count of perverted practice. Two counts of battery were not prosecuted by the state's attorney.

An Oakland man was granted probation before judgment on one count of felony theft. He was placed on 18 months of supervised probation, and must perform community service. He was also ordered to make restitution to the victim.

Joseph R. Welch, 19, was charged with the offense by Garrett County sheriff's deputies after tools were taken from a garage belonging to Brian King. Court records indicate that on July 10, 1993, another person who was with Welch took the tools and put them in his vehicle. When the defendant discovered the tools, valued at approximately $630, he took them to the Swanton area and hid them in the weeds.

Also in recent court proceedings, Jerry R. Parrish, 49, Mtn. Lake Park, had one violation of a protective order charge against him placed on the stet docket. The charge stemmed from a Jan. 28 incident at the home of Patricia K. Schrock, Mtn. Lake Park. Parrish had been ordered by Judge Thayer to stay away from Schrock's residence. On Feb. 17, Parrish was again found to be in violation of the order, and was subsequently charged $50 in court costs.

John W. Parsons, 41, Midland, had eight counts of violating a protective order placed on the stet docket at the request of the complainant, Rhonda A. Parsons, Frostburg.

Also placed on the stet docket was one count of battery against Sherry L. Lasker, at the request of the complainant, April L. Gregory, Oakland. The charge stemmed from a Feb. 27 altercation at a residence near Gorman.

James H. Weeks, 33, Oakland, was convicted on one count of CDS possession. He was sentenced to 180 days in jail, with all suspended except 60 days, and placed on 18 months of supervised probation.

According to court records, an off-duty sheriff's deputy stopped Weeks on Oct. 31, 1993, after he heard a call from the dispatcher telling officers to watch for the defendant's vehicle. A search of the vehicle revealed a small brass pipe and a metal canister containing marijuana residue.

After Weeks was transported to the Garrett County Jail, additional marijuana was found in his boot and a further search of the vehicle revealed another baggie containing marijuana.

Probation before judgment was granted to Ray J. Mayhew, 20, Swanton, on one count of CDS possession. He was placed on 12 months of supervised probation for the offense.

Mayhew was arrested for DWI on March 13 by Detective J.D. Murphy, GCSO, after the officer observed him driving in an erratic manner on Rt. 135, near Oakland. A search of the defendant and his vehicle revealed a film canister in his pocket, containing cigarette wrappers and marijuana.

Mayhew's DWI charge was amended to DUI (driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs). He was also granted probation before judgment on this offense, fined $150, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Leroy E. Friend Jr., 28, McHenry, was not prosecuted by the state's attorney on one count of battery and one count of harassment, stemming from a confrontation, Aug. 15, 1993, with Rebecca L. Bailey, Oakland, at a residence in McHenry.

Charles R. Housely, 20, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded not guilty, and was found not guilty to one count of battery and one count of fourth degree sexual offense with an underage victim. Housely had been charged by the 15-year-old victim's father, stemming from an incident from Feb. 5-9.

DNR CASES

Several cases were heard recently involving charges filed by the Department of Natural Resources Police.

John R. Lowery Sr., 42, Perryville, was found guilty of hunting turkeys with a shotgun capable of holding more than three rounds of ammunition. He was fined $70. DNR police charged him with that offense on April 23, near the Savage River Road.

Ray E. Goodwin III, 19, Terra Alta, W.Va., was found guilty of possession of a weapon in a state park, and also possession of an intoxicating beverage by an underage individual. He was fined a total of $190 on both counts. He had been charged with the offenses on April 22 at Swallow Falls State Park by DNR officers there.

Benny Vargas Jr., 25, Baltimore, paid a $30 fine for fishing without a license at Bear Creek. DNR officers cited him on April 16. Also fined for fishing without a license at Bear Creek was Jeremiah J.

Castel, 23, Friendsville. He was charged March 26, and paid a $50 fine for his citation.

DWI CASES

A number of DWI (driving while intoxicated) and DUI (driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs) cases were heard recently in Garrett County District Court.

James Murray Jefferson, 47, Pa., was granted probation before judgment on his DWI charge. The presiding judge ordered the original guilty charge be stricken and the PBJ decision entered on his record. All conditions of Jefferson's original probation will remain as originally imposed. He had been arrested for the offense on Dec. 23, 1993, by Maryland State Police.

Richard A. Benson, 42, Pa., had a violation of probation charge extended to Sept. 15. Other conditions of his probation will remain as imposed, according to court records. He had been arrested and charged with DWI on June 26, 1993, by state police.

Roy Lee Friend, 22, Md., had a petition for violation of probation dismissed by Judge Timothy Finan, district court judge of Allegany County. Friend was arrested for DWI on Sept. 26, 1992, by Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Robert S. Skipper, 64, Ohio, was granted probation before judgment on his DWI charge during a recent sentence revision hearing. The judge ordered all conditions of Skipper's original probation to remain as imposed. He was arrested Jan. 9 by sheriff's deputies.

John Rowland, 41, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI, stemming from his Feb. 19 arrest by the GCSO. The judge handed him a $550 fine, with all suspended except $250, sentenced him to a 30-day suspended jail term, placed him on 12 months of supervised probation, and amended the original DWI charge to DUI.

Stephen Allen Bender, 43, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI, and was granted probation before judgment by the presiding judge. He was fined $200 and placed on six months of supervised probation, stemming from his Dec. 23, 1993, arrest.

David Richard Armstrong, 21, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence. The judge also placed Armstrong on 18 months of supervised probation, and amended his charge to DUI. He had been arrested Feb. 5 by MSP.

Mark Lee Auvil, 39, Md., was granted probation before judgment on one count of DWI. The charge was amended to DUI. Auvil was fined $250, and the judge placed him on six months of supervised probation for the offense. He had been arrested on Oct. 7, 1988, by state police.

Benjamin Rodcheaver, 50, Pa., was also granted probation before judgment on his DWI charge. The judge fined him $200 and placed him on six months of supervised probation, stemming from his March 1 arrest by MSP.

John Charles Drake, 38, Amsterdam, Ohio, was convicted on a DWI charge in recent court proceedings. He was handed a 180-day suspended sentence, fined $50, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Donald William Kisner, 44, Cumberland, pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty of DWI. He was sentenced to 165 days in jail, but had 165 days' credit for time already served.

Co. Commissioners Allocate POS Funds

The Garrett County Commissioners approved the allocation of some $86,500 in Fiscal Year 1995 Maryland Program Open Space (POS) funds when they met Tuesday.

A little more than $36,000 was reserved for the town of Loch Lynn Heights for its community park project, including money for playground equipment, volleyball courts and picnic area trash receptacles. The town was reportedly high on the list for allocations because it has never before received any funds.

Other projects designated by the commissioners for POS funds include:

--Friendsville, $25,110 for the development of a league field, excluding lighting;

--Kitzmill, $6,000 for a paved exercise trail;

--Accident, $2,600 for picnic tables;

--Grantsville, $8,000 of a $46,550 request for a performing arts pavilion, tennis court lighting, and volleyball courts;

--and Garrett County Memorial Hospital, $8,400 of a $25,670 request to develop a walking hiking trail around the hospital's pond. According to John Nelson, county planning director, allocations must be approved by county government, and local municipalities must individually apply for the open space funding. Although some towns have already made application for funding, others still need to take the first step in what is typically an eight-week process.

WV Man Accused Of Assault With Intent To Murder

A Clarksburg, W.Va., man was arrested Saturday by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office after he reportedly assaulted and threatened four teenagers. Joseph (NMN) Alvarez, 46, was charged with assault with intent to murder, two counts of reckless endangerment, four counts of battery, and one count of destruction of property following the weekend incident.

According to the police report, Alvarez became involved in a verbal altercation at Red Run Inn with Jack H. Alvarez, 19, and David Erik Riley, 19, both of Oakland; and Tonya M. Lloyd, 17, and Jeremy S. Riley, 17, both of Mtn. Lake Park. When the argument was over, the teenagers left the establishment and went to young Alvarez's home on Turkey Neck Road, where the defendant was reportedly waiting for them.

The accused is alleged to have approached the teenagers' vehicle and forced young Alvarez out of the car. According to the witnesses' statements, he pushed the teenager against the car and assaulted him. The other two boys got out to assist and were also assaulted, according to the report.

One of the boys was able to hold Alvarez down, and the others assisted in restraining him. When the

State Police Make Arrests Wednesday In Paving Scam

The Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry, have made an arrest in a paving scam that circulated the county this past week.

Robert Sharp.

According to Tfc. Sharp, the scam began in the county on June 3, when an elderly woman paid nearly $3,000 for a driveway paving job that was worth about $1,000.

The four men allegedly operated out of a dump truck and offered to pave driveways with asphalt for half price. They would also

Commissioners Adopt $27 Million Budget For Fiscal Year 1995

The Garrett County Commissioners at their Tuesday meeting formally adopted their fiscal 1995 budget and their proposed $2.24 per $100 of assessed value tax rate, marking the fourth year in a row for that

tax rate.

The total budget for FY '95 is $26,985,600, nearly $2 million above the current budget of $25,082,093. More money was allocated by the commissioners for capital projects, particularly for the Garrett County Board of Education, the Garrett County Roads Department, the Ruth Unlow Library, and Garrett Community College.

Nearly 43 percent of the budget has been allocated to the board of education, which will receive $10,552,000 in operating monies, plus an additional $918,000 for capital expenditures. Last year the board received $9,834,700 in operating funds and $372,300 for capital projects.

The education board had requested $1,268,000 for capital projects, with the bulk of that for the addition of six classrooms at Northern High School. However, the commissioners are recommending that the board fund the project at Northern over a two-year period, with the second half of the funding to come from the county in the FY '96 budget.

The education board had requested $10,959,000 in operating monies, $407,000 above what the commissioners allocated. Included in that request was funding for six additional elementary school math teachers, four of which can be funded with state and federal monies. The commissioners recommended that the board hire four rather than six math teachers, which would save about $70,000.

SAVED BY THE BELT - An Oakland teenager escaped serious injury Monday afternoon after the car she was driving overturned on Rt. 219, near the Garner Road, according to reports filed with Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry. Nanette L. Stahl, 17, was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following the 4:50 p.m. mishap. COMMODORES IN CONCERT SUNDAY - The United States Navy's premier jazz ensemble "The Commodores" will present a free concert Sunday on the lawn of Garrett Community College, beginning at 6 p.m. The presentation is the opening event of the 1994 Garrett Lakes Arts Festival season. Concert-goers are invited to bring picnics and lawn chairs to the outdoor performance. The Commodores group features 18 of the Navy's top jazz and "big band" musicians, who combine the best of jazz and popular music, offering styles ranging from the authentic sounds of the swing era and "bebop" to contemporary high-energy music. A review of the group in the Durham (N.C.) Morning Herald stated "Commodores: No limitations... this band swings, to be sure, and you might find yourself at sea, so to speak, trying to find another group as well disciplined, as fully together, as this one." GLAF's second offering of the season will be a marionette and puppet performance of Peter and the Wolf. It will be presented in the GCC theatre on June 17 and 18. See separate story for details. For more information, persons may contact the GLAF office at 367-3082.

Southern High School senior Michael A. McCroskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCroskey, Oakland, was honored as Garrett County's "Maryland's Tomorrow" student of the year during the recent state department of education's "Maryland's Tomorrow Bright Star Ceremony," in Columbia.

Governor William Donald Schaefer, and Maryland State Superintendent of Schools Nancy Grasmick were among the participants at the ceremony.

McCroskey was selected for recognition based on his academic accomplishments and his participation in school and community activities. He was one of 24 students in the state to receive the honor. McCroskey has been a participant in the program since his freshman year at SHS.

He was initially nominated by Harry Biggs, the Career Employability, Maryland's Tomorrow Programs teacher at Southern, who also attended the ceremony. Others accompanying McCroskey to the ceremony were his mother, Debbie, and Jo Ann Vent, Job Placement advisor teacher at SHS.

Recipients of the Bright Stars awards received $100 savings bonds from C&P Telephone, and other gifts from the state department of education.

McCroskey is currently employed as a machinist for Rohmco, Inc., in Oakland. He will graduate from SHS on Sunday, and plans to continue working towards becoming a journeyman-level machinist.

ONE-VEHICLE MISHAP

An Oakland teenager was injured Monday afternoon in a single-vehicle mishap on Rt. 219, near the Gortner Road, according to state police reports.

Police reports indicate Stahl was operating a 1985 Mercury Lynx north on Rt. 219, when she lost control of the vehicle, went left of center, traveled off the road and struck an embankment. The car overturned and came to rest in the north-bound lane. She was wearing her shoulder harness and seatbelt at the time of the mishap.

Oakland Man Sentenced In District Court

Among the recent cases heard in Garrett County District Court was one involving an Oakland man who was found guilty of one count of being disorderly in a public place.

The judge handed Scott E. Patton, 19, a 60-day sentence for the offense, with all being suspended except 30 days, and placed him on 18 months of supervised probation. Additional charges of malicious destruction of property and being disorderly on private property were not prosecuted by the state's attorney, at the request of the complainant.

Patton was charged with the offenses by Cpl. E.L. Alexander, on Feb. 28, at the home of Martin L. Gay, Oakland. Court records indicate Alexander responded to a report about a fight at the Martin residence. When he arrived on the scene, Patton was sitting on the porch, holding his hand. Alexander questioned the defendant, who became belligerent and abusive with the officer, resulting in his subsequent arrest.

In other district court news, Stephen A. Bender, 43, Grantsville, was granted probation before judgment on one count of CDS (controlled dangerous substance) possession, and was placed on six months of supervised probation. An additional charge of possession of CDS paraphernalia was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement with the state's attorney.

According to court records, Bender was arrested for DWI (driving while intoxicated), Dec. 23, 1993, by Maryland State Police, after he failed to stop at a stop sign. A subsequent search revealed a corn cob pipe with marijuana residue in his shirt pocket, and a container filled with marijuana in the vehicle's nap compartment.

Karen L. Cogley, 27, Swanton, was not prosecuted on one count of felony theft at the request of the complainant, Melda Georg

Cogley had been charged with the offense, Dec. 3, 1993, after she reportedly stole household effects valued at more than $300, belonging to Georg.

Junior R. Lewis, 20, Oakland, had a charge of harassment against him placed on the set docket, at the request of the complainant, Crystal L. Mann.

Espv. L. Parker, 44, Wheeling, W. Va., and Gary L. Beckman, 32, Mtn. Lake Park, were each found guilty of non-support of a minor child. Parker was sentenced to two years in jail, with all suspended except one year, and was given 66 days' credit for time already served. The judge placed him on three years of supervised probation. Beckman was also handed a two-year sentence, with all suspended except 180 days. The judge placed him on two years of supervised probation, and conditions of probation stated he must enter into a complete contract to pay child support, and arrange a schedule to be adopted by the Probation and Parole Board.

Michael W. Dever, 22, Oakland, was granted probation before judgment on one count of CDS possession. He was handed a 30-day sentence, with all suspended except 48 hours, fined $150, and placed on one year of supervised probation. The judge ordered all conditions of probation before judgment on one count of CDS possession. He was handed a 30-day sentence, with all suspended except 48 hours, fined $150, and placed on one year of supervised probation. The judge ordered all conditions of

A Meyersdale, Pa., man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to one count of third degree sexual offense, and Judge Fred A. Thayer ordered a pre-sentence investigation in the case.

Gary L. Wedge, 38, incurred the charge after he reportedly sexually abused an 8-year-old boy on various occasions between September and November of 1992. A physician's report apparently confirmed that the boy had indeed been sexually harmed.

Other charges against Wedge that were not prosecuted included second degree sexual offense and unnatural and perverted sexual practice.

Daryl L. Walters served as Wedge's attorney.

A Mountain Lake Park man was sentenced to one year of home detention for the charges of DWI (driving while intoxicated) and driving with a revoked license.

Carl W. Gosnell, 64, pleaded guilty to the charges, which stemmed from an incident in January at the Fuel City parking lot, Grantsville.

According to the report, Gosnell was involved in a one-vehicle accident on Jan. 9 in which his 1974 Oldsmobile slid into a fuel pump.

For the DWI conviction, Thayer sentenced him to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections and fined him $1,000. For the revoked license charge, Gosnell was sentenced to two consecutive years in jail. Four years were suspended, and the judge placed the defendant on home detention, under the authority of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, for the remaining year.

Gosnell was also ordered to be on three years of supervised probation, according to the report. Defending attorney was Robert Hesson.

An Oakland couple stood trial on the charge of perjury. Sinele and Sherry Brown, 31 and 22 respectively, both pleaded guilty to the charge and pre-sentence investigations were ordered for both defendants.

The Browns were indicted by the March Term Grand Jury after they apparently made false reports to law officers following a vehicular mishap in November 1993. Sinele Brown claimed he was not driving the car at the time of the accident, and that in fact his wife Sherry was the driver. Sinele's license was revoked at the time, according to the report.

Mrs. Brown apparently backed her husband's story, but upon further investigation, law officers determined that Mr. Brown had actually been operating the vehicle.

A sentencing date was not indicated on the court document. Daryl Walters was the Browns' defense attorney.

Correction Noted

In last week's issue of The Republican, a report appeared concerning the sentencing of Daniel W. Wolfe, 33, Oakland. The report stated that the defendant was sentenced to three years in prison. However, Wolfe was actually sentenced to six years, with all jail time suspended. The error is regretted.

While attending law school, she clerked for the Oakland firm of Eiswert and Jones, P.A. Following the Maryland bar exam, she will join Eiswert and Jones to practice law in Oakland.

Intersections To Be Improved By SHA This Month

The State Highway Administration (SHA) has announced it will improve two intersections along U.S. Rt. 219 in Garrett County beginning later this month.

The project includes improving intersections at Mayhew Inn Road and Glendale Road. Work involves resurfacing, improving drainage with new curbs and gutter inlets, installing guardrail, and restriping. The work is necessary to upgrade the intersections and ensure motorist safety.

Traffic along U.S. 219 at both intersections will be shifted away from the work area. During working hours, Mayhew Inn Road will be narrowed to a single, 10-foot lane and Glendale Road will be narrowed to a single 12-foot lane. All lanes will reopen at the end of each day. Flagpersons, arrow boards, traffic drums and cones will guide motorist through the construction site.

Keystone Lime Company, Inc., of Springs, Pa., has been awarded the $748,000 contract. The project should be complete this fall.

SHA reminds motorists to remain alert and drive safely through construction zones.

SHA To Improve Segment Of 219 At Northern High

The State Highway Administration (SHA) will improve U.S. Rt. 219 at the Northern High School entrance in Garrett County, beginning this month.

The project includes adding acceleration and deceleration lanes along U.S. 219 at the entrance to the high school. Work also includes resurfacing, improving drainage with new curbs, and installing gutter inlets. The work is necessary to improve traffic flow and ensure an adequate turning radius for buses to negotiate the turn to and from the school, according to an SHA spokesman.

The shoulder of southbound U.S. 219 will be closed during the project. Southbound traffic along U.S. 219 in the construction area will be shifted to one of the two northbound lanes. Traffic shifts will only take place during work hours. Flag persons, variable message signs, arrow boards, traffic drums, and cones will guide motorists through the construction site.

Keystone Lime Company, Inc., of Springs, Pa., has been awarded the $186,000 contract. The project should be complete this fall.

SHA reminds motorists to remain alert and drive safely through construction zones.

Crime Figures Down Nearly 13 Percent Locally

Maryland State Police Superintendent Colonel Larry W. Tolliver has released first quarter crime statistics for the state and each county, figures which indicate a one percent decrease in criminal activity statewide and a 12.9 percent drop in Garrett County.

Garrett County reported a total of 149 criminal cases of murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, breaking or entering, larceny, motor vehicle theft, and arson in the first three months of this year, compared to a total of 171 for the same quarter last year.

The most significant drop was in the category of larceny, where there were 99 cases in the 1994 quarter, compared to 127 for the same period last year. The biggest increase was in the number of motor vehicle thefts, from one in the first quarter of 1993 to nine in the first quarter of this year.

The numbers in the other categories for the first quarter of 1994, compared to the numbers for the first quarter of 1993, were: murder, 0, 1; rape, 2, 0; robbery, 0, 1; aggravated assault, 8, 9; breaking or entering, 31, 32; and arson, 1, 0.

The violent crimes of murder, rape, robbery, and aggravated assault fell three percent statewide for the quarter. The cases of murder dropped 20 percent.

"Any drop in crime is a good sign, especially violent crimes," Colonel Tolliver said. "To begin to take credit for this drop or to get overly enthused would be premature, though. We have a great deal of work to do as law enforcers and as a statewide community to continue to bring crime down further."

The only area which showed any increase in the statewide statistics was motor vehicle thefts, as there were more than 9,000 reports of stolen vehicles, compared to nearly 7,700 for the same period last year.

Unemployment In State, County Down In April

Maryland's unemployment rate dropped from 5.8 percent in March to 5.2 percent in April as the state's labor force continued to downsize. Unemployment rates were lower in 23 of the state's local jurisdictions, more than half of which reported declines of full percentage points or more.

Garrett County's jobless rate dropped over two and one-half points, from 13.2 percent in March to 10.6 percent in April. The April 1993 rate was 15 percent; however data was collected differently last year.

The national unemployment rate, while declining by 0.6 percentage points, remained a full percentage point above the statewide rate at 6.2 percent in April.

"The continuing drop in the unemployment rate is a definite sign of economic recovery," said Secretary of Economic and Employment Development (DEED) Mark L. Wasserman. "Improvements shown in other economic indicators like retail sales, unemployment insurance claims, new automobile registrations, and manufacturing hours and wages also reinforce the fact that Maryland's economy has turned around."

The number of employed people, which has increased steadily since January, rose by more than 1,600 people to 2,496,277 in April. This gain, coupled with a drop of 15,287 in the civilian labor force, was responsible for lowering unemployment by about 16,900 to 135,969 people.

percent in March to 5.4 percent in April.

Employers continued to hire workers to fill seasonal openings during April. Hiring was reported in every major industry sector with the exception of transportation, where strike activity was reported. Services and retail trade led the employment expansion, with seasonal gains in amusements, agricultural services, hotels, business services and restaurants contributing to the upturn.

Maryland's economic recovery continued during the most recent months. Unemployment insurance claims, retail sales, auto registrations and other economic indicators point to the fact that Maryland's economic recovery is broad-based.

elder Alvarez was released, he went to his truck and came back with a loaded .357 magnum handgun and allegedly threatened to kill the youths.

One boy ran to the house and contacted the sheriff's office, after which the defendant left the residence. He was stopped by police a short distance from the home and was arrested. A second loaded handgun was found under the seat of his truck, according to the police report.

Alvarez was released from police custody after posting bail.

In other sheriff's office news, an Oakland man was charged with child abuse, third degree sexual offense, fourth degree sexual offense, and battery. Bradford Shifflett, 22, is accused of sexually molesting a 10-year-old female. The incident reportedly took place on June 4.

Connie L. Miller, 34, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on the strength of a warrant charging her with harassment. The complainant, James Burns, told police that she had made contact with him several times after being told to stay away.

A body attachment was issued for the arrest of Michael A. Geroski, 33, Elkins, W. Va. He was accused of failing to appear in court.

Timothy A. Whitacre, 33, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested on the strength of a body attachment, accused of contempt of court.

James C. Ptomey, 25, Oakland, was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant for failing to appear in court. He was to face bad check and theft charges on May 17, according to the report.

A body attachment was issued for Brian E. Deem, 26, Mtn. Lake Park. Deem apparently failed to appear in court on June 2 as a complaining witness.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Charles E. Friend, 54, Oakland, for failure to appear in court.

Theft, Property Destruction

A case of theft and one of property destruction were reported to the sheriff's office this week.

Marla Harvey, Oakland, contacted police after her pocketbook was apparently stolen from her vehicle. The victim had placed the item under the driver's seat of her truck, which was parked at the Broadford ball field on June 4.

Sometime during the early afternoon, an unknown person apparently stole the pocketbook and its contents. The loss was estimated at $122, according to the report.

Lanny J. Fogle, Oakland, called the sheriff's office when she found that someone had thrown a picnic table through her bedroom window. She had left her home on June 5 for the evening and found the destruction of property upon her return.

The damage in the incident was estimated at $300. There is a possible suspect in the case, according to the report.

Support the Arts...

The 1994 summer season of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will begin this Sunday, June 12, with a free concert by the U.S. Navy Band Commodores on the lawn of Garrett Community College. It will be the first of a dozen offerings by GLAF that will be presented through October 1.

We sincerely hope that each of these performances enjoys a large audience of both local residents and summer visitors. A board of directors consisting entirely of volunteers, plus one paid executive director, have once again spent hundreds of hours in planning for these programs to bring some of the finest cultural and artistic talents to the Mountaintop.

The GLAF directors work hard to make sure that the performers are of top quality, they bring in a wide variety of entertainment in an attempt to satisfy the tastes of everyone, and they do their utmost to keep admission costs to a minimum. For some programs, there is no admission charge; for the others, the cost is equivalent to what one pays to see a movie in a city theatre.

Support for GLAF can be provided in a number of ways, including purchasing a ticket for the annual benefit dinner, slated for June 25 at the McHenry House, Wisp Ski Resort. Outright donations to GLAF are, of course, gratefully accepted at any time. Persons wishing to serve on the GLAF board of directors or on one of the several committees are also welcome to make inquiry.

However, the easiest, least expensive, and most enjoyable way to support GLAF is simply to attend as many of the performances as possible. There is nothing more gratifying to a performer, as well as the GLAF organizers, than a packed house.

Let's all help GLAF keep the arts alive and well in Garrett County.

To the Editor:

This letter will appear in your newspaper on the 50th anniversary of D-Day plus 3.

A group of interested veterans presented a program Monday, "D-Day," in three different places: Southern High, Northern High, and Garrett Community College. The program was well received in all three places.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Refoso, Mr. Clever, and the students at Southern for their assistance; Mr. Green, Mr. Boord, and the students at Northern for their assistance; the faculty and staff at GCC for their assistance.

In addition, invaluable assistance was given to the three programs by the veterans from the three American Legion posts in the county, the V.F.W., and D.A.V.

Sincerely,
John A. Grant,

Dear Editor:

I have three grandchildren who live on Rt. 39 in Crellin. They live right below the big curve just past the Dilley Road. They have to walk up to the Dilley Road, and then 100 feet down the road to catch the bus.

The children range in age from 11, 8 and 7, and my daughter and her husband just had to bury a nephew who got hit by a truck and was killed. Every time I close my eyes I see one of them lying dead.

What is wrong with the school board? Don't they care about the children anymore? I called the school board and they said they couldn't put a school bus stop there. Surely they could work something out. Next year there will be four kindergarten students walking that stretch of road.

Thank you,
A worried grandmother,
Virginia Beeman

To the Editor:

It has come to my attention that a Rails-To-Trails project is being considered for Garrett County. Since some of my friends and I are trail users in the winter for snowmobiling, we offer our encouragement to strongly consider the use of the generally unused resource of abandoned railroad track beds. I am personally aware of activity in Somerset County, Pa., on the abandoned Western Maryland Railroad, and in Mineral County, W. Va., on this type of trails project. It would be counter to tourism and Marylanders' recreational pastime to allow the Rails-To-Trails programs to be active in our sister states, next to Garrett County, yet not to include Garrett County, Maryland.

Hundreds of Marylanders, as well as tourists, go into Pennsylvania and New York in the snow season for the hundreds of miles of snowmobile trails, some groomed, some not. The point is that these folks represent a lot of money to the local economy in the way of food, gas, lodging and, to a lesser degree, repairs of snowmobiles and

An Update From The Superintendent

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent
Of Garrett County Public Schools

Elementary School Counseling
written by Ms. Bonnie Swyster, Elementary School Counselor

In December 1987, the Garrett County School System hired its first Elementary School Counselor to serve two elementary schools at opposite ends of the county. Today, we have three counselors serving nine schools and over 2,000 students and hope to add an additional two counselors in the future.

As part of the Student Services team, the Elementary Counselor is there to help each child reach his or her full potential. One of the main roles of the counselor is to be a friend and advocate for the student. Counselors strive to help each child enjoy and benefit from his school experience by making sure school is an inviting place to be where children want to learn.

Services provided by an Elementary School Counselor include developmental and preventative classroom guidance, group and individual counseling, consultations, and referrals. Classroom guidance is when a counselor schedules time in a classroom to provide a guidance lesson to the whole class. Lessons stem from our State Guidance Goals of personal and academic growth, educational and career decision making, and interpersonal skills. By spending time in each classroom several times per year, the counselor becomes better acquainted with the students and the students see the counselor as a helper and a friend. Examples of classroom guidance lessons are self-esteem, study skills, listening skills, conflict resolution, tattling, teasing, career awareness, standardized test preparation, and getting ready for middle school.

Group and individual counseling takes place in the counselor's office or some other quiet, secluded part of the school. Referrals can be made by a teacher, parent, principal, special education team, or by a child through self-referral. Parents are encouraged to stop in, write, or call the counselor about their concerns. Not all referrals result in counseling. Consultation with the teacher and/or parent may be all that is needed.

Counselors have numerous resources available on topics related to school adjustment and family matters. Parents and teachers are welcome to borrow materials that will help them and their families or classes. If counseling is warranted, children are seen in groups with other children who have similar concerns whenever feasible. All counseling is confidential and children feel they can trust the counselor and one another. Sometimes knowing that other children have similar problems is a great comfort and helps to alleviate the feeling that, "I am the only one going through this."

Group counseling activities vary from discussions to reading stories, seeing film strips, and playing games centered around a topic or concern. Individual counseling is used on a limited basis when a group is not available or in crisis situations.

Counselors refer students and families to other agencies when additional or more intensive services are required. These agencies include, but are not limited to, counseling groups, the health department, Community Action, Juvenile Services, and Social Services. The goal here is to get families help when they need it most and to keep families intact whenever possible.

Elementary Counselors are here to help. We believe that helping children in their formative years will provide benefits for us all, both now and in years to come. If problems are neglected they are likely to fester and grow like weeds in an untended garden.

To the Editor:

As a veteran and a member of Proctor Kidlow Post 71, the American Legion and Memorial Day chairman, I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to all the individuals who took the time to come and celebrate Memorial Day with us at the Oakland Cemetery.

It's encouraging to see that people still care enough to help us honor our deceased veterans by giving of their time, if only for a brief moment. The impression left by those who attended the memorial service will always be cherished by the veterans.

I was especially pleased by the presence of so many young people, and their participation in not only the parade but the services at the cemetery. It's only through the efforts of us all that these children will remember what Memorial Day is all about, and future generations will still come and honor us after we have gone. Our devotion to the flag and our patriotism to our country lies in their hands.

Respectfully,

Jerry Swiger

To the Editor:

Everyone has the same concern; they don't want to become the victim of a crime.

The Oakland Neighborhood Crime Watch has been established as a formal network for concerned citizens to communicate with neighbors and the police to help reduce crime in their neighborhoods. Neighborhood Watch is, simply, neighbors watching out for each other.

Our organization operates to educate participants in the principles of deterrence, delay, and detection. The program depends on a communication network organized with three levels of participants - the resident, the block captains, and a crime prevention officer.

Neighborhood Watch uses citizen involvement to assist the police department in crime prevention. The citizen is asked to use his/her "eyes and ears" to be more aware of suspicious activity in their area. Criminals find it difficult to work in areas where neighbors are the "eyes and ears" of the police department.

To that end, the Oakland Neighborhood Crime Watch will soon have its members patrolling the streets of Oakland.

These people may not always be identified as Neighborhood Crime Watch personnel. Some will be in vehicles, both marked and unmarked, others on bicycles, and still others on foot. They will be going all over the town of Oakland and checking on Broadford Park.

The Crime Watch will be participating in other activities, such as a bike rodeo to be held in July in conjunction with the Health Department's Community Outreach Team.

Also, if you are going to be away from home, you may call the Oakland City Police and ask them to do a "House Check." The Crime Watch will then be notified, if you wish, and their personnel will do drive-by house checks.

Any citizen of the Oakland or surrounding areas interested in becoming a member of the Crime Watch may send name and address to Oakland Neighborhood Crime Watch, 220 E. Alder Street, Oakland, MD 21550, or contact Officer Shawn Groves at 334-2100.

If you prefer not to become a member, but would like to support the Crime Watch, donations will be gratefully accepted.

Community support is vital to the success of the Oakland Neighborhood Crime Watch.

Sincerely yours,
Glenda Grubb
Coordinator

"LEAVE WILDLIFE ALONE"

"Leave wildlife alone" is a friendly warning from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wildlife Division.

Now seems to be the time of the year when people everywhere are more attuned to nature and wildlife. Many people pick up seemingly orphaned or injured wildlife. They do this in an attempt to "save" animals, but in reality they do a disservice to both the animal and themselves.

It is against the law in Maryland, and most other states, to hold in captivity certain wild animals without a permit. This is a protection for both wildlife and people.

Nature is more solicitous of the species than the individual. Many more young are produced each year than can survive. It may be more humane to mercifully destroy a young animal that comes into human possession than to attempt to raise an animal under unnatural conditions, to die a slow death.

Most animals that come into human possession are injured or diseased, and a very small percentage survives to adulthood. Most die through malnutrition, improper handling or shock.

Those animals that do survive have not been prepared for surviving in the wild. The animals may never be able to recognize their natural food, after being raised on artificial foods, and may starve if released into the wild. Others may lose their natural distrust of humans and animals, leaving themselves vulnerable to an unexpected attack.

Few animals are orphans. Some animals are left unattended for hours, while others are watched by concealed parents waiting for intruders to leave their young. For example, rabbits feed their young at dawn or dusk and stay away from the nest at other times.

Before you pick up a seemingly stranded or injured animal, consider these risks and responsibilities: (1) you are violating a law intended to protect wildlife and people; (2) most wild animals are harmed or killed while being raised in captivity in an unnatural environment; and (3) the animal may be diseased or may bite or scratch its captors.

If you should have problems concerning squirrels, bats, skunk, groundhog, etc., call the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Wildlife Nuisance Animals Hotline at 1-800-442-0708.

The Pleasures of Beekeeping

According to the wisdom of Mother Goose, "A swarm of bees in May/ Is worth a load of hay/ A swarm of bees in June/ Is worth a silver spoon/ A swarm of bees in July/ Is not worth a fly."

I first kept bees when I was sixteen. At that time fear of being stung prevented me from doing much with them. Like so many new projects in life, it was something I should have done with someone else. When I went to college, I sold the hive, but beekeeping remained in the back of my mind. After moving onto my own homestead, fifteen years later, chickens and bees became my first livestock.

Nearly a generation older I still felt timid before the house of 40,000 ladies all armed. Through mismanagement I lost one of the two hives I had purchased. Oddly enough, it was a mild winter that did the damage. Every time the temperatures rose, the bees broke cluster, and wasted enormous amounts of energy. I should have supplemented their stores, and didn't. They starved to death.

With the infestations of mites that have plagued beekeepers, and the prospect of Africanized bees moving up from Central America over the next decade, I had to be more of a beekeeper or not be one at all.

For three winters now I have faithfully medicated my remaining hive against mites, and it has flourished. When the first signs of spring came on, I dutifully fed the ladies sugar water. I was determined to divide the hive, and to get back to the original status quo. I tried it two years ago, and failed.

I have referred to honey bees as ladies. There are male bees (called drones), but compared to the females relatively few, and they exist only to procreate. The ladies tolerate them through the fat months of summer, but when the north wind blows, the drones are thrown out of the hive, and they die.

Of the ladies all but one are worker bees, and that one other is the queen. The queen lays all the eggs for the worker bees. She is the nerve center of the hive. When the queen dies, becomes old, or when the hive becomes overpopulated, the worker bees open one or more of the worker eggs, feed it royal jelly, create a peanut-like capsule, and wait for a new queen to emerge. If they are in the mood to swarm, the new queen leads them out of the hive, and they rise in a mass, and look for a new home.

My bees have not swarmed, but they probably would have swarmed, had I not sought to divide the one hive. Bees are highly social insects. They not only increase by procreation, they also multiply as hives. The trick is to anticipate and, to some degree, to imitate their instinct to swarm.

I painted the hive body -- the basic house -- and some supers -- the upper stories of their house, in preparation for the move. A week ago last Monday, I made two where there had been one, and just as value was shifting from a load of hay to a silver spoon.

I told the children they could watch me get stung. When after about two minutes that had not happened, they lost interest, and drifted away. I worked in the hives for a half hour, and got stung once, and then only as I began to get a little nervous. There stood two neat beehives, albeit unequally divided.

During the next few days I observed them, and realized how imbalanced was the division. I opened them again last Friday, and moved some bees from one to the other. That too was tricky precisely because they are social. When bees of one hive are thrown into another hive, they can become very anti-social.

So I tried a ploy told to me by an old beekeeper. I laid a piece of newspaper between the lower and upper supers. The theory is that once the bees from two hives have worked together to overcome the newspaper barrier, they achieve a sense of camaraderie, and accept each other. That strategy seems to have been a success.

I have become a more skilled beekeeper this spring, and, just as important, a more relaxed beekeeper. Having overcome the fear of being stung (largely because it need happen so rarely), I find working among the bees as peaceful a recreation as I know. The tranquility of some things can only be discovered by doing them. Veiled and gloved on a crystal clear, late spring day, going through a beehive is rest itself.

this is the same Mr. Gonder that is the probation officer for Garrett County? This is not the first time he has been arrested for DWI. Is this correct? We would like to have some answers, because if this is true, we have better qualified people in this county for this job who are not doing the same thing people on probation are being charged for.

Maybe the people of Garrett County better wake up and check out some of our officials before they are elected or put in by the County. We will wait for some answers before we say maybe Mr. Gonder should find another job.

Sixth Case Of Rabies Confirmed By Health Dept.

The Garrett County Health Department announces the sixth laboratory confirmed case of rabies in 1994.

A raccoon was observed Saturday in the Deer Park area behaving in an unusual manner, according to a Health Department spokesman. The animal entered the property owner's garage and had to be captured by a DNR wildlife officer. The property owner's dog was bitten by the raccoon. The specimen was submitted for testing and confirmed positive by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Rabies Laboratory on Tuesday.

There was no human exposure, as the property owner had used care and gloves in handling his dog after the incident. The dog was currently vaccinated against rabies. Therefore, it will receive a rabies booster and will be closely observed for the next 90 days. The property owner reported that he has heard of numerous other unusual raccoon activities in the Deer Park area.

The public is reminded to keep the vaccination status of their dog and cat up to date. The Garrett County Health Department is currently holding low cost rabies clinics. They will be held from 5-6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday of this week at the Deer Park fire hall and Route 40 School, respectively.

Oakland Man

Lina D. Bell, 26, Bittinger, was granted probation before judgment on two counts of fourth degree sexual offense involving an underage victim. She was placed on 12 months of supervised probation for the offense, and must complete therapy in accordance with the Probation and Parole Board. Bell was also granted probation before judgment on one count of perverted practice. Two counts of battery were not prosecuted by the state's attorney.

An Oakland man was granted probation before judgment on one count of felony theft. He was placed on 18 months of supervised probation, and must perform community service. He was also ordered to make restitution to the victim.

Joseph R. Welch, 19, was charged with the offense by Garrett County sheriff's deputies after tools were taken from a garage belonging to Brian King. Court records indicate that on July 10, 1993, another person who was with Welch took the tools and put them in his vehicle. When the defendant discovered the tools, valued at approximately $630, he took them to the Swanton area and hid them in the weeds.

Also in recent court proceedings, Jerry R. Parrish, 49, Min. Lake Park, had one violation of a protective order charge against him placed on the set docket. The charge stemmed from a Jan. 28 incident at the home of Patricia K. Schrock, Min. Lake Park. Parrish had been ordered by Judge Thayer to stay away from Schrock's residence. On Feb. 17, Parrish was again found to be in violation of the order, and was subsequently charged $50 in court costs.

John W. Parsons, 41, Midland, had eight counts of violating a protective order placed on the set docket at the request of the complainant, Rhonda A. Parsons, Frostburg.

Also placed on the set docket was one count of battery against Sherry L. Tasker, at the request of the complainant, April L. Gregory, Oakland. The charge stemmed from a Feb. 27 altercation at a residence near Gorman.

James H. Weeks, 33, Oakland, was convicted on one count of CDS possession. He was sentenced to 180 days in jail, with all suspended except 60 days, and placed on 18 months of supervised probation.

According to court records, an off-duty sheriff's deputy stopped Weeks on Oct. 31, 1993, after he heard a call from the dispatcher telling officers to watch for the defendant's vehicle. A search of the vehicle revealed a small brass pipe and a metal canister containing marijuana residue.

After Weeks was transported to the Garrett County Jail, additional marijuana was found in his boot and a further search of the vehicle revealed another baggie containing marijuana.

Probation before judgment was granted to Ray J. Mayhew, 20, Swanton, on one count of CDS possession. He was placed on 12 months of supervised probation for the offense.

Mayhew was arrested for DWI on March 13 by Detective J.D. Murphy, GSO, after the officer observed him driving in an erratic manner on Rt. 135, near Oakland. A search of the defendant and his vehicle revealed a film canister in his pocket, containing cigarette wrappers and marijuana.

Mayhew's DWI charge was amended to DUI (driving while intoxicated) and DUI (driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs). He was also granted probation before judgment on this offense, fined $150, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Leroy E. Friend Jr., 28, McHenry, was not prosecuted by the state's attorney on one count of battery and one count of harassment, stemming from a confrontation, Aug. 15, 1993, with Rebecca L. Bailey, Oakland, at a residence in McHenry.

Charles R. Housely, 20, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded not guilty, and was found not guilty to one count of battery and one count of fourth degree sexual offense with an underage victim. Housely had been charged by the 15-year-old victim's father, stemming from an incident from Feb. 5-9.

DNR CASES

Several cases were heard recently involving charges filed by the Department of Natural Resources Police.

John R. Lowery Sr., 42, Perryville, was found guilty of hunting turkeys with a shotgun capable of holding more than three rounds of ammunition. He was fined $70. DNR police charged him with that offense on April 23, near the Savage River Road.

Ray E. Goodwin III, 19, Terra Alta, W.Va., was found guilty of possession of a weapon in a state park, and also possession of an intoxicating beverage by an underage individual. He was fined a total of $190 on both counts. He had been charged with the offenses on April 22 at Swallow Falls State Park by DNR officers there.

Benny Vargas Jr., 25, Baltimore, paid a $30 fine for fishing without a license at Bear Creek. DNR officers cited him on April 16.

Also fined for fishing without a license at Bear Creek was Jeremiah J.

Casteel, 23, Friendsville. He was charged March 26, and paid a $50 fine for his citation.

DWI CASES

A number of DWI (driving while intoxicated) and DUI (driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs) cases were heard recently in Garrett County District Court.

James Murray Jefferson, 47, Pa., was granted probation before judgment on his DWI charge. The presiding judge ordered the original guilty charge be stricken and the PBJ decision entered on his record. All conditions of Jefferson's original probation will remain as originally imposed. He had been arrested for the offense on Dec. 23, 1993, by Maryland State Police.

Richard A. Benson, 42, Pa., had a violation of probation charge extended to Sept. 15. Other conditions of his probation will remain as imposed, according to court records. He had been arrested and charged with DWI on June 26, 1993, by state police.

Roy Lee Friend, 22, Md., had a petition for violation of probation dismissed by Judge Timothy Finan, district court judge of Allegany County. Friend was arrested for DWI on Sept. 26, 1992, by Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Robert S. Skipper, 64, Ohio, was granted probation before judgment on his DWI charge during a recent sentence revision hearing. The judge ordered all conditions of Skipper's original probation to remain as imposed. He was arrested Jan. 9 by sheriff's deputies.

John Rowland, 41, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI, stemming from his Feb. 19 arrest by the GCSO. The judge handed him a $550 fine, with all suspended except $250, sentenced him to a 30-day suspended jail term, placed him on 12 months of supervised probation, and amended the original DWI charge to DUI.

Stephen Allen Bender, 43, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI, and was granted probation before judgment by the presiding judge. He was fined $200 and placed on six months of supervised probation, stemming from his Dec. 23, 1993, arrest.

David Richard Armstrong, 21, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence. The judge also placed Armstrong on 18 months of supervised probation, and amended his charge to DUI. He had been arrested Feb. 5 by MSP.

Mark Lee Auvil, 39, Md., was granted probation before judgment on one count of DWI. The charge was amended to DUI, Auvil was fined $250, and the judge placed him on six months of supervised probation for the offense. He had been arrested on Oct. 7, 1988, by state police.

Benjamin Rodeheaver, 50, Pa., was also granted probation before judgment on his DWI charge. The judge fined him $200 and placed him on six months of supervised probation, stemming from his March 1 arrest by MSP.

John Charles Drake, 38, Amsterdam, Ohio, was convicted on a DWI charge in recent court proceedings. He was handed a 180-day suspended sentence, fined $50, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Donald William Kiser, 44, Cumberland, pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty of DWI. He was sentenced to 165 days in jail, but had 165 days' credit for time already served.

Hoffman Art On Display In GCC Gallery

On display from June 6-30 in the Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery of Garrett Community College is an exhibition of artworks by Mike Hoffman.

Originally from Morgantown, Hoffman is now a resident of Terra Alta, W. Va., where he operates a home design business named "Four Star Design." After obtaining a B.F.A. degree in design from West Virginia University (1982), Hoffman then worked in New Jersey as an interior designer specializing in resort homes and commercial offices. He returned to the area in 1982 to start his own business and to pursue his interests in painting and sculpture.

The show includes 20 of his oil paintings, which are primarily figurative with a somewhat reserved impressionistic style and representations of persons, places, and objects that form composite images from his experiences. The show also displays two recent wood-working projects, two col-

NHS Mock Trial Team's Season Is Successful

The Northern High School Mock Trial Team had its most successful season to date this year, according to Tom Ables, coach. The Northern blue team came in second in Circuit #4, which consists of eight teams. The team's five and two record was second to Fort Hill's six and one.

"We are excited about this year's teams and their accomplishments," Ables said. "The future looks good because we have only one senior on both of our teams."

"Three words best describe these students: dedicated, motivated, and focused. The kids were fun to work with," Ables said. His sentiments were echoed by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer and District Court Judge Ralph Burnett.

"The Northern team learned more this year than any other team," Thayer said. "Their continual improvement was remarkable. The students were quite able to accept and utilize my criticisms. I was very impressed by them."

Burnett stated that he was "extremely proud" of the Northern team.

"They were a hardworking group, taking tremendous time in preparing. They were extremely well-schooled in their efforts," Burnett said. "I had trouble a few times remembering that they were high school students and not lawyers arguing a case. These are nice young people, too - a real asset to Garrett County."

Santa Will Take Yard Sale Remains

Lou Stoutler, Terra Alta, W. Va., who portrays Santa Claus every year for hundreds of needy families in the Preston Garrett county area, said this week that he continues to collect used and/or new toys and clothing to give away at Christmas and at other times of the year.

He said persons who hold yard sales and are left with unsold items are encouraged to call him and he will come and pick up the items. He may be reached by telephone at 304-789-

Ables explained that mock trial is different from any other activity in the school, giving high school students the opportunity to experience the court system first-hand.

Teams from Allegany, Bishop Walsh, Fort Hill, and Westmar, as well as Northern and Southern high schools participate in the mock trial program. Throughout the state, mock trial teams take turns pre-sending both sides of a criminal or civil case set up by the Maryland State Bar Association.

Student "lawyers" must abide by a simplified version of the rules that govern procedures in real courtrooms. Participants are advised to dress for the part as well.

All teams in the state try the same case, Ables said, based on the same statement of facts and with the same ground rules.

The coach said that Circuit #4 is considered one of the strongest in the state, as three schools from this area have made it to the state finals, and two have won.

In addition to Ables, Tina Harvey serves as a faculty coach at Northern, with Mary Walcek as lawyer advisor. Louis Newcomb is Southern's coach, as well as the regional coordinator.

This year's case was "Collins et al. versus West Valley School District." The dilemma was as follows: the school had been renovated and a new first grade classroom was added. Some students became sick and blamed the new room, labeled "sick classroom," as the cause of their symptoms. The students sued the school district.

Ables said all judges agreed that the plaintiff had a difficult time winning because the defense had the only expert witness in indoor pollution.

"At Northern, we do not stress winning as much as participating," Ables said. "All students who have participated in a mock trial program will testify how this experience has helped them in their school work and daily lives. Students improve their communication, leadership, and creative thinking skills. This is one activity in school that stresses the exercise of the brain instead of the brawn."

The coach also noted his and the teams' appreciation of the area's two judges, Thayer and Burnett.

"We are very fortunate to have two such fine judges. They both spent time with the students, giving them good constructive criticism," Ables said.

Oakland Oaks Break Into Win Column Sunday

After dropping their fourth game in as many outings this season, a 3-2 loss to visiting Hyndman Saturday, the Oakland Oaks of the Pen-Mar Baseball League finally broke into the win column by splitting a doubleheader with Blue Diamond of Morgantown Sunday afternoon.

Oakland was edged in the opener, 6-5, but came back to record a 5-3 win in the second game.

Saturday's game at Garrett Community College was a pitchers' battle, with Hyndman's Kyle Martz getting the best of Christian Smith. Martz gave up seven hits and struck out eight batters.

Oakland took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a sacrifice fly by Sam Alvaro.

Hyndman scored all three of its runs and took the lead for good in the third inning behind a two-run double by Jamie Ringler. Dave Peter sent the third run home with a sacrifice fly. Martz added his own cause with two singles.

Chad Miller singled home a run for Oakland in the seventh, but that concluded the scoring. Kevin Green singled twice and doubled to lead the Oakland offense.

Smith batted seven Hyndman fanners and gave up 10 hits. It was the first win for Hyndman in four starts.

In the first game against Blue Diamond on Sunday, the home team won the contest with a run in the eighth inning on an infield hit by Calhoun. Shawn Kosko doubled and singled to lead Blue Diamond's seven-hit effort.

SIGNS WITH WESLEYAN BOBCATS - Carrie Newcomb, fourth leading all-time scorer for the Southern High School girls' basketball program, has signed an athletic academic scholarship to play for the West Virginia Wesleyan College women's basketball team this fall. Miss Newcomb was the Area Player of the Year in her junior year and was a first team All-Area player this past season, during which she was hampered much of the time with injuries. She led Coach Don Stemple's team to the Maryland state 1A semi-finals this past season and probably would have finished her Southern High career as the second all-time leading scorer, had she not missed so many games nursing an ankle and a knee back to health. Carrie is pictured with her parents, Beth and Gary Newcomb, and her coach for the past four years, Don Stemple (standing).

account for half of Oakland's hits and two RBI. Smith added a triple.

In the second game, Chad Miller singled to send home Alvaro and Kent Taylor to break a 2-2 tie in the ninth inning. Ron Shirley rapped a sacrifice fly to plate the third run of the inning.

Blue Diamond came back for a single run in the bottom of the frame.

Alvaro singled twice for one RBI for Oakland, as Taylor and Smith combined for a dozen strike-outs and the win on the mound.

Oakland will play at Keyser this Saturday.

Stemple Among Coaches For 14th All-Star Contest

The coaches for the 14th annual McDonald's Maryland-West Virginia All-Star Basketball game have been selected to represent the teams from the Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia and Western Maryland.

Four of the area's best high school coaches, including Don Stemple of Southern High School, were named this past week to coach in the annual event. John Shaw of Beall and Joe Riley of Frankfort will head the boys' game and Stemple, Southern and Pat Godfrey of Franklin will run the sidelines for the girls' game.

Stemple has been to five state basketball championships with his Southern Rams. His career coaching record of 292-165 is among the area's best ever. Stemple has coached both the boys and the girls during his career, which began in 1969.

For the past 12 seasons he has been the girls' coach at Southern and has gone to three state championships.

Stemple will be guiding the Maryland girls for this year's classic.

The 14th annual McDonald's Maryland-West Virginia Basketball Classic will be held in Bobcat Arena, on the campus of Frostburg State University, on June 19. The girls' game will begin at 2 p.m. and the boys' game will start at 4 p.m.

Area Speedway Review

Somerset County Speedway

The Somerset County Speedway, in Meyersdale, Pa., had a full card of racing last Friday night. All feature winners were first-time winners in their respective races which caused excitement in the winners' circle.

The heat races were fast moving as only one red light had to come out throughout the six heat events. The first heat went all 10 laps with Rodney Youmans leading the way as did Tom Humberson in the second heat. Both drivers are from Grantsville.

The third heat was taken by Vince Smith in car #6. Bobby Smith, from Meyersdale, continued to make his way to the front of the pack to take the checkered in the fourth heat. The consolation race had Eric Paugh in car #95 secure his place in a feature. The Pure Stock heat went to J.R. Isner, from Cumberland. Isner is becoming a familiar face at the finish line and looks like the man to beat.

The C* Man was won by Dale A. Miller, from Berlin, Pa. Miller took the lead in the fourth lap and held off a hard charging Dave Grever who settled for second. They were followed by Greg Hottel, Henry Backes, Brad Reckner, Terry Mitchell, Marvin Hosselrode, and Jamie Webb.

Rodney Weyant seemed to be in control on the "B" Main until the ninth lap when he dropped back and handed the lead over to Ben Ansell. Ansell went on to take the checkered. He was followed by Doug Barclay, Duane Shultz, Doug Kimmel, Rodney Weyant, Roger McKenzie, Dale Wilt, Charlie Phillips, Jack Dively, Ray Wilhelm, Jr., Roger Baughman, Ernie Livingston, and Nelson Bailey.

The "A" Main was the hardest fought battle of the night when Doug Shaffer, Rodney Youmans, and Bobby Smith each took their turns at leading the pack. When the checkered flag dropped, Bobby Smith was able to take his first time "A" Main win at the speedway. Drivers, pitcrews and family converged in the winners' circle to offer their congratulations. Smith was followed by Tom Humberson, Rodney Youmans, Greg Cornell, Eric Paugh, Kevin Bender, Kevin Sanner, Bob Davis, Brian Taylor, Denny Rounds, Don Shaffer, Tim Rounds, Jon Deal, and Clair Duppstadt.

The Pure Stock event barely got started when J.R. Isner ended up on the wall which resulted in two flat tires. A second caution bunched the cars together but Dennis Sponaugle in car #8 held off the field to take his first win at Meyersdale. He was followed by John Saylor, Brad Brown, Dana Cotter, Gene Meats, D.J. Griffith, J.R. Isner and Doug Shaffer.

Trophies for all features were donated by Dean O'Neil Ford in Meyersdale while added prize money in the Strictly Stock class was donated by Tressler Oil in Confluence.

Racing will continue at the speedway on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Cumberland Raceway

Wayne Johnson, of Hancock, got his first win of the year in the Ponderosa Steak House Late Model race Saturday night at Cumberland Raceway. Jim Deneen, of Hyndman, Pa., got his third win in a row in the Hamilton Dodge Semi-late race, and Bill Buchanan, of Cumberland, got his second win at Cumberland this year in the Pure Stocks.

There were 74 cars in the pits and there were heads-up starts in all features.

There will be no racing at the Cumberland Raceway on June 11 or June 18. The next scheduled race is Cresap Automotive Machine Night on June 25. There will be added bonuses and trophies. There is already bonus money to anyone who can beat Jim Deneen. There is also bonus money to Jim if he can win four in a row. The Semi-late winner could get at least $750.

In the Late Model feature, Wayne Johnson, from his pole position, took the lead at the drop of the green and was clocked on the front stretch at 114 mph by police radar. There was a caution on the first lap, but Johnson kept in front for the win. The track was fast and tacky. The rest of the race ran under the green. The real race for second through fifth place was run under a blanket.

Tom Clise finished second, followed by Bob Salathe, J.R. Keifer, Scott Brode, who came from 14th to get fifth, Randy Kimmel, Johnny Bauer, Chuck Clise, Jeff Miller, and Mel Corley. Heat winners were Wayne Johnson and Tom Clise.

In the 24-car Semi-late feature, Donnie Witt took the lead. There were three cautions which kept the race close. Witt held the lead until lap 11 when Jim Deneen came from his 11th starting spot and got under Witt when he got high in the turns. Deneen got his third win in a row with Witt, who had to hold off the rest of the pack, finishing second. Behind Witt was Jack Pencil, Allen Buckley, Greg Fuller, Brian Lowery, Shane Beegle, Bob Elbin, Dave Hoover and Bob Campbell. The heat winners were Dave Hoover and Donnie Witt. "The Gang" and Lambert's Auto Service gave Deneen a $50 bonus for the win.

In the Pure Stock feature Bill VanMeter led until lap three when he spun out. This gave the lead to Don Nicholson, who led until lap eight when Bill Buchanan, who started 12th, went to the front for the win.

Allen Stone finished second followed by Johnny Harr, Don Nicholson, Rick Saville, who started 19th was fifth, Dennis Sponaugle, Bill VanMeter, Dewey Hall, David Riley and Wally Mowery. Heat winners were Bill VanMeter, Johnny Harr, and Don Nicholson. The Consy winner was Rick Saville.

Bill Buchanan is the qualifier for the National Parts Peddler Street Stock Race in October at Flemington Speedway in New Jersey.

The Tri-State Racing Photos Hard Charger Award went to Rick Saville. Fan of the Week was Greg Trail, of Chancysville, Pa. The Junior Fan Club winner of the bike was Kevin Foote, of Lonaconing. Trophy sponsor was J.R. Custom Embroidery and Screen Printing.

The C.A.R.E. Awards ceremony was held at intermission. The total collected was $5,515 raised for Child Abuse Prevention. Tony Flanagan was the driver who raised the most money. He raised $952.

Elkins Motor Speedway

Denny Chamberlain, of Lost Creek, W.Va., won his second late model feature of the season Saturday night at Elkins Motor Speedway while Jerry Haseleu made it three out of four in the Semi-late feature. Two new-comers to the winner's circle were Brian Shaffer in the UMP Modified class and Thomas Simpson in the Four-Cylinder Stocks. Alan Malone took the feature crown in the pure stock event.

Fifteen cars showed for the Late Model feature and after a first lap caution on Chuck Howdershelt, the race went flag-to-flag with Chamberlain leading the entire way. By the time he'd reached the checkered flag, Chamberlain had lapped nine cars and the second place car driven by Dave Groves was more than a half a lap back. The best performance of the night was given by Frank Wilson who started 13th and finished third. Chuck Harper and Doug Horton placed fourth and fifth respectively.

Jerry Haseleu, of Morgantown, continued his winning ways by taking the pole to the checkered flag in a Semi-late feature riddled with cautions. Scott Miles, last season's track champion, gave Haseleu little room to breathe by hanging tight throughout most of the 20-lap event until Haseleu found a burst of speed in the last two laps. Steve Booth, Shawn Davis and Bernard Keene rounded out the top five.

The UMP Modified feature, the third race of the evening to have one driver lead all laps, found a new winner in the smiling face of Brian Shaffer. It was Shaffer's first career victory at Elkins Motor Speedway. Veteran UMP driver, Kenny Rogers, placed second and Ron Parrish was third.

First time feature winner Thomas Simpson took home the Four-Cylinder Stock victory after he, too, led the entire race. In fact, the last lap ended in the same order as the first: Simpson, Rich Peter and Tommy Pennington.

Finally, Alan Malone took pole position in the Pure Stock feature and

Interstate 79 Speedway

After a long, dry spell, last year's track champion, Tim Hitt, captured the 25-lap Late Model feature at Interstate 79 Speedway last Friday night.

Hitt had a good start on the evening as he won the heat race, but the inverted-12 start put him in the rear of the pack to work his way to the front. Chuck Howdershelt and Mike Hawkins were busy fighting for the lead. On lap 19, Hitt passed Hawkins for the lead while running the top groove.

Mike Smith was also running hard as he started 13th and came up to the second spot. Hawkins held on for third with Doug Horton and Chuck Harper in fourth and fifth. Rounding out the top 10 were Denny Chamberlain, Frank Wilson, Dave Groves, Paul Wilmoth, and Mike Benedum. Heats were taken by Hitt and Groves.

Having things his way in '94, Jerry Haseleu took home another win in the Semi-late field. Running away from the pack, Haseleu grabbed win number four over Scott Miles, Rick Strickler, Danny Hamrick, and Shawn Davis. Haseleu and Nolan Dalton won the heats.

Mike Wilson was victorious for the fourth time also this year as he took the checkered in the UMP Modified class. Clifton Cochran kept the pressure on Wilson all through the race but had to settle for second over Kim Ammons, Kevin Jones, and Steve Cooke. Heats were taken by Kenny Rogers, Cochran and Cooke.

Pure Stock driver Jim Byers found victory lane for the third time as he piloted his #68 for a win over Jay Martin, Jimmy Shaffer, Mike Cuppett, and Paul Watson. Byers' win added to his points lead in the Pure Stock division.

James Hurley, Sr. got his first win in the Four-Cylinder Stock class. Tommy Pennington and Ivan Wamsley battled hard for the second spot with Donnie Cutlip and Hayward Baker chasing.

This Friday night, Interstate 79 Speedway and Anthony Chevrolet present NASCAR driver Kenny Schrader, who will meet with the fans and then compete against the local late model drivers. Schrader has been in the top five in points for several weeks in the Winston Cup standings. Gates will open at 5:30 p.m. Racing gets underway at 8:00 p.m.

Interstate 79 Speedway is located at Exit 125 (Shinnston Saltwell Road), just south of Fairmont, W.Va. For more information, call 304-592-3200, or on race day 304-592-0916.

Tennis Tables Are Turned By Northern High School Netters

by Craig Speicher

Once probably the tamest tennis teams in western Maryland high school varsity history, the Northern High boys and girls turned the tables on many of their opponents this season. And, in the case of the Lady Huskies, one must wonder if they turned rabid (in the best sense of the word) as well.

Incredibly, until 1994, no Northern varsity tennis team ever had a winning season. The boys' team carried a particularly stinging stigma, unbelievably having never won a match in school history. The women were only a little better; last year they recorded two wins in nine matches. But all that changed this year.

The 1994 boys' team racked up six victories. But more remarkably, the Lady Huskies, hungry and hunting with fangs bared, recorded a 10-2 regular season, then bit and chewed their way to the Bi-County Tournament team championship. More impressively, every woman, in singles or doubles competition, ended the season with a winning record, most of them lop-sided: Alison Buckel, number two singles player, 11-1; Amy Giotfelly, number three, 9-3; freshman Jamie Jo Vent, number four, 10-2; Roxie Niner, co-number five, undefeated at 7-0; and in doubles, Lisa Stephens/Amy Giotfelly, 8-3. Also finishing with more regular season wins than losses were number one singles player Lisa Stephens, 7-5; co-number live player Jenny Theriot, 2-1; and Kandi Buckel/Kerry Sisler, 7-5 in doubles.

The above women, and varsity-players-in-development, were asked to explain their overnight change of fortune. Their responses follow: Lisa Stephens, this year's most outstanding senior female athlete, noted the "... total commitment from the coach [Linda Wengert Youmans]."

Senior Jenny Theriot said, "The excellent coaching that we've had this year has been the biggest contributor to our success. Mrs. Youmans forced us to work hard and be dedicated."

Glenda DeWitt, a freshman, stated, "We had really good sportsmanship this year. We all basically got along well and also cheered people on when they were down. The more you help someone, the better your return will be. I also feel that Mrs. Youmans did a great thing for us. She encouraged our enjoyment and our skills needed for this sport. She was always happy and there for us no matter if we won or lost."

Alison Buckel, a junior, added, "I think the difference between our team and previous teams is our attitude. We have a lot of spirit and always support each other. Our team this year had a lot more confidence which is reflected in our record."

"Our confidence has grown a lot since the earlier years of this team," said junior Amy Giotfelly.

Junior Kerri Sisler credited "... setting goals for ourselves that we worked hard to achieve."

All girls stressed the importance of early training and playing. Sophomore Jamie Settle wished she had "started playing tennis in middle school. I would have also attended camps to help my skills." Middle school experience means that "... not as much time has to be devoted to learning proper techniques" in high school, said Kerri Sisler, noting that middle school clinics have helped the Northern High volleyball program become so strong. Alison Buckel said, "If I would have begun practicing earlier, I would have had more confidence in my freshman and sophomore years."

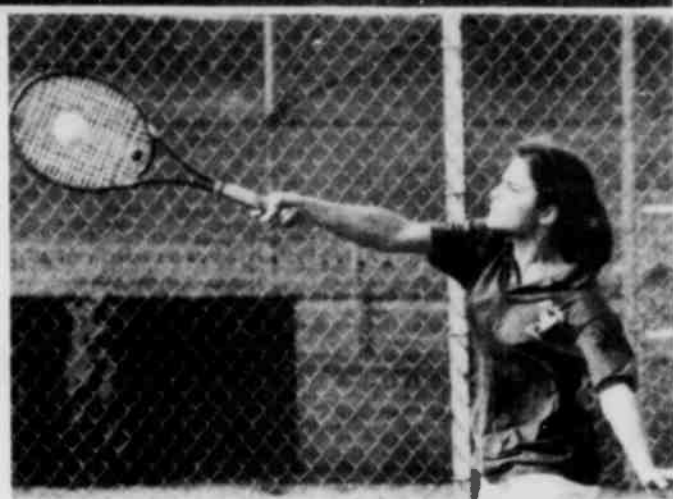

Training in the off season is important, too, said the players. Junior Roxanne Niner has gained experience in such competitions as the Grantsville Days Tennis Tournament. Lisa Stephens reported that "playing against people better than I" in the off-season has been especially helpful to her.

Jamie Jo Vent may be the epitome of the dedicated player; only a freshman, she attends a weekly tennis clinic and has also attended a "USA redevelopment camp," which goes a long way toward explaining her slightly precocious 10-2 regular season record this year. And Amy Giotfelly said she would "have even liked having a personal coach" in middle school.

As for next year, Glenda DeWitt stressed, "The need to always look ahead and quit looking back on any mistakes you made, the

As Amy Giotfelly put it, "We wanted to show our school and other schools that Northern tennis wasn't a joke. And this season we did just that."

by Harry Filemyr

The Deep Creek Yacht Racing Association began its 12-race June series last weekend. Winds were light and variable for all three races. These conditions can be trying, but allow the old, patient, and canny to compete with the young, quick, and strong.

In the Scot B fleet both Ed Peters and Barbara Elster had their regular crews (spouses) sidelined with achy joints. They teamed up to take two firsts and a second. In the first race they won by an astounding 17 minutes.

Keith Spinnenweber also had a good weekend with a first and two seconds, although he insists that he hates to sail in light air.

RESULTS:

Saturday first race
Lasers - Tom Johnson, first; Keith Spinnenweber, second; Dave Mahan, third.

Flying Scot A - Doug and Audrey MacMillan, first; John and Barbara Meredith, second; Bruce and Lauren Spinnenweber, third.

Flying Scot B - Ed Peters and Barbara Elster, first; Lynn and Jane Workmeister, second; Jeremy Frank and friend, third.

Saturday second race
Lasers - Keith Spinnenweber, first; Dave Mahan, second; Dan Rubel, third.

Flying Scot A - Jack and Sally Carpenter, first; Doug and Audrey MacMillan, second; John and Barbara Meredith, third.

Flying Scot B - Ed Peters and Barbara Elster, first; David and Monica Wible, second; Jeremy Frank and friend, third.

Sunday race
Lasers - Tom Johnson, first; Keith Spinnenweber, second; Kevin Rissell, third.

Flying Scot A - Dick and Sally Gregory, first; John and Barbara Meredith, second; Dan and Carol Muss, third.

Flying Scot B - Mo Wiley and Vicki Jeffrey, first; Ed Peters and Barbara Elster, second; John and Ann Rayne, third.

Northern Husky Alan Sebold Drafted By Baltimore Orioles

Alan Sebold, a three-year starting catcher for Coach Phil Carr's Northern High School Huskies and recently named Most Outstanding Senior Male Athlete at Northern, was notified this past weekend that he has been drafted by the Baltimore Orioles of the American Baseball League.

The 5-11, 175-pound senior received a call late Friday night from Jim Gilbert of the Orioles, who informed him he was picked up under a "draft and hold" arrangement, meaning that if Sebold decides to attend college for one year, his rights would remain with the Orioles following that college season.

Sebold has been watched by as many as 14 professional scouts, not only while playing for the Huskies, but also while playing in American Legion ball and at a Diamonds in the Rough baseball camp. He is also one of only 20 high school seniors from throughout the state named to Team Maryland, which will depart June 20 to compete in the Sunbelt Classic (June 20-26) in Oklahoma City. The Classic includes teams from a number of states, including California, Ohio, Kentucky, and Oklahoma.

The day before he leaves for Oklahoma City, Sebold will participate in the Crown All-Star game, to be played in Camden Yards, Baltimore, at 6 p.m. June 19. This contest pits the top 15 seniors from the northern part of the state against the top 15 from the southern part. Admission to the game is free.

Sebold led the Huskies this past season in at-bats with 74, in hits with 31, in RBI with 31, in runs scored with 34, in home runs with six, in triples with four, and in batting average with a sizzling .419.

While his offensive statistics are impressive, Coach Carr believes that his defensive skills and his unusually strong throwing arm is what really impressed the pro scouts.

"Alan's throw from home plate to second base, from the time the ball hits his glove, is a consistent 1.8 seconds," Carr said. "The best catchers in the majors throw at about 1.7 seconds, so he is right up there."

"He's also a real power hitter, too, though," Carr added, noting that Sebold is the first Northern Husky to be drafted out of high school since Vernon Snyder in the 1970s.

"I'm real proud of Alan for what he has accomplished," he said. "He has been a major part of our four straight playoff appearances. He deserves everything he is getting because he has really worked his tail off the past few years. His willingness to play 40 or 50 Legion games during the summer and attend camps down-state has really given him extra exposure to the scouts."

Sebold is currently playing for the Garrett County Legion team, as well as the Oakland Pen-Mar team. He has played the catcher position since his Little League days and was a key player for the Grantsville Bi-State Pony League squad.

Sebold was the winner of the Aaron Zumpano Memorial Award in being named Most Valuable Player for the Huskies. He also excelled in football and basketball, as he was named an All-State running back and All-Area running back in football and received the Most Rebounds award in basketball. Northern's football, basketball, and baseball teams were all ranked among the best teams in the area this past year, with Sebold among the senior leaders on each team.

The son of Gary and Judy Sebold, Grantsville, Alan is also an above-average student in the classroom.

It's been a real pleasure coaching Alan because he plays the game hard at all times," Coach Carr said. "His never-say-die attitude is what we expect as coaches. Alan has set the standard for our program, and hopefully we will have others follow him and maintain that standard."

Hill Tied For Seventh Place In Nationals

Mike Hill, a member of the Garrett Community College golf team, is currently tied for seventh place in the Division III National Junior College Golf Championships, being played this week at Bryan Park Golf Club in Greensboro, N.C.

Hill carded a 73 in the first round of the event on Tuesday, just three strokes back from the leader. He had some difficulties early in Wednesday's second round, but that entire round was finally cancelled because of rain. Play was slated to resume today in the four-round tournament.

The top 18 finishers in the tournament are named to the All-Tournament team, while the top 15 golfers receive All-American status.

Providing financial support to Hill for his trip to the nationals include Wheeler Stewart, pro at the Oakland Golf Club; Barbara Ward, the Oakland Golf Club Ladies Association; and the OGC's seniors group known as Charlie's Angels.

Hill, a graduate of Southern High School, is a resident of Mtn. Lake Park.

Baseball Camp Slated At GCC

Garrett Community College's baseball camp, called the "School of Hard Knocks," has been scheduled for three different weeks at three separate locations this summer, according to Director Ed Wildesen, head baseball coach.

The camp will be held June 27-July 1, at the Oakland Little League Park in Broadford Park for boys and girls ages 5-12. From July 11-15, the camp will be held at Accident Park for ages 5-12. The camp for ages 13-18 will be held at GCC during the week of August 8-12. The camp will run from 9 a.m. to noon each day.

The fee for the baseball camp is $50, with discounts given to families with two or more participants and teams with 10 or more players registering.

Interested persons may obtain registration forms from Coach Wildesen at GCC, 301-387-3025.

Walleye Fishing Tourney Cancelled

The Walleye Night Fishing Tournament, scheduled for June 18-19, and sponsored by Garrett Bassers Club, has been cancelled. The club wishes to express its appreciation to all sponsors and contestants who have supported the tournament in the past.

THE WINNING TEAM in the first Garrett County Girls' Soccer Tournament, held Sunday in Grantsville, was this team from Berlin, Pa., which edged the Morgantown Manchester United Soccer Club, 1-0 in overtime. Other teams participating were from Rockwood, Pa., another team from Morgantown, and the host Grantsville team. Berlin also scored shutout victories over Grantsville, 4-0, and Morgantown B, 2-0. Tournament officials want to make the tournament an annual event, and noted that girls' soccer is the fastest growing sport in the United States. They said that Frostburg State and West Virginia universities are adding women's soccer this coming season for the first time. Ray Kiddy, coach of the new FSU team, was at the Grantsville tournament. Pictured above, from left, seated, are: Susan Gardner, Brandy Martin, Michelle Grasser, Krista Webreck, Amanda Ferre, Jennifer Nalich, and Kelly Murphy. Standing, same order, are: Coach Jim Broderick, Tessa McCormick, Heather Grenke, Dawnysel Granke, Jill Grasser (who scored the winning goal in the title game), Jessica Martin, Kara Webreck, and Coach Brett Straight.

How To Watch A Soccer Game

by Dave Spirk

Assuming you read Part I of this series last week, you've probably made a couple bucks on bets with cohorts and relatives. They probably wondered how you got so smart so fast. Well, "they ain't seen nothin' yet!" Just wait until you sit down to watch some of the 82 televised games and share just how much you know about the rules of soccer.

That's what we'll touch on today. These rules are called:

Laws of the Game

Law 1: Field of Play - Most World Cup games this year will be played on a standard size field 75 yards wide and 115 yards long. Other key field markings include the center circle (used to mark distance for opponents at the start of play), corner arcs (where the ball must be placed to start play from a corner kick), the goal area (a 6x20 yard area where the ball is placed to start play from a goal kick and a contact free zone for the goalie), and a penalty area (an 18x44 yard area where the goalie may use his hands to catch the ball, and the zone where any major foul by a defender results in a penalty kick, similar to a foul shot, for the offensive team). Flags, which may not be removed, always mark the corners of the field.

Law 2: The Ball - It has to be round and meet weight and size guidelines.

Law 3: Number of Players - Each team has 11 players one of whom must be designated as goalie. Substitutions are limited to two per game and can only occur when play is stopped, the referee is notified, and approves the action.

Law 4: Players' Equipment - Uniforms must be significantly different from the opponents and all must match your teammates. However, the goalie's uniform must be distinctly different from either team's colors and style. (No problem here! These guys are usually flashy personalities who thrive on being unique.)

Players usually wear cleated shoes. Shinguards are the only mandatory safety equipment.

Law 5: Referee and Law 6: Linesmen will be covered in the last part of this series of articles.

Law 7: Duration of the Game - Two 45-minute halves. The clock never stops (That means no commercial breaks to run to the fridge!) Time is officially kept on the field by the referee who may add time because of injuries which stop play or misconduct of players who waste time.

Law 8: Start of Play - The ball must be kicked forward at least one rotation to start play at the beginning of the game, after half-time, and following a goal score. Following a foul, it can be kicked in any direction. The ball must be touched by any other player before it can be touched again by the person who started play. Sometimes a drop ball is used, following a foul, but this is very rare.

Law 9: Ball In and Out of Play - The entire ball must be over a boundary line to be considered in or out of play. (Just "breaking the plane of the line" does not apply.)

Law 10: Method of Scoring - The whole ball must cross the goal line between the eight-yard-wide goal posts and

Food For Thought
by
Chef Francesco Pisano
McClive's Restaurant

You'll love green fettuccini tossed with shrimp, fennel and sun-dried tomatoes. Sauté shrimp first, then set aside and sauté fennel with dried hot pepper, add tomatoes, garlic, and a bottle of clam juice. Return shrimp and pasta to the pot. Toss, and wow!

Some smart home bakers have discovered ice cream scoops to measure dough. The scoop #10 holds just enough for a muffin or cupcake. Half a cup of the #40 helps make big, all-the-same-size cookies.

Quick dessert idea - kiwi purée. Be careful not to overprocess the fruit in a blender or food processor, or the crushed seeds will leave a bitter taste. Nice over pound cake or fresh fruit.

For flavor and color add chopped plum tomatoes to vinaigrette dressing. Shake it in a jar or buzz in the blender.

Diet note - when a recipe calls for butter, substitute olive oil for half the amount. You'll cut saturated fat by 50 percent - and still enjoy the buttery flavor.

Wanting your diet? You want to be sure what you eat is delicious - and healthy! We fill the bill at

White Files For Mtn. Lake Park Town Council

Patricia S. White recently filed with the town of Mountain Lake Park for one of the three positions on the town council.

Having lived in Mountain Lake Park since 1957, Mrs. White is currently the president of the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club, secretary of Garrett Temple #17, Daughters and former district deputy chair of SALT (Seniors And Lawmen Together) member and past president of Garrett County Business and Professional Women, president elect (currently secretary) of Proctor Kidlow Post 71 American Legion Auxiliary, treasurer of the Garrett County Republican Central Committee, associate member of Lodge 99 Fraternal Order of Police, and a member of the Oakland Rotary.

devote to some of the problems of Mtn. Lake Park," Mrs. White said. "I understand the desire of the community to keep the historic homes, but I also understand that we must move into the 21st century with the rest of Maryland and the country."

The candidate is the mother of one son and two daughters, and has seven grandchildren.

Baltimore Symphony Orchestra Coming To Frostburg State

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra will make a visit to Frostburg State University on Friday, July 1. The world-class orchestra will perform in the University's newly opened Performing Arts Center with a program that features soloist Henri-Paul Siesic. The classical concert is free; however, tickets will be required.

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra enters its ninth year under the leadership of Music Director David Zinman with the start of the 1993-94 concert season. The partnership with Zinman has brought the orchestra growing acclaim as one of America's premier orchestras, a reputation enhanced by the winning of a Grammy Award in 1990.

Beyond these recognized musical achievements, the Zinman-Baltimore alliance has garnered widespread attention for successfully communicating to listeners of all ages. Innovative broadcast series on American Public Radio, fun and informative new concert formats, as well as educational and community outreach activities have served as models for, and been adapted by, orchestras across the country.

The Friday night performance which begins at 6:30 p.m. will feature Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 3 in A minor, opus 56, Scottish Symphony; Rossini's La Scala di Sera Overture; and Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E minor, opus 11 with featured soloist Henri-Paul Siesic.

Siesic, an international soloist and chamber musician, is presently on the faculty at FSU. His honors include the First Grand Prix de la Ville de Nice and the Prize for the Highest Level of Achievement in Music at Rice University where he recently received his doctorate. He has performed extensively in Europe, the United States, and Canada.

The featured soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4 with the MSO, Siesic has also performed with the Maryland Symphony Orchestra, Orchestre Philharmonique de Nice, Shepherd School Symphony Orchestra, and Pasadena Philharmonic Orchestra.

Associate Conductor David Lockington will be conducting the program. Lockington regularly conducts the BSO and participates in a full range of other musical and administrative activities through the year. A 36-year-old native of Great Britain, Lockington has, over the past 15 years, developed an impressive conducting career in the United States, especially in the west. With the

TCK Enterprises

"From an oil change to an overhaul" is the motto of TCK Enterprises, a full-service shop offering all types of vehicle repair.

TCK Enterprises, owned by Tom and Carol Kenney, is located on Rt. 135, 2 1/2 miles from Bloomington on Bloomington mountain.

The Kenneys stress that they are a full-service shop, and have recently purchased a Snap-On computer scanner to cover GM, Ford and Chrysler products as well as most imports.

TCK also offers heavy equipment repair, and has the equipment to custom make hydraulic hoses, with a service truck that will remove and repair a damaged hydraulic line on the job site.

Welding is done in the shop or in the field, and aluminum welding is available at the shop, as well.

Kenney has an extensive amount of experience as a welder and mechanic. He has worked for coal and construction companies and several auto repair shops. He says he has come to find computerized vehicles very challenging.

The shop is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. The shop number is 301-359-9545, or they can be under the eight-foot-high crossbar to score one point. (There is usually a net attached to the goal posts and the ball is a whole lot larger than a hockey puck so it's easy to see and very exciting when it happens.)

Law 11, Off-side - This is a position penalty similar to that of hockey. In soccer, this call is the most controversial because it relates to the position of a player at the time the ball is played. (Usually a linesman initiates this call.)

Simply stated, the Law says that any player who does not have possession of the ball must have at least two defenders between himself and the goal. It is not a penalty just to be in this position unless there is a pass to the player or if, in the opinion of the referee, he interferes in any way with the play as a result of his offside position.

Law 12, Fouls and Misconduct - This Law defines fouls and misconduct that sometimes occur. There is to be no pushing, holding, striking, touching the ball with the hands (except for the goalie in the penalty area). A player is not allowed to kick, trip, or jump toward another player. A player is not allowed to charge another from behind, nor may he charge unfairly. (Any contact that is shoulder to shoulder is considered a legal charge and is allowed.) Players may not dissent with the calls of the referee, conduct themselves in an ungentlemanly manner, persist in fouling others (even if it is unintentional), or enter the field of play without the permission of the referee. The referee will decide what types of free kick will be awarded to the offended. For more serious fouls, he may give the person who commits the foul a yellow card ("caution") - two of these and you're out of the game or a red card which means an immediate ejection. When a person is ejected, the team is not allowed to substitute for him; they must play short-handed the remainder of the game. Furthermore, anyone who is ejected may not play in the next regularly scheduled game.

Law 13, Free Kick - When there are fouls or misconduct, a free kick is awarded. The referee will tell the players whether it will be a direct kick which can be shot straight at the goal, or an indirect kick which must be touched by any two players before it can go into the goal. In either case, opponents must be at least 10 yards from where the ball is spotted unless it is closer than 10 yards to the goal.

Law 14, Penalty Kick - If a foul is committed in the large boxed area in front of the goal, a penalty kick is awarded. This allows only a shooter and a goalie to be involved in a shot at the goal. All other players must be at least 10 yards away.

Law 15, Throw-In - When a ball goes out of play, it must be restarted with a throw-in. This must be thrown with the player facing the field, both feet on the ground, and two hands over the head so the ball doesn't spin excessively.

Law 16, Goal Kick - When the ball is last touched by the offensive team and it goes over the goal line, but not into the net for a score, the defending team gets to kick it back into play. The ball may be placed anywhere in the goal area and must completely leave the penalty area before it can be touched by another player.

Law 17, Corner Kick - When the ball is last touched by a defensive player and it goes over the goal line, but not into the net for a score, then the offensive team gets to kick it back into play from the corner of the field nearest to where it went out.

That's all there is to it. Seventeen things to know, but only 10 to remember so you can understand what's going on. In the next part of this series, we'll help you understand the players' positions and a little bit about strategy.

11.6 million cats and dogs were turned in to animal shelters last year.

PRE-NATAL CARE IS IMPORTANT

When a woman knows she is to become a mother, she should immediately consult a physician. His examination includes a study of her blood and its pressure, a urinalysis for disclosing possible kidney inflammation or diabetes, and a physical examination to insure a safe birth.

He will advise the proper diet and prescribe the necessary vitamins and minerals which help both mother and the coming baby. We welcome prospective mothers and appreciate the opportunity to serve.

COFFEE, TEA AND CORNPLASTERS...

There aren't many of us left who remember Sixbey's General Store. It was more than a store; it was a gathering place, a new bureau, a bright spot in a child's summer afternoon. You would come in from the hot dusty street, and the shaded store was cool. Immediately you encountered a tantalizing blend of scents—apples, licorice, spices and smoked ham. Grown-up conversation enhanced your feeling of excitement as they viewed and reviewed town happenings. You always took a long time to decide between a chocolate or a lemon drop, so that this exciting visit could be prolonged.

Our town has changed since then. For those of us whose memories linger in Sixbey's Store, it hardly seems the same place.

Yet, one thing is the same. At the corner of Elm and Main, St. Mark's steeple still points skyward. Our need for God never changes. And the Church remains constant as it teaches the truths of God's love and presence. Why not see for yourself this week?

THE RIGHT STUFF

June 12, 1994

Devotional Reading: Exodus 3:16

Some years ago, Tom Wolfe wrote a best-selling book, The Right Stuff, about the early years of the American space program and the test pilots and astronauts who had "the right stuff" to make it work. The book, and later the 1983 motion picture, gave us a glimpse into the careful screening that enabled the space agency to choose the right men—and ultimately women, too—for these critical tasks.

But painstakingly careful selection is not always successful. Sometimes, no matter how much potential people may seem to have, they turn out not to have been the right people for the job. Intelligence, education, experience, aptitude do not guarantee that someone will have the "right stuff" for a particular job. I have seen more than a few highly qualified persons fail and also witnessed the success of people who didn't appear to have the "right stuff."

Often, we are also wrong when we judge our own competence for doing a job, particularly a job that God wants us to do. In concluding that we are not the right person for the job—helping another person, working against injustice, speaking out for righteousness, etc., heading up a project—reason is usually on our side. We don't have the experience, the education, or the personality that seems to be required.

MOSES' INADEQUACY

This was the response of Moses at the burning bush experience when God said to him, "Come, I will send you to Pharaoh that you may bring forth my people out of Egypt" (3:10). Up to that point it must have been a fascinating experience—a bush that burned but was not consumed, a heavenly voice speaking from it, the discovery that this was the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the Lord's assurance that he has "seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt" and the promise that "I have come down to deliver them out, and to bring them out of that land to a good and broad land...flowing with milk and honey..." (1:7, 8).

But then the Lord added, "Come, I will send you to Pharaoh..." and Moses had a reality attack. Suddenly he was consumed with logic: "Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh, and bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt?" (1:10). Let's be fair, Moses was right. Logically he was the wrong choice for this job: the people of Israel would not accept him because of his Egyptian background and he was a fugitive from the Pharaoh's law. Clearly, he did

BY JOHN CROOK

The late artist and cult figure Andy Warhol once suggested that in contemporary culture everyone will be famous for 15 minutes.

"After the Headlines," an hour-long NBC special airing Tuesday, June 14, examines what happens after a person's 15 minutes are up.

"Tonya Harding is a perfect example," says host Kathleen Sullivan. "I mean, we've lived with this girl for months, and all of a sudden, the cameras are gone! Her next live to seven years are going to be fascinating."

Sullivan explains the NBC special is divided into five segments focusing on five major news stories of the 20th century, then it lets the main figures in those stories bring the viewer up to date on his or her life after fame. She declines to identify the personalities involved, explaining NBC fears the daily and weekly news publications might try to scoop its special.

"I could mention every one of these and you would immediately know, right off the top of your head, who they were," Sullivan says. "I think you're going to be surprised at your memories of these people."

"It's kind of a fun thing, like 'Where are they now?' I could mention names, and you might go, 'Oh yeah, whatever happened to her?' 'Oh, she's dead.' 'No, she isn't, we heard she da-da-da-da-da.' It's that kind of discussion."

"We take you to these people's lives, where they are now. It gives us an understanding of what happened 20 years ago, 50 years ago, seven years ago," she says, "because they have now a most interesting perspective now that they've been out of the limelight. They have a really great understanding." Sullivan laughs heartily at the fact that, before she recently became a leading spokeswoman for Weight-Watchers, she herself was practically a candidate for a where-is-she-now program. "Headlines" marks her first return to network television since she lost her co-anchor job on "CBS Morning News" in 1990. She says she hasn't really missed broadcast journalism.

"I saw things differently than a lot of my colleagues did," she reflects. "I wanted to do television that spoke to the best interests of people. I wanted to do something that just felt really good. And everything that came along was something that I really didn't want anything to do with. This is wonderful. It speaks to the best in us. Not our mistakes. It speaks to our hopes, a little our fears, but it gives you such a good feeling about who we are, as men and women."

"You know what else is great? It's real family television because it's going to give children a little understanding of what their parents saw."

"After the Headlines" has a more-than-a-one-shot whiff about it, and Sullivan confirms, "This is a pilot. We'll see what happens."

If the show does spawn a series, she'd love to be along for the ride, she says. "I am just so pleased that I could come on board to a project that speaks to the best in people," she reiterates. "It's just so wonderful."

'P.O.V.' film examines 'ex-gay' movement

BY JOHN CROOK

"P.O.V." (for "point of view"), the PBS documentary series, never has shied away from controversy. Only a year ago "Silverlake Life: The View From Here" presented a portrait of the final days of a gay couple stricken with AIDS. That offering recently garnered the prestigious Peabody Award.

If "Silverlake Life" was a hot potato, a new entry, "One Nation Under God," is practically radioactive: The 90-minute program, airing on Tuesday, June 14 (check local listings), examines the so-called "ex-gay" movement, a campaign by various groups to "cure" homosexuality.

In the introduction to the piece, filmmaker Teodoro Maniaci says "One Nation" began as research he was doing for a fictional screenplay. A colleague, Francine Rzeznik, joined him on the project after she convinced him no one would believe what he had turned up if he wrote it as a feature film.

And, indeed, "One Nation Under God" offers a rare examination of the history of what is by nature a very personal and emotional debate within the church and psychiatric communities. It also poses some provocative questions about why gays and lesbians are being asked to change in the first place.

Punctuated by archival documentaries that now seem about as factual as "Reefer Madness," Maniaci and Rzeznik's film gives both sides of the issue ample time to state their cases. On one side are executives and founders of an "ex-gay" organization called Exodus International, who maintain that they only try to help unhappy homosexuals who want to change their orientation. Countering them are Michael Bussee and Gary Cooper, two other Exodus co-founders who fell in love with each other and are now "former ex gays." It's a provocative 90 minutes all around.

Sunday, June 12, abounds with more conventional escapist fare. Diane Keaton makes a rare TV appearance in TNT's original movie "Amelia Earhart: The Final Flight," opposite the made-for-showtime "Past Tense," starring Scott Glenn. A&E runs "The Jericho Mile," a superior 1979 TV movie that earned an Emmy for Peter Strauss.

Fox offers the big ticket E! meets-Flipper thriller "The ABC's of Manic Pixie Dream Machine," June 13. Brendan Fraser and Chris O'Donnell star in "School Ties," a movie about anti-Semitism, Saturday, June 18, on HBO.

'Amelia Earhart' flies high on TNT

BY SUZANNE GILL

Why did Amelia Earhart, who had already set a world's record for flying across the Atlantic Ocean and back, want to risk a near-impossible flight around the world in a plane she hardly knew? It was exasperating to Paul Mantz, who would have to train her to fly the skitish, two-engine Electra.

"Why the hell are you doing this?" he asks. "Because I'm a lousy cook," is the flat, smart reply.

The scene is from "Amelia Earhart: The Final Flight," starring Diane Keaton in a role that fits like a glove, or a pair of tailored pants — the type that Earhart made popular. Debuting Sunday, June 12, on TNT, this is the first film biography of the world's most famous aviatrix. Though the end of her life is still clouded in speculation, "Amelia Earhart" is a witty and inspiring celebration of the woman behind the legend.

The script, by Anna Sandor, is humorous, scholarly and elegant. Yves Simoneau's direction seems effortless. The flying sequences, the costumes, the newsreel re-creations and the score (by George S. Clinton) are all top drawer.

Orbiting Keaton are co-stars Rutger Hauer and Bruce Dern. Hauer brings warmth to the role of Fred Noonan, Earhart's navigator and partner on the ill-fated flight. Dern plays Earhart's promoter and husband, publisher George Putnam.

"I'm one of the first guys ever to be on the screen (as) the guy behind the woman," Dern says. "Where do you see that in a movie?"

Amelia Earhart was a lousy cook and only an above-average flier. It was her dreams that took her where no one had been before.

Bruce Dern stars with Diane Keaton in the title role in "Amelia Earhart: The Final Flight." The film premieres Sunday on TNT.

TIME OUT

World Cup comes to town — nine towns

BY SARA BENNETT

The sight of transplanting about 6 million pounds of sod inside the Pontiac Silverdome would make even the boldest of earthworms stay away.

Such was the case in April 1993, when turf farm grown California grass was shipped to the Silverdome outside Detroit in preparation for the 1994 World Cup.

Once the grass, in metal flats, was placed on top of the indoor stadium's artificial turf (a condition the Silverdome had to abide by), one concern remained: Could the grass withstand the stress of stomping feet and diving bodies inherent in the game of soccer?

Not just a soccer, mind you. World Cup soccer — the event the world, and the United States in particular, has been waiting for.

Nine cities are host to the 52 total games between June 17 and July 17: Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles, Orlando, Fla., New York/New Jersey, Washington, San Francisco, Boston and Detroit, whose Pontiac Silverdome becomes the first indoor venue to ever be used in World Cup competition.

Friday kicks off first round matches on ESPN — Germany vs. Bolivia and Spain vs. South Korea on ESPN2, with a tape-delay showing on ESPN.

In all, ESPN will broadcast 41 games, most of them live. ESPN2 will carry three live games and two taped.

ABC chips in with 11 live games, including the first airing of a U.S. team game, vs. Switzerland, Saturday, June 18. Two additional games involving the U.S. can be seen Wednesday, June 22, on ESPN (vs. Colombia) and Sunday, June 26, on ABC (vs. Romania).

ESPN airs other opening round Saturday games: Italy vs. Ireland — one of the most exciting in the first round, and Colombia vs. Romania.

Other inspired games may come from Brazil vs. Russia on Monday, June 20, and Belgium vs. the Netherlands, Sunday, June 25.

Expect a slew of commentators to call the action on the three participating networks.

ESPN features six play-by-play/analyst teams: Rick Davis, Ly Keough, Ron Newman and Peter Vermees, all analysts, are former players.

ESPN's Bob Ley, Bob Carpenter, Jim Donovan, Randy Hahn, Ian Darke, Roger Twibell, Clive Charles, Bill McDermott and Seamus Mallon have extensive soccer commentary experience.

Twibell, Mallon and Davis will also work on ABC's sidelines with Al Trautwig. Jim McKay will serve as studio host.

SOAP TALK

Headley takes extended maternity leave

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I'm writing about two of my favorite shows, "All My Children" and "Days of Our Lives."

Boy, the writers for "AMC" must be crazy to bring back Janet Green (Robin Mattson). She is a murderer and has done every wrong thing a person could do, and she still did not have to spend any time at all in prison for her crimes. If they let her fall in love with Trevor, I'm not sure how much longer I will be able to watch the show.

I would also like to know what happened to Mimi and Derek. I loved their story line. I hope she has not left the show. I really hope that Erica and Dimitri will get back together. I think it would help the show.

Now for "Days." I think the characters Bo (Robert Kelker-Kelly) and Billie (Lisa Rinna) are so silly together. They act like children instead of grown adults.

And could you please tell me how Vivian (Louise Sorel) got away with everything she did and didn't spend a day in prison? I can't understand why the character Ivan will do whatever Vivian wants. The writers just take these story lines too far — Dora Johnson, Lebanon, Tenn.

Dear Reader: It is amazing how closely the soaps are following real-life travesties of justice. Look at all the people who have committed crimes and have been set free by the criminal justice system in the last year.

In answer to your question about Shari Headley (Mimi), the actress asked to be let go because she wanted to take an extended maternity leave. At the time this story went to press, her baby had not been born.

Dear Candace: Could you please tell me why the wonderful actress who plays Wanda on "One Life to Live" was fired? Wanda has always been one of my favorite characters on the show.

She wasn't killed off, so she could return. I wondered if she might come back. I miss that dose of reality she gave the show. —S.J., Denison, Texas.

Dear Reader: Marilyn Chris (Wanda) was not fired. Her departure was her own idea. Chris decided it was time to move on to other projects. She felt she had become too comfortable in the role, and she wanted to challenge herself more. A source close to the show says that the door has been left open for Chris' return.

Lions, a flying tigress, bare beauties lead week

BY SUZANNE GILL

"A chance to travel and see all kinds of nice places" was what one young nurse expected when she volunteered for service during the Vietnam War.

Sunday, June 12, TBS' "National Geographic Explorer" shows what a different reality awaited her and thousands of others in "Vietnam: The Women Who Served."

Diane Keaton fits the title role of "Amelia Earhart: The Final Flight" to perfection, breathing life into an icon whose independence inspired a generation. Bruce Dern plays Earhart's cheerleading husband, publisher George Putnam, and Rutger Hauer co-stars as Fred Noonan, the navigator who accompanied her on the fateful 1937 flight around the world. The film debuts Sunday on TNT.

World Cup Soccer competition begins Friday, June 17, on ESPN. Germany and Bolivia collide in Chicago. ESPN carries 30 more games in June.

Kathy Ireland, Rachel Hunter and Vendella are among the models who see America first in the USA Network's Sunday special, "Sports Illustrated Swimsuit USA: America's Beautiful." There's sure to be plenty of scenery for everyone.

"Lie Down With Lions," a four-hour dramatization of Ken Follet's novel, debuts Sunday on Lifetime. Marg Helgenberger stars as a nurse who follows her socialist suitor (Nigel Havers) to Azerbaijan after discovering that her lover (Timothy Dalton) does dirt for the CIA. It's like they said in "Cas-

Not since "Bambi" has a Walt Disney film used animal characters exclusively. So The Disney Channel is giving "The Lion King," the studio's summer release, a big send-off Sunday with "The Making of The Lion King."

Is there life after "L.A. Law"? Apparently Sheila Kelley and A Martinez have found it in the USA movie "Deconstructing Sarah," debuting Thursday, June 16. Kelley plays the title role of a promiscuous career gal who may have met her match in a trucker (Martinez) with bad intentions.

Commission On Neighborhoods To Hold Meetings

The Maryland Commission on Neighborhoods will host four regional meetings throughout the state over the next few months. These meetings will provide citizens, neighborhood leaders and neighborhood organizations with the opportunity to voice their views on the vitality and decline, the strengths, and weaknesses of their neighborhoods and other neighborhoods in Maryland. These meetings are open to the public. Everyone with an interest in the well-being of their community is encouraged to attend the meeting scheduled in his or her area.

The Commission on Neighborhoods is comprised of 30 members. Of these 30 people, there are 21 community leaders, four members of the General Assembly, and five ex-officio representatives from state agencies. The co-chairs of the Commission on Neighborhoods are Senator Larry Young of Baltimore City and Paul C. Brophy, a Maryland based, private sector housing consultant.

"The goal of the Commission is to examine the conditions of urban, suburban and rural neighborhoods across the state, and identify common factors that will support and strengthen our neighborhoods," said Young.

"The Commission consists of the Urban, Suburban, and Small Towns and Rural Neighborhoods committees," said Jacqueline H. Rogers, secretary for DIICD. "These committees are hosting the four regional meetings that will focus on successful neighborhoods and grassroots solutions to neighborhood problems," she added.

The second meeting will be held on Thursday, June 23, Allegany County Administration Building, Council Room, 701 Kelly Road, Cumberland, at 1 p.m.

Anyone interested in attending should come prepared to offer insightful information about his or her neighborhood and surrounding communities. Participants will be asked about the reasons for the success or failure of their neighborhood, assets and liabilities of their neighborhood, and state policies or initiatives that could improve the quality of life in their neighborhood.

Data collected from the regional meetings will be used to provide information for the Commission's Neighborhood Summit. This event will be held in Baltimore sometime in the fall. The Summit will serve as a vehicle for sharing information on successful Maryland neighborhoods. It will also serve as a call to action, out of which will come programmatic and legislative recommendations for strengthening the health of neighborhoods, and helping to correct and prevent many social problems.

Promotions For Camping At State Park Announced

Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary Torrey C. Brown, M.D., announced recently that Deep Creek Lake State Park is offering new camping promotions for the 1994 season which are designed to increase camping at Deep Creek Lake State Park by offering reduced savings, package deals, and by providing new innovative concepts in overnight outdoor accommodations.

The park is offering a seven day camping special for $75, which is a $38 savings over regular nightly fees. In order to take advantage of this savings plan, visitors must include both Friday and Saturday night in the seven-day visit.

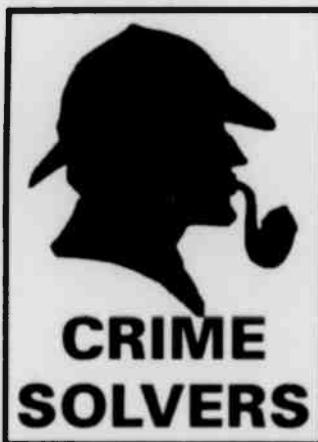

In addition, Deep Creek Lake State Park announces the completion of the "Bear Den," a three-sided adirondack style shelter complete with wooden floor, fireplace, and roof, providing extra shelter and convenience for campers. This concept provides increased comfort and is especially suited for the novice camper. The "Bear Den" is available Sunday through Thursday for $25 per night and $30 per night on Friday, Saturday and holidays.

In order to provide additional camping opportunities, pets will now be allowed on certain campsites. Twelve sites have been set aside for campers with pets on a reserved basis. This will allow those persons with pets the opportunity to camp at Deep Creek Lake State Park. Although pets are permitted, certain restrictions will apply. Pet owners are asked to contact the park headquarters at (301) 387-5563 for reservations and more information.

TOP DOG!

AMERICANS BIG ON HOT DOGS

From coast-to-coast, Americans enjoy hot dogs, especially during the summer season. Nothing's better than the great taste of a juicy and flavorful grilled hot dog. When it comes to topping then hot dogs, Americans are big on ketchup, mustard and relish. Chili, cheese and onions are also tops in the topping department. These traditional favorites are always crowd pleasers. But, this summer hot dog lovers may want to treat themselves, family and friends to something special.

It's easy to take a break from the ordinary with a variety of tasty toppers that pair ingredients in new and surprisingly delicious ways. Start with a classic hot dog one that's plump, zesty and made for grilling, such as Oscar Mayer® preference and the hot dog variety. For instance, barbecue sauce can be paired with Big & Juicy Hot 'N' Spicy Hot Dogs, while jalapeno peppers go perfectly with the Smokie Link variety. The creative use of fresh produce and everyday pantry and refrigerator staples make it simple for you to be top dog when grilling this summer.

Try one of these four hot dog topping ideas based on the condiment preferences of Americans in different regions of the country. Or, experiment with your own unique condiment combinations. A handy tip is to make sure to have a package of hot dogs in the refrigerator so you're always ready for a fun, quick summer meal.

WESTERN ROAST

Yellow, red and green peppers, that have been roasted, make a colorful and flavorful hot dog accompaniment. To roast peppers, place peppers on a broiler pan rack and broil 4" from the heat, turning often about 20 min. until blackened on all sides. Transfer the peppers to a paper bag and close the bag. Peel the peppers when they are cool enough to handle.

- 1 package (16 ounces)
Oscar Mayer Big & Juicy
Smokie Link Hot Dogs

peppers, roasted, peeled and seeded
- 1/4 cup chopped red onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 fresh jalapeno on package.

- Slice peppers into strips;
mix with onion, garlic and jalapeno.
- Top hot dogs with pepper mixture. Makes 1 1/3 cups.

A dozen Oscar Mayer Hotdoggers™ are chosen each year to bring miles of smiles as they drive the Wienermobile across the country. They serve as goodwill ambassadors as they pilot the unique, highly mobile, 23 ft. long fiberglass hot dog on wheels.

MIDWESTERN GARDEN

Enjoy the bounty of summer produce as a fresh topping idea. It's as simple as chopping tomatoes, cucumbers, radishes and green onions and using one of the many varieties of bottled ranch or cucumber salad dressings available.

GC Commission For Women Sets Primary Goal

The newly established Garrett County Commission for Women has set as its primary goal the establishment of a shelter for abused women and children who are victims of domestic violence. According to Phyllis Trickett, chairperson, there is no facility to house such victims in this area. Currently, these victims are transported to shelters outside of Garrett County.

Frances Callis, director of Domestic Violence Sexual Assault Resource Center, stated that in 1993, 92 primary victims of domestic violence reported to that office. Of these victims, 36 women and 43 children could have possibly utilized a shelter in the county. Five victims were actually sheltered in local motels and nine others were assisted to a shelter in Allegany County. The office also assisted 15 secondary victims, who are family members of the abusers. A total of 142 victims were provided counseling.

"A shelter for battered women and children is definitely needed in Garrett County. We believe if battered women knew they had a place for themselves and their children to stay temporarily where they would be safe, many more would take steps to possibly prevent further abuse in their lives and the lives of their children," Callis said.

The Commission for Women was established to benefit women and children in Garrett County. Its current members are Phyllis Trickett, chairperson; Earleena Tressler, Frances Callis, Daryl Walters, Pam Nelson, Debbie Hollar, Beverly Beard, Deanna Groves, Donna Shafer, Bonnie Tucker, Sue Sines, and Susan Athey-Oxford.

LOGGING THE DAY is the title of the artwork shown above with artists Randy B. Williams and Jeannie Kuhn, Independence, W.Va. Their exhibit of wood sculptures, wood cut prints, and paintings are currently on exhibit at The Windrush Gallery in Friendsville. A reception, open to the public, is set for 7-9 p.m. this evening, and the show runs through June 28.

W.Va. Artists Displaying Work At Windrush Gallery

A collaborative art exhibit is being presented by The Windrush Gallery in Friendsville, and artists Jeannie Kuhn and Randy Williams of Independence, W.Va.

The exhibit, titled "Images from Wastewood Studio," gets underway this evening, from 7-9 p.m., with an opening reception at the gallery. Kuhn and Williams create a diverse collection of paintings, wood cut prints, and wood sculptures from old chestnut logs.

One of the works featured in the exhibit is an 11-foot totem pole titled "Logging the Day." This piece is created from a hollow chestnut log, decorated with carvings. It is lit from the inside, and the light shining through the knot holes and cracks combines with the carved images and natural textures of the wood to "create a powerful piece that explores light, dark, life, and death," according to Williams.

Kuhn and Williams are accomplished award-winning artists, with numerous showings at the regional and national level. Their art has been shown in 20 juried and solo exhibitions, including The Carnegie Museum of Art, Pittsburgh; The Stifel Fine Arts Center, Wheeling, W.Va.; and the Sunrise Art Museum and The Department of Culture and History, Charleston, W.Va.

The public is invited to attend the opening reception this evening, or visit the show during its stay at the gallery, through June 28, from noon until 7 p.m., Friday through Monday. For more information, persons may call Carol Calhoun at The Windrush Gallery, 746-4083.

Refund Checks Are All Mailed To Taxpayers

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said all state income tax refund checks have been issued except those involving problems that must be resolved by checking information provided by the taxpayer against other data. About 1.4 million refund checks were sent as of June 2, 1994, or 50,000 more than at the same time last year. The average check amount is $423, compared with $387 at the same time last year. The comptroller said approximately 80,000 refund checks were issued over the Memorial Day weekend.

Between 60% and 70% of income tax refunds were issued to taxpayers in the normal time frames, if not faster, and the final refund checks should go out earlier than in prior years.

The comptroller noted that the state's new data imaging system was not a cause for delays in refunds. "In fact, the imaging system, which scans the information into the computer from the tax return itself, exceeded expectations, and we completed the job of capturing the data from tax returns about two weeks earlier than in years when we relied on the old keypunch method," he said.

A key problem in processing tax returns has been reconciling addresses submitted by taxpayers on their returns with addresses already on the state's files. Because the Comptroller's Office distributes the local income tax to Maryland's local governments based on where a taxpayer lives, it is vitally important that the address information be correct. The problems with addresses should not occur in future years, however, because once the address data is verified this year,

MSgt. Weeks Retires After 42 Years Of Service

Corps of Engineers, the Bloomington Dam project, again with the Army Corps of Engineers, the Southern High School ball field project, and an LPW compound for the 200th MP company. Additionally, Weeks has been involved with the Savage River Bridge project, and most recently he served as the Operations NCO during emergency operations for the Blizzard of 1993.

"MSgt. Weeks' career has spanned 42 years, most of which were in a full-time capacity, whether in the regular Army, a military technician, or on AGR status," said a spokesperson for the Maryland Army National Guard. "He has always held a single standard of excellence. He has contributed to the overall success of every unit that he has served, and has been a soldier for all to emulate."

Master Sgt. Donald M. Weeks, Oakland, a member of the 121st Engineer Battalion (Combat), Army National Guard located in Ellicott City, retired in April after 42 years of military service. He served as his battalion's Operations NCO (non-commissioned officer).

At retirement, MSgt. Weeks was awarded the state of Maryland's Distinguished Service Cross for his many years of service. He was also awarded the governor's "Salute to Excellence."

Weeks entered active duty as a private on July 19, 1952, as a rifleman, unit clerk and personnel staff NCO during the Korean War. He was assigned to the Maryland Military District in Baltimore as a Reserve Component Advisor in 1953. In November 1957, he was transferred to Germany where he finished out his active Army career.

Weeks entered the Maryland Army National Guard on Jan. 2, 1959, when he joined 1st Battalion 175th Infantry as the personnel staff NCO. From 1959 until 1971 he worked as a full-time technician and served various positions, including supply sergeant, rifle platoon sergeant, and first sergeant of Headquarters Company 2nd Battalion 175th Infantry.

In 1971 he was appointed Chief Warrant Officer 2. In this position Weeks worked as Unit Personnel Technician until 1976. During his assignments with the various infantry units, he was personally responsible for the enlistment of 487 soldiers into the Maryland Army National Guard.

In 1976, Weeks resigned his position as warrant officer to take a position as the unit AST with Company C 121st Engineer Battalion in Oakland. From there, he rose through the enlisted ranks, being promoted to first sergeant of Company C in 1978. In 1981 he accepted a tour under the newly-created AGR program. He served as the first sergeant/unit administrator for Company C until being reassigned in 1985, as the operations sergeant for the 121st Engineers in Ellicott City.

During Weeks' tenure with the 121st Engineers, he served on various civil and military projects, including the snow emergency of 1978, where he served 33 consecutive days on emergency duty; the Broadford Lake project, working directly with the town of Oakland and the Army

U.S. Navy Chief Warrant Officer Donald C. Paugh, stepson of Eloise Paugh of 715 E. Oak St., Oakland, recently retired from active duty after 24 years of service.

Paugh most recently served at Trident Training Facility, Kings Bay, Ga.

He joined the Navy in August 1970.

USDA To Survey Western Maryland Farms/Ranches

An extensive survey of the nation's farms and ranches is under way this month by the Agriculture Department.

The survey, which is being conducted by USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service, is the largest in a series conducted throughout the agricultural season to determine crop production, carryover stocks and livestock inventories.

This year's June survey is particularly important because it will reveal planting information following last year's flooding in the Midwest and drought in the Southeast.

"It will provide the first clear indications of acreage planted and potential production of major crops for 1994," according to Fred Vogel, head of NASS's estimates division.

The June survey also will provide producers with valid information about the outlook for crop supplies and livestock marketings.

The results of NASS's surveys also have considerable influence on trade policies. The survey information has been used in negotiations on the North American Free Trade Agreement and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to assess where the United States stands in relation to other countries in production and stocks of major commodities, said Fred Barrett, who heads NASS's network of state offices.

About 125,000 farmers and ranchers will be contacted to provide the information needed to make state, regional and national estimates of crop acreage planted, grain in storage, and cattle and hog inventories. Local interviewers trained by NASS will carry out the survey through personal or telephone interviews.

The information will be summarized and sent from the state offices to NASS's headquarters, where it will be analyzed and released in a series of reports.

Information on individual enterprises is kept private and the official estimates remain confidential until they are released to the public.

Western Maryland 4-H FFA Spring Show To Be Held

Garrett County will be hosting the Annual Western Maryland 4-H FFA Spring Show on Saturday, June 18, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry. The public is invited to attend the show which will include baby beef, veal, sheep, dairy, dairy goats, dogs and rabbits. The sheep, dairy goat and rabbit shows are scheduled to start at 9 a.m. Other shows will follow during the morning hours.

In conjunction with the Spring Show the Garrett County Livestock Association will be holding the weigh-in and tagging of market lambs and hogs for the Garrett County 4-H FFA members on both Friday evening and Saturday morning.

On Friday evening June 17 at 7:30 p.m., clinics for both beef and dairy have been scheduled. Sharon Rodcheaver will be coordinating the beef clinic and will work with members in preparing their animals for showing. Robbie Anderson will be coordinating the Dairy Clinic which will include grooming and showing animals and dairy judging practice.

Also Friday evening Blaine Bowser will be available to shear project animals for the 4-H and FFA members.

All members with projects in sheep, beef, dairy, dairy goats, rabbits and veal are encouraged to participate in the show and clinics. Information and required paper work have been sent to all members and they are reminded to return the pre-registration papers for the show by Monday, June 13. For additional information contact the Extension Office at 334-1990.

Seed Inspectors Protect Consumers

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley announced that the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Fertilizer and Seed staff has just recently helped federal agriculture officials in enforcing the Federal Seed Act against a seed company from Oregon. The case involved 20 shipments of arrowleaf clover.

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

red clover, bermudagrass, Kentucky bluegrass, tall fescue, annual ryegrass, perennial ryegrass and lawn and grass seed mixtures into Maryland as well as Arizona, Kansas, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Texas and Virginia.

"The alleged violations included false labeling, misleading labeling, improper germination testing and failure to keep required records. We are proud that our Turf and Seed inspectors and seed analysts helped to detect apparent violations in the shipments. Our job is to protect farmers, gardeners and all the citizens of Maryland," Riley said.

The Federal Seed Act is a truth-in-labeling law designed to protect the consumers of seed. Its enforcement requires the cooperation of state and federal seed regulatory officials in making investigations.

"I am pleased we in Maryland were able to support this effort to protect all seed consumers. I commend our staff for a job well done," said Riley.

Support Sought For Endangered Species Reform

Although it is unlikely that legislation to reauthorize the Endangered Species Act will see final passage this year, debate on the controversial law is set to get under way later this month.

As hearings in the Senate Environment and Public Works Subcommittee on Clean Water, Fisheries and Wildlife approach, Farm Bureau is seeking additional co-sponsors for reform legislation that would balance property rights with protection efforts.

In the House that legislation (H.R. 1490) was introduced by Reps. Billy Tauzin (D-La.) and Jack Fields (R-Texas). It currently has 106 other co-sponsors. Senate companion legislation (S. 1521) was introduced by Sens. Richard Shelby (D-Ala.) and Slade Gorton (R-Wash.). It has 17 other co-sponsors.

Farm Bureau supports this legislation, primarily because it provides for compensation to a private property owner whose property value is 'substantially' impacted due to protection efforts by the federal government on behalf of a listed species," according to Jon Doggett, a governmental relations director in the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington office.

"The bill also provides for recognition of human economic needs during the protection process," Doggett said.

Other endangered species reform legislation (H.R. 2043, S. 921) has been introduced by Rep. Gerry Studds (D-Mass.) and Sens. Max Baucus (D-Mont.) and John Chafee (R-R.I.). Farm Bureau opposes both bills.

"Both the Studds and Baucus-Chafee bills create a huge problem in that they extend protection for 'candidate species' under the Endangered Species Act," Doggett said. "Extension of ESA protection to candidate species would expand regulatory activities from the current list of more than 800 species to more than 5,000 species."

The Senate likely will hold off any major action on the Endangered Species Act until work on the Clean Water Act is complete, but the focus must continue on getting co-sponsors for Farm Bureau-supported bills, Doggett said.

Farm Bureau believes legislation must address private property concerns, provide for peer review of all scientific data and consider human and economic concerns during all phases of endangered species recovery efforts.

Landowners concerned about regulations, taxes, wildlife management, private property rights, forest practices, getting fair timber prices, access to responsible and experienced loggers may want to consider membership, according to Charles W. "Sonny" Newhall.

"Too often forest landowners do not know what is happening in their county much less in the counties across Maryland. This is why a Maryland Woodland Owners Association should be organized," Newhall says.

Where there is an interest in forestry, this association would make it possible to organize local chapters to relay information to the state association to keep the membership informed on local, state and national forest related issues.

According to Newhall, the association will not conflict with other forest related organizations in the state. It will not only work with them, but will network with other forest landowner associations across the United States, Newhall says.

Private non-industrial woodland owners interested in forming a Maryland Woodland Owners Association should contact Newhall at Rt. 5, Box 1824, Oakland, Maryland 21550.

Be on the Lookout for the Potato Leafhopper!

The warm southern winds we have had in the last several days will probably carry the potato leafhopper into our area. Most of you have already taken the first cutting of alfalfa and may forget to return to check the field.

Leafhoppers on new regrowth can be disastrous. I would suggest that you start sampling your fields now and continue on a weekly basis. If you don't have a sweep net, it would be a good investment.

I have heard some farmers say, "I don't have time to sample. I'll just spray an insecticide and be done with it." Sampling really doesn't take that much time or effort. Use a 15-inch sweep net anytime during the day as long as the foliage is dry. Take 10 sweeps at 10 random locations in the field. Count the number of adult and nymphal leafhoppers for each set of 10 sweeps. Tally the total and record the number per 100 sweeps. Examine 20 random stems to determine average stem height and the percentage in the bud or flower stage. If you need pictures of the leafhoppers for identification, give me a call.

Once you have properly taken the sample, it is time for decision-making. If the leafhopper count per 100 sweeps exceeds 109 times the average stem height, control is recommended. If alfalfa is more than 60 percent bud or in flower, or if more than 28 days have elapsed since last cutting, plan to harvest within seven to 10 days and avoid spraying. However, re-sample the field soon after cutting to determine the need for control. Remember that none of the insecticides carry over to the next cutting, so control decisions must be made independently on each cutting. Treatments must be applied before yellowing begins. If stunted, yellowed plants appear as a result of leafhopper injury, the field should be harvested immediately rather than sprayed.

Reduce Post-emergent Herbicide Injury on Corn

We all know that broadleaf weeds, such as lambsquarters and pigweed, are most easily killed when they are around two to three inches tall. But did you know this also coincides with the time when the corn plant is more resistant to injury from the foliar application of herbicide?

The corn plant does not start developing the reproductive tissues until it reaches the four to five leaf stage. Also, the growing point is still below the soil surface until the plant reaches the six leaf stage. After the corn reaches the six leaf stage, the potential for yield reducing damage from herbicides, such as Banvel, becomes greater. Some valid research has indicated that you can reduce the herbicide rates as much as one-half if applied on small broadleaf weed seedlings.

Other endangered species reform legislation (H.R. 2043, S. 921) has been introduced by Rep. Gerry Studds (D-Mass.) and Sens. Max Baucus (D-Mont.) and John Chafee (R-R.I.). Farm Bureau opposes both bills.

"Both the Studds and Baucus-Chafee bills create a huge problem in that they extend protection for 'candidate species' under the Endangered Species Act," Doggett said. "Extension of ESA protection to

Association Being Formed For Area Woodland Owners

In this day of increasing regulations on private non-industrial forest land, it is beneficial for landowners to get involved with an organization which seeks to develop positive and useful regulations and to encourage wise use of forest resources.

Landowners concerned about regulations, taxes, wildlife management, private property rights, forest practices, getting fair timber prices, access to responsible and experienced loggers may want to consider membership, according to Charles W. "Sonny" Newhall.

"Too often forest landowners do not know what is happening in their county much less in the counties across Maryland. This is why a Maryland Woodland Owners Association should be organized," Newhall says.

Where there is an interest in forestry, this association would make it possible to organize local chapters to relay information to the state association to keep the membership informed on local, state and national forest related issues.

Miller/Coleman Reunion Slated

The seventh annual Miller/Coleman Family Reunion will be held Saturday, July 9, from noon until dusk. All descendants of Christopher Miller, John Coleman, Mary Jane Warnick Miller and Sarah Jane Wiland Miller are invited to attend and may bring guests. The families will meet at Pavilion 3 (adjacent to the swimming pool) at Dan's Mountain State Park, Lonaconing. The alternate facility in the event of rain is the Bishop Murray Hall at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, 5 St. Peter's Way, Lonaconing.

Each family is requested to bring a covered dish, meat, dessert, and/or beverages for the picnic. The meal will be served at 2 p.m. A short business meeting will precede the meal, at which time a planning committee will be established for the 1995 reunion. The presentation of awards for various family categories will follow the meal.

Anyone who has not submitted information for the family genealogy should do so immediately or bring it to the reunion in order that the completed book may go to press in the near future. Genealogy information for the families involved and any genealogy forms to be returned should be mailed to Sally Atkinson, 41 Front Street, Lonaconing, MD 21539. All other information and reunion inquiries should be directed to Regis Bittinger, 313 Footer Place, Cumberland, MD 21502 (301-777-8486); or to Deborah Guynn, P.O. Box 1743, Bowie, MD 20717 (301-390-8383).

recognition of the numerous environmental programs presented by all homemaker clubs in the county. It also recognizes clubs that participate in the adopt-a-highway program.

The grant will be used to fund a project benefiting Garrett County's environment, Schultz said.

Paw Paw Tunnel Tours Scheduled

The C&O Canal National Historical Park began offering regular guided tours of the Paw Paw Tunnel last Friday. Every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at 2 p.m. until September 25, tunnel tours will be conducted.

Interested participants are invited to meet a park ranger at the tunnel entrance, located one-half mile from the visitor parking area off MD Rt. 51. Participants should wear comfortable, sturdy shoes and carry a flashlight for the approximately one hour long tour.

The Paw Paw Tunnel is one of the most important historic structures along the 184½ mile long C&O Canal towpath. Built beginning in 1836, the tunnel is 3,118 feet long and is lined with approximately six million bricks. Completion of the tunnel was quite an accomplishment for the many canal laborers who faced company financial difficulties, labor problems, cholera epidemics, and solid rock terrain during the years of construction.

To schedule special group tours of the Paw Paw Tunnel or to obtain additional Park information, persons may call the Cumberland C&O Canal Visitor Center at (301) 722-8226.

THE FIRST OF SEVERAL MEETINGS called by the Maryland Rural Development Council was held May 26 at the Tidewater Inn in Easton. These meetings, known as the Forum for Rural Maryland, bring together community leaders and government officials from throughout Maryland who have a shared interest in improving the quality of life in the rural regions of the state. Maryland is one of 44 states holding such meetings. Some 250 persons attended the first forum, including, pictured left to right above: Ed Hunley, Maryland Mainstreet Center; Connie Margison, representing the Greater Oakland Business Association; Diane Wiebe, executive director of the Maryland Downtown Development Association; and Garrett County Commissioner John Braskey. Other local officials present were Duane Yoder, of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, and Tom Jones, of the Garrett County Economic Development office. Critical issues facing rural Maryland were discussed, including the need for jobs, housing, better transportation, education and training opportunities, health care, and the shrinking role of the family farm. These issues will be addressed at the next meeting, tentatively scheduled for October.

When speaking to someone with a hearing loss, it is best not to yell, but speak only slightly louder. Speaking too loudly can often make it even harder for the person to hear. Speak slower and more clearly, and rephrase a sentence if the person didn't hear you the first time.

THE REPUBLICAN, OAKLAND, MARYLAND - THURSDAY, JUNE 9, 1994 C-9

LEARNING THE CONSEQUENCES OF SMOKELESS TOBACCO - Approximately 90 career employability students at Southern High School recently participated in a workshop on smokeless tobacco, presented by Dr. William Yant, a local dentist with the Dental Health Group. Yant, pictured above right, and Natalie Messer of the Garrett County Health Department teamed up to educate students on both the medical effects and social implications of smokeless tobacco products. Garrett County currently has the highest rate of smokeless tobacco use in the state, according to a health department spokesperson. According to the 1992 Teen Health Survey, one out of three males in the county's eleventh and twelfth grades use smokeless tobacco products. To aid in the presentation, a display board and visual prop of "Mr. Gross Mouth," demonstrating the oral effects of smokeless tobacco, were utilized. The materials were provided by the health department and were used in conjunction with a slide show organized by Dr. Alvin Friend, retired local dentist, as well as with brochures provided by both the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society. Pictured above are Kevin Artice (left) and Rick Michaels as they examine Mr. Gross Mouth. The session ended with Yant offering free cans of mint or cinnamon-flavored tobacco substitute - containing no nicotine or tobacco - in exchange for students' regular cans of tobacco.

He served in the Methodist churches in Wadestown, Farmington, and Flemington, W.Va. Later he served as an associate pastor at Christ Episcopal Church, Fairmont, W.Va.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Dorothy; one son, Christopher; and several brothers and sisters. He is survived by one son, Cedrick, of Pakistan; two daughters, Mabel, of Hampton, and Jeanne of Nashville, Tenn.; nine grandchildren; and one daughter-in-law, Kathy, of Fairmont.

A board meeting was held Monday at Garrett Community College with 19 members attending and six clubs being represented. A brainstorming session allowed everyone to voice her opinion as to the positive and negative effects the NAACE has had on our organization took place. Many views were discussed on this subject; however, no decision was made regarding our continued affiliation with the NAACE. Therefore a follow-up meeting will be planned and a representative from all clubs will be asked to attend. The future of our organization will depend on any decisions made.

Our Global Project has been completed, thanks to the enthusiastic response of our homemakers. Colleen Nelson reports that 1,413 lbs. of clothing, 495 lbs. of shoes, medicine, and $1,000 has been sent to the School for the Blind in Kharkov, Ukraine. Robert Walker, former secretary of the state agriculture dept., will oversee the distribution to the correct people.

All homemakers participating in the "Enjoy Yesterday" happening were overwhelmed by the enthusiastic response they received on their various displays, demonstrations, and story telling. The talents and efforts of the homemakers who took part are greatly appreciated. They were Joan Schultz, Meadow Glade, Connie Beachy, Bittering, Janet Browning, Laura Belle Harvey, Debbie Barnard's mother, and Betty Thrasher, all of Deer Park. Those supplying displays were Ann Muter, Bloomingington; Loretta Wotting, Meadow Glade; Vera Merrill, N. German; and Opal Fahrenbaker, Meadow Glade, council president.

Any club wishing to have their happenings placed in this column please contact Joan Schultz at 387-9870.

Historical Society Gathers 5,000 Area Obituaries

The Garrett County Historical Society Museum in Oakland is now open for visitors, and a new collection of over 5,000 newspaper obituary columns is available for use. The collection has been part of the genealogical reference volumes which have been assembled by members of the Society for historical research by museum visitors.

"Most of the articles came from clippings from old issues of The Republican and The Mountain Democrat," said Carol Davis, a collection organizer. "Obituaries are arranged alphabetically, but we do not have them cataloged as of yet."

Cataloging has been made difficult because of the fact that the present collection continually increases. Obituaries dating back to the 1800's are constantly being found and added to the 5,000 columns already collected.

The museum is open on weekdays from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Correction Noted

An article recently appeared in The Republican stating that the Historical Society's publication of "Deer Park, Maryland... Then and Now" was available for $5. However, the price is actually $10, the misprint a result of a typographical error on the part of the Society. Persons who wish to receive the book by mail should write to Martha Kahl, Rt. 3, Box 4542, Deer Park, MD 21550. Persons should enclose an extra dollar to cover handling and postage.

TOP FUND-RAISER AWARDED - Ronnie Cross, Loch Lynn, was the first place winner in the youth division of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Alleghenies "Bowl For Kids' Sake." Miss Cross raised $1,068 for the Garrett County Branch of the organization. She was the top fund raiser in the county, and the top youth fund raiser in both Allegany and Garrett counties. For her efforts, she was awarded a VCR, donated by Quality Value Channel of the TCI cable network in Cumberland. She is 15 and a sophomore at Southern High School. She is a Little Sister who is currently waiting for a match with a Big Sister. Pictured above left to right are Ronnie, her mother Twylla Paugh, and Dan Seib of the local branch. Mrs. Paugh assisted her daughter in the fund-raising effort.

New Club Seeks Members, Plans Informational Meet

An informational gathering is set for Tuesday, June 21, at 7 p.m., in the parish hall of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Oakland, for persons interested in forming a rubber stamping club.

The idea of a stamping club has been developed to assist anyone in learning about, or continuing with an interest in this hobby, according to Karen Reckner, one of the organizers for the club. Stampers of all experience levels will meet to exchange ideas, learn new techniques, and network with others who enjoy the hobby.

"As interest in the art of rubber stamping continues to grow, new methods of expanding the knowledge of this popular hobby are being developed," said Reckner. "The latest phase in our area's fascination with stamping is the formation of a club devoted to all aspects of the art. Many people are enjoying creating their own notecards, gift-wrap and invitations, to name a few."

Club guidelines and some information regarding experience level and desired topics of interest will be gathered during the meeting, to plan future get-togethers. As a preview to the meeting, stamping demonstrations will be conducted at Presentations on June 16, 17 and 18.

For more information about the rubber stamping, or participation in the club, persons may call Reckner at 334-3322.

Local National Guard To Attend Lanes Training

Members of Company C 121st Engineer Battalion, Maryland Army National Guard, Oakland will begin annual training this Saturday, June 11. The training will be at Fort A.P. Hill, Va.

Members will participate in "Lanes Training," which will include preparation for combat, tactical foot movement, assault of the objective, and breaching of obstacles. The training will involve the breaching of barbed and concertina wire, minefields, and anti-vehicular trenches, and will be realistic to combat. The lanes training will last four days.

The unit will also participate in a three-day field training exercise in which they will be evaluated.

In addition to the above training, the unit will assist the 29th Infantry Division by digging obstacles and individual fighting positions. They will also build berms for the division's fuel points to assist in protecting the environment from spills.

The unit will return to the Oakland Armory on Friday, June 24, and on Saturday, maintenance will be performed on all unit and individual equipment.

next to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Persons desiring more information are asked to contact Joyce at 359-0808 or Jean at 334-2936.

Crellin Students Participate In Reading Program

Crellin Elementary School students recently participated in a computerized reading management program called "The Accelerated Reader" that served as a supplement to the school's regular reading program.

The "Accelerated Reader" combines great children's literature with a computer. It is an individualized reading that motivates students to read more and better books, according to Keith Harvey, principal.

The "Accelerated Reader" uses the computer for testing and record keeping, and tests are motivational rather than instructional. By reading books on the "Accelerated Reader" book list, students increase their critical thinking and problem-solving skills, Harvey said.

At Crellin School, the program was conducted as

Each family was given a recommended list of books available at the school's library and the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland.

When students had read an identified book, they went to the computer to take a test to determine whether they actually read and understood the book. Passing scores earned them points that could be spent or saved for future spending at an "Accelerated Reader" gift store.

The store has been stocked with many items through the donations of several local businesses, Harvey said.

"Our 'Accelerated Reader' program has been an excellent tool for encouraging children to read quality literature," Harvey said. "This program will continue to be a part of the Crellin School reading program."

Cranberry Juice And Urinary Tract Infection
White blood cells fight infection. They appear in the urine when one has a urinary tract infection. Harvard Medical School researchers report that elderly women who drank 10 ounces of cranberry beverage daily seemed to be protected against such infections. Urine samples from women who drank the cranberry beverage were half as likely to contain white blood cells. Urinary tract infections are more common in women than men and account for over $1 billion in annual U.S. health care costs.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

TOWN OF GRANTSVILLE
The purpose of this Notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the Town of Grantsville.

On or about June 27, 1994, the above named Town will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release of funds under the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program to be used for the following project:

Project Title: Grantsville Well Project
Purpose of Project: Provide an adequate water source for the Town of Grantsville.
Location: 1/4 mile west of corporate limits off Alt. U.S. 40
Find of No Significant Impact

Notice is hereby given that the above named municipality has prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project described in this Notice and has determined that said project will have no significant effect on the quality of the human environment. No further environmental review of said project is proposed prior to requesting Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:
Earth disturbances will be minimal and short term. A test well has already been drilled and the intent of this project is to develop the test well and tie it into the existing water treatment facility. All known permits have been obtained or are in process.

The Environmental Review Record which documents the Environmental Review of this project is available for public examination at the town office during normal business hours.

Public Comments on Finding

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project to the offices of the town and to the Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than June 24, 1994. All comments will be considered and the Town of Grantsville will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project prior to this date.

Request for Release of Funds
The town will undertake the project described above with Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Funds. This Notice also certifies that Frederick A. Holliday, serving in the official capacity of Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews decision-making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the town may use the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Funds and the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

Objections to Release of Funds

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development only if it is on one of the following bases:

(a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer; or (b) that the town Environmental Review Record for the project indicated omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the program in the Environmental Review Process; (c) No opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 EFR Part 800 (d) Objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the town and to the SCCDBG Program Coordinator, Department of Housing and Community Development, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, MD 21032. All such comments must be received no later than July 12, 1994.

New Engineering Programs Proposed At Frostburg State

Officials at Frostburg State University are designing a collaborative program in electrical and mechanical engineering to be offered at both their main and Hagerstown campuses. The program, proposed for the fall of 1996, will allow students to obtain engineering degrees at the western Maryland campuses through a partnership with the University of Maryland College Park and the University of Maryland Baltimore County.

Dr. Frank Parks, associate provost at FSU, says the universities involved have received $100,000 from the University of Maryland System to plan a model program within the next two years which could eventually be used at other UMS institutions.

Through UMCP and UMBC faculty members and interactive video, FSU students will study specialized engineering material after first taking required general education courses. In the plan, UMCP personnel will supply students with the electrical engineering courses, while mechanical engineering classes will be offered from UMBC.

For the past 20 years, FSU has offered a dual-degree engineering program in which students transfer to UMCP to complete two years in engineering after three years of physics and mathematics study. The new engineering programs will eliminate transferring from FSU.

According to Dr. Joseph Hoffman, FSU professor of physics and coordinator of the dual-degree engineering program, a degree from one of the proposed engineering programs could possibly be obtained within four years through this state-of-the-art form of study.

"Technology allows us to design this program and use the resources at other institutions," Dr. Hoffman says. "Howe could not have done this program in the past."

Dr. Hoffman hopes the new program will attract small technology companies to locate in western Maryland, once FSU produces local engineering graduates. "We could see a significant growth of the small technology industries. (The program) could be a drawing card for companies to locate to this area."

As Frostburg State officials design the model program for the UMS system, they entertain the idea of hiring their own engineering faculty to teach classes and recruiting professional engineers from western Maryland to assist with the instruction of the programs.

Before any action can be taken, the program must pass final UMS and Maryland Higher Education Commission approval. "This is still in the planning stage," Dr. Parks stresses.

New MSP Phone No. Now "Local" For Entire County

Cpl. C.H. Hinnant announced this week that beginning Wednesday, June 22, the new phone numbers for Maryland State Police, Barrack W. McHenry, will be 387-1101, or 895-1101.

The phone numbers were changed as a public service, to conform with other state police offices throughout the area, Hinnant said, making the numbers more uniform and easier to remember. He emphasized that the numbers are local calls from anywhere in Garrett County.

DRUG ARREST

A late Tuesday evening traffic violation stop by Maryland State Police resulted in the arrest of a Garrett County man who was charged with possession of CDS (controlled dangerous substance) paraphernalia.

According to a report filed at the McHenry Barrack, Tfc. M.S. Clapper stopped a 1983 Oldsmobile, operated by Jamie Lynn Strawser, no address given, for driving 58 mph in a 45 mph zone on Rt. 219, south of Lake Shore Drive.

The officer noticed Strawser appeared nervous and requested a search of the vehicle. The search revealed a stone smoking device, containing suspected marijuana, in the center console. The report indicated a passenger in the vehicle, Jamie M. Brenneman, no address given, told the officer the smoking device belonged to him. Clapper subsequently arrested Brenneman for alleged possession of CDS paraphernalia.

No formal charges were filed against Strawser following the 9:07 p.m. incident.

HILL IS ALL-AMERICAN - Matt Hill, a member of the Garrett Community College golf team, captured 10th place in the Division III Junior College National Championships this past weekend at Greensboro, N.C., which earned for him the designation of second team All-American. Hill, a resident of Mtn. Lake Park, finished the four-round tournament with a score of 230, 10 strokes behind the winner, but ahead of 87 other competitors from all over the United States. Dennis Gibson serves as coach of the GCC team. See more photos on sports pages.

IT'S HOT! And one of the best ways to cool off is to go for a boat ride or glide across Deep Creek Lake on water skis. With temperatures soaring near the 90-degree mark and setting new records nearly every day, plus high levels of humidity, staying in air conditioned surroundings or getting into a cool body of water are about the only options for personal comfort. The waterways and neighborhoods will be much busier after tomorrow when the Garrett County school year finally concludes after being lengthened because of weather conditions quite contrary to today's. (Remember, February?) The heat wave is predicted to continue for several more days; however, the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park area did receive some relief last evening by a brief rain shower.

Green Glade Teen Critically Injured In Preston Co. Mishap

A Green Glade/Turkey Neck area teenager remains hospitalized in Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., following a two-vehicle accident Saturday night in nearby Preston County, W.Va., on Rt. 7, just west of Terra Alta.

According to published reports, Noel Smith, 15, a passenger in a Jeep operated by Tony LaRue, 17, Terra Alta, was critically injured when the vehicle ran off the road and into a field. The Jeep reportedly flipped several times and broke apart.

Smith's condition was originally listed as "critical," but has since been upgraded to "fair," according to a hospital spokesperson. LaRue was also injured in the mishap. He was transported to Preston Memorial Hospital, Kingwood, W.Va., where he was treated and released.

Also involved in the accident was a pickup truck driven by Donald Smith, 18, also of the Green Glade/Turkey Neck area. The pickup also reportedly ran into the field, but D. Smith was reportedly uninjured.

An unofficial report received by The Republican indicated one vehicle was passing the other at a high rate of speed at the time of the accident. The bumpers of the vehicles apparently hooked together and both traveled into the field.

Members of the Terra Alta Volunteer Fire Department and the Terra Alta Ambulance responded to the scene. The Preston County Sheriff's Department is continuing its investigation into the 11:30 p.m. mishap.

Teachers Re-Elect Bargaining GCTA By Slim Margin

Garrett County school teachers yesterday re-elected the Garrett County Teachers Association (Maryland State Teachers Association) by a slim margin over the Garrett County Federation of Teachers for representation in contract negotiations with the school board.

The vote was 176 to 170 for GCTA over GCFE. Seven teachers voted for neither organization, according to a report from the GCTA. The association has represented the local teachers since 1968.

"We have issued a call to all teachers to get behind their elected bargaining agent and speak with one voice to Garrett citizens and officials," said outgoing GCTA President Jim Raley, a teacher at Southern Middle School.

Raley will start a two-year term on the board of directors of the 45,000-member Maryland State Teachers Association, and incoming GCTA President Irene Sigel, Dennett Road teacher, will take office on August 1.

Tom Shaffer, local MSTA staff representative and chief negotiator for Garrett and Allegany teachers, has announced his retirement after 26 years. According to a GCTA spokesperson, a nationwide search is underway for his replacement.

Board Of Ed. Votes Unanimously For Weber's Crossing School Site

A 22.25 acre tract of land located between Weber's Crossing and U.S. Route 219 South has been unanimously approved by the Garrett County Board of Education for the site of the southern area elementary school. The board voted in favor of a special committee's recommendation for the location, as the committee has studied several choices in the past six weeks.

"This site best meets the parameters set by the Maryland State Planning Office and the requests of the two school communities directly affected by it (Loch Lynn and Red House)," said Clark Sharpless, chairman of the committee. "The area borders the town limit of Mountain Lake Park and is close to Rt. 219, which means easy in, easy out. It is also close to water and sewer infrastructures, which will reduce our costs significantly."

Sharpless also confirmed that neither school community has voiced a negative reaction to the choice.

The 36,750 square foot school will be built to accommodate 350 students, pre-kindergarten through fifth grade, and is proposed to house a media center, a

SMS STUDENT WINS STATE HONOR - Sara Sincell, an eighth grade student at Southern Middle School, was recently named the third place winner for the state of Maryland in the American Legion's 1994 student essay competition. "My Responsibility as a Citizen in a Free Society" was the topic to be considered by each of the several thousand students across the state who entered the contest, sponsored in Garrett County by Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion. Miss Sincell's paper won first place in the Garrett County contest, first place in the district contest, and third place in the state, for which she was awarded a plaque, a medal, a cash award, and a $75 U.S. savings bond. She is a daughter of Donald and Suzanne Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park. Alison Rudy, daughter of Robert and Amy Rudy, Oakland, won third place in both the county and district contests and was awarded a framed certificate and a United States flag. Pictured from left above, front row, are: Hazel Meyers, representative of the American Legion who conducted the awards ceremony, Miss Sincell, and Miss Rudy. In the second row, same order, are Bethany Smith, Rachel Farmer, and Carrie Filsinger, and the third row, same order, are Kendra Alexander, Mike Rohrbach, and Bobby Schmidt, all of whom also participated in the contest and received certificates. At the request of Mrs. Meyers, Miss Sincell's winning essay appears below.

"My Responsibility As A Citizen In A Free Society"

by Sara Sincell

I am very proud to know that I live in a free society. Although many people take advantage of the freedom that we have, the majority are very appreciative of our rights. I know that I am very fortunate to live freely and I hope that I will never take it for granted.

I feel that my responsibility in a free society is to help and respect the rights of others. I am always hearing the statement: "It's a free country" and I think that it is misunderstood sometimes. It is true that we are declared free, but we can't just go around and do whatever we wish. We need to be considerate and learn to work together in our community.

I never really understood until recently the significance in being able to vote. I always thought, why doesn't some group of people just give us a president? I now realize that having the right to vote is a true gift. We, as a country, have been given the right to choose the way we live and the people who will help guide us to the best for our nation.

I have already helped my community in some ways, such as participating as a Girl Scout, planting trees in our school arboretum, tutoring elementary school students, and helping the local fire department. I have definitely enjoyed helping as a volunteer and I plan to continue to help people in the future. Some of my goals are to donate blood, be a skiing director, become a lifeguard, and to exercise my right to vote. My parents have been a big influence on my wanting to help because they both help as volunteers in our community.

Sometimes have a hard time believing that I, personally, deserve to be free. I never had to fight for independence; I was simply born into it. I feel that I don't deserve freedom just as a gift, so my way of paying back my country is to help my own community in any way that I can.

I know that I am still young and certainly do not fully understand what my freedom means. So for right now I plan to continue to be a volunteer in my community and hope that we as a society can learn to live and work together.

Oakland High School Reunion Plans Underway

The fifth annual Oakland High School Reunion will be held Saturday, August 13, at the Oakland Elks Club, beginning at 4 p.m. Over 1500 letters have been sent to members of the graduating classes, according to an event organizer.

The theme for this year will be "Country Welcome," with western or casual dress. Country music will be provided by the Silver Eagle Band and a buffet style dinner will be offered. Guests who wish to be served at their tables may accept the assistance of the Southern High School girls' basketball team members, who will be volunteering their time for the event.

Because of limited parking, shuttle buses will be available as in the past to transport guests from the Oakland town parking lot to the Elks Club. Return trips will run continually throughout the evening.

Members of the Garrett County Historical Society will be on hand to sell historical publications and to seek new members. The society is active in research work to obtain information on the county's history. Teachers who taught at Oakland High are especially encouraged to attend, the organizer said. They include Mildred Schrock Myers, Lillian Quinet Reckner, Elizabeth Randol, Sybilla Sharps, Polly Hanst, Frances Patterson, Carl Everly, Elmer Crone, Ernest Spoerlein, Ann Dilgard, Dorothy Fletcher Purbough, and Eugene Hinn.

The cost of the dinner is $14 per person, and spouses and guests are welcome. Persons who have not received an invitation but would like to attend should contact Robert Stockslager at 387-6805, or mail reservations along with graduating year and information such as maiden name to Stockslager at Rt. #5, Box 3840, Oakland, MD 21550. Reservations are open to all persons who attended OHS, including those who may not have graduated from the school.

Reservation deadline is July 15, and persons are advised to respond as soon as possible because attendance is limited and reservations will be honored in order of date received. There will be no admittance without reservation.

A tour of the old Oakland High School building will be given at 12:30 p.m. There will be no transportation provided for this activity.

Special recognition will be given this year to the anniversary classes of 1929, 1934, 1939, 1944, and 1949.

Oakland Council Passes "Jake Brakes" Law

An ordinance of the mayor and town council of Oakland prohibiting the use and/or operation of engine brakes or "Jake brakes" within the town limits was approved and signed on June 6. Any person violating the new ordinance will be considered guilty of a traffic violation and will be subject to a fine of $45 for the first offense and $100 for any subsequent infraction.

The ordinance was brought about when the council reportedly received complaints about the use of the Jake brakes, which apparently cause loud and disturbing noises within the town. The ordinance was then created in an effort to reduce the noise level and to "contribute to the health, safety, and welfare of the residents thereof."

Signs will be posted on all major roads leading into Oakland to warn all drivers of the ordinance, a city hall spokesperson said. The ordinance number is 094-02.

Sporting Opportunities To Be Part Of 7th Annual GLAF Gala Auction

By Jenianne Stitt

Scuba diving, wind surfing, and cross country skiing will make up the sports feature of the seventh annual auction benefiting Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) Saturday evening, June 25, at Wisp Resort's McHenry House.

Scheduled to get underway at 6 p.m., the fundraiser will begin with a cocktail preview at which time guests will have the opportunity to closely inspect Grand Auction items and to participate in a silent auction of art objects, antiques, and collectibles.

Following dinner, local auctioneer Tom Henline will raise his gavel to begin the Grand Auction. All monies realized from the event will be used to underwrite the GLAF season of music, theater, and programs for children.

For the first time in his long-time aquatic career, Garrett County native Dennis Savage has been asked to dive deep for GLAF and has agreed to donate summer scuba lessons for two. An estimated $500 value, the course will include classes required for certification with the Professional Diving Instructors Corporation International. Affiliation with PDIC ensures world-wide recognition of the certified diver's status. The package will include six combination pool and classroom lectures and four open water dives, a scuba text book, and the use of all necessary equipment.

Savage claims that his entire life has been involved with water. His first job was lifeguarding and for 20 years he has been employed by Buffalo Coal as a waste water specialist. An instructor in the Venture Sports Program at Garrett Community College and Frostburg University, he also teaches diving to Fire Department Search and Rescue Teams.

Savage established Breathe Deep Scuba in 1992 near Deep Creek Lake on Mayhem Inn Road. A

Producers To Participate In Fresh Air Event

Several Mtn. Fresh producers plan to participate in Saturday's Fresh Air Festival in downtown Oakland by selling crafts, baked goods, and a limited variety of produce that may be ready.

Opening day for the 1994 market is Saturday, July 9. As in past years, the market will be open on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 10 a.m. For the first time, the market will also be open on Monday afternoons from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. This will be done on a trial basis this year to determine if it will be accepted by the community and profitable for the producers.

The Oakland Mayor and Town Council has announced it plans to install restroom facilities in the town parking lot, which will be available for market customers.

Anyone wishing to set up during the market season to sell produce, crafts, or baked goods is invited to do so. The only criteria is that participants must "grow it, make it, or bake it" them-

Walter, 31, Timonium, and John P. Hughes II, 49, Walkersville, were both charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia, according to the rangers' report.

Rangers Caroline Blizzard and Michael Berry were on patrol in the Swallow Falls camping area when they reportedly observed suspicious activity on a campsite. The arrest was made on June 11 at midnight.

Schlosnagle Is Arrested Again For Exposure

Spencer R. Schlosnagle, 30, Friendsville, has reportedly been charged for the third time of indecent exposure. The defendant allegedly turned himself in to the Cumberland Police Department on Tuesday in response to a warrant issued for his arrest.

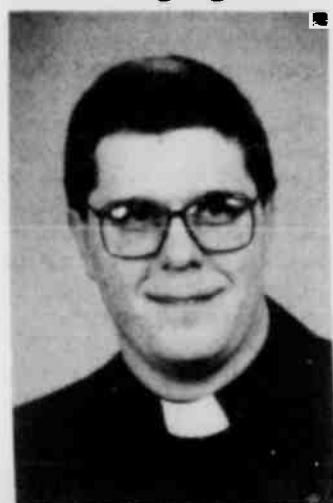

According to reports, Schlosnagle is accused of exposing himself to a motorist on Interstate 68 at Vocke Road. The incident apparently occurred on May 24 in the early evening.

The defendant was released on his own recognizance after processing at the police department, according to reports.

Schlosnagle, who is currently serving his fifth term as mayor of Friendsville, is on probation at this time for an earlier conviction for the same charge. He was sentenced in an Allegany County court in March to one year in jail, suspended, and three years probation.

He is also facing a court hearing in July at which he will be tried on indecent exposure charges that arose after an August 1993 incident, also along I-68 near Grantsville.

Rev. Karsten To Be Honored By Zion Congregation

The members of Zion Lutheran Church in Accident are planning a service of thanksgiving and praise for the 10th anniversary of their pastor's ordination into the ministry and his installation as their pastor.

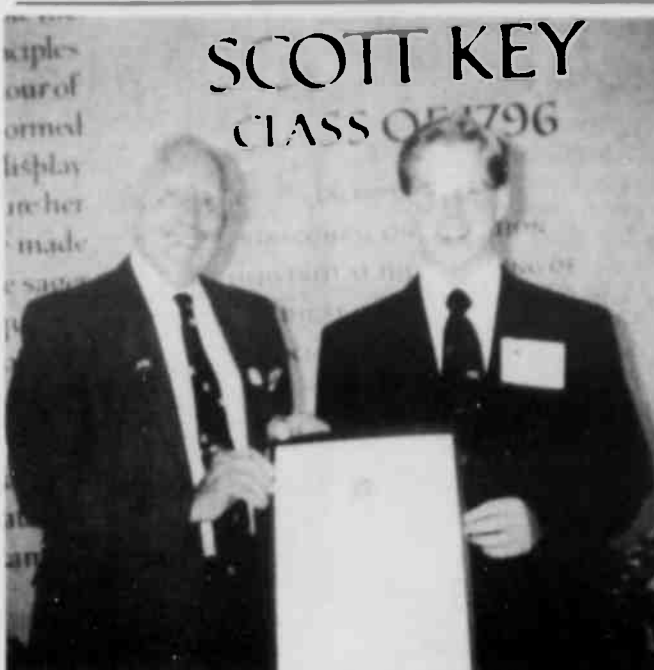

Rev. Wilfred Karsten was ordained into the ministry of the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod on June 24, 1984, in his home church in Marengo, Iowa. He received a call from Zion and was installed as that church's 14th pastor on July 8, 1984.

The anniversary service will be held Sunday, June 26, at 10:15 a.m. at Zion. Special music will be provided by Rev. Karsten and his wife, Lynette. Rev. Kenneth Hoener, Pittsburgh, will deliver the sermon. A dinner will follow in the fellowship hall.

Rev. Karsten is a graduate of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, from which he received the master of divinity degree in 1983 and the master of sacred theology degree. He is presently enrolled in a doctoral program at the same institution.

Karsten is the director and a member of the Accident Community Band. He serves on the Board of Directors for Bethesda Lutheran Homes and Services, Inc., headquartered in Watertown, Wis. He resides in Accident with his wife and their two daughters, Anna and Rachel.

The congregation invites the public to attend the events on June 16.

SEBALD REPRESENTS COUNTY - Paul Sebald, a tenth grade student at Northern High School, was selected to represent the Garrett County school system on June 7 at the Maryland Kick-Off Ceremony for Flag Week. The ceremony, sponsored by the Office of the Secretary of State, was held at the Francis Scott Key Auditorium at St. John's College, Annapolis, where 24 outstanding students represented Maryland's 23 counties and the city of Baltimore. The students were selected based on exemplary achievement and citizenship. The goal of the event is to acknowledge these students as well as enhance their appreciation of the United States flag. Each student carried his or her county flag in the ceremony and were each presented with a governor's citation. The students were welcomed by Ernest Snyder of the Office of the Secretary of State, and by Louise B. Koerber, president of the National Flag Day Foundation. The Honorable Louis L. Goldstein, Maryland comptroller, delivered the address and citations. The students were provided lunch at the Naval Academy by the Annapolis Rotary Club, and later toured the Academy. All were invited to attend the National Flag Day Ceremonies in Baltimore on June 12-14. Paul, pictured above with Goldstein, is the son of Don and Charlotte Sebald, Sang Run.

Convicted Sex Offender Sentenced In Circuit Court

A man previously convicted of fourth degree sexual offense received a suspended jail sentence last week in Garrett County Circuit Court. Michael W. Wilburn, 33, Grantsville, had pleaded guilty to the charge in April, and Judge Fred A. Thayer handed down sentencing last week. Wilburn was sentenced to one year in the Garrett County Jail with all suspended except time already served, which amounted to 49 days, according to the court report. He was also ordered to be on two years of supervised probation and to have no contact with the victim.

The charge stemmed from an incident earlier this year when Wilburn was apparently driving a 17-year-old girl home. He allegedly drove to a vacant lot and forced her into having sexual intercourse with him.

An Elgon, W.Va., man accused of probation violation will go to jail for 141 days. Christopher J. Oldham, 23, was originally convicted of third degree sexual offense in December 1991, at which time he received a one year suspended sentence, having and the sentence was reimposed, suspended, and one year was added.

Oldham was then charged with probation violation in March of this year and last week received the reimposed sentence of the remaining 141 days in jail. The violation charge apparently stemmed from his failure to report to his probation agent when he changed his address, and when he was charged with breaking and stealing in January.

A Mountain Lake Park man appealed his sentence from Garrett County District Court in circuit court last week. Jack C. Fitzwater, 22, was found guilty in district court of battery. At that time, he was sentenced to the local jail for six months, 30 days suspended, and one year of probation.

In the appeal proceedings, Fitzwater pleaded not guilty and made a motion for acquittal, which was denied by Thayer. The judge then declared the defendant guilty as charged and sentenced him to three years in the Maryland Department of Corrections, suspended, and fined him $100 plus court costs. Fitzwater was also placed on three years of supervised probation.

The charged stemmed from an incident on October 6, 1993, when he apparently harassed and physically assaulted a Garrett County sheriff's deputy during an interview.

A Good Choice...

After considering 11 different sites for the construction of a new school to consolidate the Loch Lynn and Red House elementary schools, the Garrett County Board of Education announced this week its decision on which is the best site; and we agree with their selection.

Their decision is wise from a financial standpoint, as the 22 plus acres can be acquired and needed services provided at far less expense than at the other sites.

The location is excellent, in that it lies just south of State Rt. 135 and just off U.S. Rt. 219, thereby affording easy, convenient access, particularly during the winter months when many of the back roads through the Pleasant Valley area tend to be quickly blocked by snow drifts.

The location is also "neutral" and more convenient for the parents of Red House, who did not want to send their children to "Loch Lynn's new school."

The site offers extra space that provides opportunity for additional educational and recreational enhancements.

It may be interesting when the superintendent of schools goes to the county commissioners to request funding for this purchase. While we hope the commissioners agree with the site selection, we won't be surprised if political intervention is used in an attempt to derail the project. We recall, for example, that it was a campaign promise of Elwood Groves that, as long as he were a commissioner, the Loch Lynn School would remain in Loch Lynn. We also know that the owners of some of the other sites that were under consideration wield considerable local influence with elected officials and others.

We hope all involved will simply act in the best interest of the community and our young people. So far, we believe board of education officials have done just that in their decision on this matter.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was distressed by the attorney general of Maryland's decision not to allow oral prayer as such at the graduation ceremonies. The God who built this great empire is being rejected. We are mutilating the hand that feeds us. I was so glad for Criss Wright and Lucinda Savage, students who concluded their speeches with a prayer. They are to be commended. I know God will be mindful of them for it. It gives me hope that our young adults will have better leadership than our present officials.

My question is: How do our officials get by denying us four or more of our Constitutional rights? Separation of Church and State means the state will not interfere with the Church's activities, just as the right to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed upon. Our freedom is guaranteed. Nothing can be done about T.V. violence, profanity, and pornography. Pornography has been the cause of many violent crimes and mass murders but is allowed to go on. My question is: Where does good sense stop and phony rules begin? Possibly I should have said we have cut off the hand that is caring for and protecting us. The officials we have elected to preserve our freedoms have betrayed us.

To the Editor:

Thank goodness for sensible thinkers like Richard Good, who recently wrote an eloquent letter to the editor stressing the importance of upholding the United States Constitution in keeping church separate from state.

I am a Christian, active in the Lutheran church. I will rear my children as Lutherans, and will do my best to impart my ideas and beliefs to them and then allow them to pursue their own places within or without the church. I hope it will be within. I also hope that they will learn of other religions and beliefs and understand how important it is to tolerate each person's individual right to pursue whatever faith he or she chooses, or his or her right to pursue none at all. I am hopeful that my children will learn not to judge others, as we are all different and have our own ideas as to what is important and what is "right."

If my children understand this, then they will understand the exquisite singularity of the United States in that all persons are free to choose. All persons may decide what religion is right for them, if any at all. Not everyone is a Christian. And although the majority of residents in Garrett County do practice some form or another of Christianity, there are many here who do not. The beauty of the United States is that we may all co-exist - we may all practice whatever faith we choose. And just as important, we are never forced to accept anyone else's idea of what a faith should be.

The issue of prayer in school graduation is upsetting. There are those who, in the name of God, insist that their beliefs be forced on all who attend public schools. This is in direct contradiction to the Constitution - why is it so difficult to grasp that fact? I think it is supremely short-sighted to simply assume that our "founding fathers" believed that everyone surely knew they meant that everyone should be Christians. They didn't mean that at all! Certainly the majority of them were Christians, but they - namely Thomas Jefferson - knew the enormity of the task at hand when it came to drafting the Constitution to serve all in this land. People came to this country because they had not been allowed to practice their own beliefs - they wanted to go where they would be free to do so. It was of utmost importance to those who wrote our Constitution to state with conviction that all individuals are free to choose. That means, in essence, that if you want to be a Christian, you may. If you want to be a Jew, you may. If you want to bow to a blade of grass, you may. BUT - you may not force anyone else to follow your lead, even if you think your way is the only way.

There is a diverse mix of people in this county, ranging from the most fundamentalist Christians to atheists, with all others in between. I for one do not want my children to be forced into worshipping in the public school system in a way that is contradictory or foreign to what they are used to. I do not want them to be subject to embarrassment or even mild uneasiness in school because of someone else's idea of how a prayer should be said. I pray that all those who are clamoring to initiate such a practice would instead focus their energies in their own churches and on their own families, so that the children they love will learn to pray whenever they wish and wherever they are, and will not need to be led in prayer by someone else.

There may be candidates for the school board this year who will be basing their campaigns solely on this issue, which is alarming. There is far more to the public education system than this heated battle for spoken prayer in school. It would be a grave mistake to elect a person to the board whose main objective is to go against the Constitution. Frankly, the issue has little to do with the complexities and diverse dilemmas of the school system.

All those who believe in the separation of church and state should speak out now. There are more than a few who feel this way, and it is time to reaffirm the distinction and strength of a country that does not force religion. And it has nothing to do with "majority." If the majority of people voted to ban guns, it could not be done because of the Constitution's statement that all individuals have the right to bear arms. There is no difference in the right to practice or not practice religion.

It is incorrect to say that school is not a place for praying, because if one is so moved, every place is a place for praying. However, the school system is not a place for Christian education, forced on those who do not subscribe to those beliefs. All who wish to worship any deity may do so on their own time and in their own fashion - a rare gift given to all citizens of this free country. With this freedom, there is no need to commandeer a graduation ceremony's moment of silence and force one's own beliefs on all who are in attendance.

Sincerely,

Mary Sincell McEwen

To the Editor:

Down-state government mentality has struck in Garrett County again! I reside in Avilton, solidly a part of Garrett County. Today in the mail, I finally received my Maryland Income Tax refund check, though not in the amount I had expected. Accompanying the check was an "Individual Income Tax Computation Notice" stating that I had incorrectly computed line 62b Local Income Tax. They recomputed the piggyback tax to 60 percent (Garrett County is 50 percent) and issued a check for the reduced amount. After checking with my accountant, we concluded that they must have keyed off the zip code, and not actually read the return.

I checked with the local tax office in Cumberland

(777-2165) and was told that they were aware of the problem and that the information had gotten to Annapolis too late to be included in their new computer program. He advised me to write a letter to the Comptroller's office requesting the difference. He also advised that anyone living in eastern Garrett County who has an Allegany County address (Frostburg, Lonaconing, Barton, and Westernport) will have the same problem. Every person will have to write to have their income tax corrected.

This will also mean that anyone who does not bother to have this situation corrected will not only pay an additional 10 percent on the piggyback tax, but their tax money will be credited to the wrong county. Garrett County can't afford to lose this much revenue.

Sincerely,
Karl F. Schulte

The undersigned who is producing the play would like to ask the assistance of your readers in acquiring clothes and other paraphernalia indigent in the 1942 era in which the action takes place.

We need the following: poodle skirts, or similar type full skirts; dresses of that period; saddle shoes or Mary Jane's (only those who experienced that era will know what I mean); knickers (for boys, age 16 and 13); a record player and radio of that era; a record of Bing Crosby singing "Be Careful-It's My Heart"; men or boys' sleeveless sweaters; knee socks, Argyle or others (for boys); "Mother Hubbard" apron; and bric-a-brac or memorabilia typical of that era.

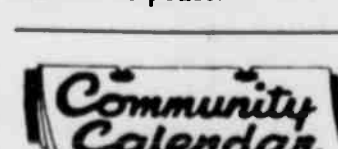

Since Garrett County is presently memorializing that particular era, some of these items may have been unearthed. Any support you could give would be appreciated. Please call if you can be of help.

I want to let the 472 persons who responded to our ad for Orioles baseball to be put on the local cable that your response was appreciated and I thought it was significant enough to cause Triax to at least send a postcard.

We wrote a nice letter to William Critchfield, the general manager, on May 4, 1994, asking if he could help us get HTS on the cable so we could see Orioles baseball. We sent the letter certified with a return receipt, so we know it was received. That was over a month ago, and there has been no response.

View From My Window

AN ALMANAC OF SMELLS

Night meetings fill most of my weeks. Church and politics both call me away from home precisely at those hours when my family is there. For other people the same pattern develops, maybe because they work second shift or play ball or for some other reason.

During the first weeks of June, one consolation prize is being able to roll down the windows on the way home. When I get a whiff of honeysuckle and hay, something happens inside me. They are both sweet smells. Honeysuckle could overwhelm the nose, sitting in the middle of it. Driving down the road, however, when fragrances wait through the window, honeysuckle and hay make me feel cozy in the world.

Maybe in part, those two smells pull a psychological trigger that will always be inside me because I went to school too long. Some corner of my brain sends signals to the rest of my body: "School is almost out. Euphoria is too strong a word to describe the feeling. Blessedness has been relegated too much to religion for the world at large to understand it. Those smells make me feel a sense of accomplishment, and that something -- all other evidence notwithstanding -- is very right with the world."

During this school year I have revisited many scenes of childhood. My wife and I are in the eleventh month of our second year of marriage; we are still newlyweds, really. Since I married not only a wife but a family, and since my wife teaches school, I am responsible for getting the kids out the door each morning. Last year Deborah and the kids were still living in her home while I had improvements made to this place. Her mother, just up the hill from her, did the job I am doing now.

I have struggled with the last minute flurry of unfinished homework, of getting breakfast on the table, of the frustration entailed when our eight-year-old son eats three fried eggs, two rashers of bacon, four pieces of toast, a glass each of juice and milk on one day and next to nothing the following day.

The end of the school year has been punctuated with assemblies, concerts, play days and other events. The sense of accomplishment I feel at the prospect of school being out is not merely psychological. The school days of my childhood and of our children are all captured and communicated in the fragrances of honeysuckle and newly mown hay.

There is an almanac of smells representing the various phases of the year. In the winter the air has a purity on those cold crisp days that it does not have at any other time. Across that pristine absence of smell we catch scents of coal or wood smoke. On those days I can smell the cows on my neighbor's dairy farm.

The first thaw of spring releases the fragrance of earth as if the cold had pent it up. It is like the smell of waking up, before opening the window or taking a shower. When I smell that brown muskiness of March I imagine Earth yawning before climbing out of bed.

Then comes the green smells, grass, leaves, garlic, and then the array of flowers, producing both beauty and fruit. Through the months of April and May one flower succeeds another, until now when the honeysuckle blooms. One more fragrance I await, that of the privet hedge, my favorite. The privet blossoms here in the last days of spring, and its petals fall during the first days of summer.

The summer has its own smells. The mugginess of dog days locks in odors so that by mid-July the air has an unhealthy smell. Environmental officials tell us it is unhealthy indeed. A month later we look to every cloud for rain, and the earth has a scorched smell arising from brown grass and stressed crops. A rain does finally come, and freshness covers the land. Then in a great whirling of equipment we catch the aroma of corn being chopped for silage and the ripening of fall grain crops.

One morning when the air is clear and still, Jack Frost appears. Leaves turn color, and fall to the ground. You can smell them rotting, but not with the stink that rotting suggests. The smells of fall make me think of lovers growing old together, a journey of golden smells toward rest.

But now we are in the last week of spring. The honeysuckle fades, and first cutting hay is mostly in the barn. One smell succeeds another, each signalling some message which we receive and send deep within us. For the almanac of smells is an almanac of memories mingled with hopes. Day by day we renew the visions of our lives all for the price of a deep breath.

I know there is an effort underway to bring a rebuilt cable TV system to the entire area in the future, and it will include HTS and other premium features. We don't know when that will be, and Triax has made it a policy to have no public relations with its subscribers. Nonetheless, a simple response to what amounts to about 25 percent of local patrons would have been appreciated.

One day, Mr. Critchfield, you may not be "the only game in town."

GOBA Holds Monthly Meeting; Minutes Noted

Members of the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA) met Tuesday, June 14, for the regular monthly meeting. Topics discussed included the general membership meeting, scheduled for June 21; the Fresh Air Festival, set for Saturday, June 18; activities at Broadford Lake Park; needs of the town; and other topics. Ellen Casale of the Neighborhood Design Center, Baltimore, was the guest speaker.

Members discussed the town Christmas tree, which is located at the side of the Episcopal church in Oakland. It was decided to discontinue the practice of putting lights on the tree this year, as it has grown too large to decorate. Instead the group has planned to decorate several trees near the large tree and decorate each of those. The trees will have balled roots and will later be planted by Department of Natural Resources personnel.

There is a need for five to six persons to tend the landscape at the Mountain

Fresh Pavilion. A suggestion was made to engage the services of students who are in need of community service hours.

Guest speaker Casale spoke to the group about the workings of the Neighborhood Design Center and advised that the Center could assist the town in seeking funding for the downtown revitalization.

Broadford Lake Park will be the sight of a seafood festival and a "clown around day." The seafood event will take place on June 25, and the clown day will be July 30. Both events are sponsored by the town of Oakland. Any person who wishes to participate in any way is advised to contact Tracey at city hall: 334-2691.

Gala Auction

second dive shop was opened this year at VEPCO Lake in Mt. Storm, where the warm water temperatures attract divers from a four-state area.

Sportsman and businessman Edward "Ned" Holloway has donated a wind surfing lesson for up to four persons. He will provide all necessary equipment for the four-hour session.

A factory representative for Alden Racing Shells, Holloway is also a member of the steering committee of the Mountain Top Soccer Association and serves as a coach for children under 14.

Holloway's wife, Pamela, is a member of the GLAF Board of Directors and the GLAF Benefit Committee. They have donated in the past to the auction which is the festival's only sustaining fund-raiser.

Chip and Laura Chase, owners of the White Grass Ski Touring Center in Canaan Valley, have offered for auction a guided cross-country skiing tour for four, including lunch.

Located in the snowiest part of Canaan Valley where the average snowfall is 150 inches per year, White Grass holds lease to 400 acres of prime Highland ski terrain. An additional 800 is leased and they hold permits from the U. S. Forest Service for recreational use of Dolly Sods and the Canaan Mountain area.

The Chases, who pioneered crosscountry skiing in West Virginia, are native Virginians and operate White Grass from a lodge that housed the old Weiss Knob ski area from 1957 to the mid-60's and has the distinction of being the south's oldest ski building.

"I am very excited that the Chases, Holloways and Savages are contributing," said Charity Janssen, auction chairman and sailor. "The GLAF auction will now have a sports feature that we feel will appeal to more bidders. Perhaps parents will bid on these items for children who return here for holidays."

"The unique aspect of all three sports is their versatility. These sports can be enjoyed by people of different energies, ages, and abilities," she noted.

Additional auction information may be obtained by calling Janssen at 387-5636. Those wishing to make table reservations for the dinner party and auction are asked to call Mary Warther at 387-5692.

Hands-On Projects Offered At Crellin Elementary School

A week of hands-on enrichment activities was recently offered to fourth and fifth grade students at Crellin Elementary School. Sponsored by the school's enrichment program, clusters of high interest, curriculum-related activities were provided by classroom and resource teachers and the principal.

Students chose from activities including "Quilting," instructed by fourth grade teacher Kim Collins. She was assisted by Lottie Brenneman and Lorne Beachy. The participants discussed the history of quilting, saw displays of various types of quilts, and were given a hands-on opportunity to try quilting a pillow.

A second cluster, titled "Native American Projects, Games and Activities," was led by fifth grade teacher Becky Sanders. Students

CRELLIN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL sponsored a week of hands-on activities for all of its fourth and fifth grade students during its recent school enrichment program. read about Cherokee and Navajo Indians, painted a "skin story," played Indian games, and made Navajo fried bread. A special guest, Mary Jones, told the students about early encampments in Garrett County, and shared her native American artifacts.

Creative problem solving and critical thinking were the focus of a third cluster, "Games of Creativity," under the direction of school enrichment teacher Maureen Sharps. Here, the students were given opportunities to solve problems, design unusual inventions, and participate in scientific investigations.

Keith Harvey, principal of Crellin Elementary, told about bluebirds. Participants in this cluster built and painted bluebird houses. They also researched the bluebird and compiled a booklet. Fran Pope donated the book, "More About Bluebirds," to the school's library, and Carroll Miller cut the wood for the bird houses.

Some of the historical uses of kites were discussed in Chapter I resource teacher Barbara Conway's cluster. Her students designed, constructed and flew their own "drinking straw" kites and kite sleds.

On Dean's List Buddy Duckworth Files For Garrett Co. Commissioner

Among the students named to the dean's list at Fairmont State College for the spring 1994 semester is Stacy Allen Fike, according to Dr. H. Dean Peters, vice president for academic affairs.

Miss Fike, a graduate of Northern High School, is a resident of Friendsville.

Junior Ranger Program Slated

The Junior Ranger program at Herrington Manor State Park will begin June 24. Participants will meet every Friday for eight weeks, from June 24 through August 12, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. for youth ages 8-14.

Topics will include Mammals, Safe Boating, Trees, Camping, and others. Youth can earn Junior Ranger certificates and badges upon completion of the program. Space is limited, so parents should call 334-9180 to reserve a space.

Buddy Duckworth of Long Stretch, near Grantsville, has filed for the office of Garrett County Commissioner, district 2. The position is currently filled by John Braskey.

Duckworth is a legislative representative for the Maryland Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, of which he was a founder. He also helps organize local food drives.

"I've never made $28,000 in my life - $20,000 is enough," the candidate said. "I'll split the remaining $8,000 between the local food banks and the senior citizens of Garrett County."

Duckworth, a graduate of Valley High School, studied two years at the Eastern Bible Institute and served from 1962-66 in the United States Marines. He worked as a crew chief on a helicopter during that time.

He was employed at Westvaco from 1966-69, and then established himself as a self-employed contractor. He is also employed by PCM (Power Construction & Maintenance, Inc.) in West Virginia. He is married to Carolyn Duckworth, who will serve as his treasurer, and is the father of five grown children. He is a Republican, and a member of the Christian Coalition.

Having Difficulty Deciding Between a Fixed or Adjustable Rate Mortgage?

No Problem...Choose Both!

American Trust Bank offers a mortgage loan that gives you the benefit of both fixed and adjustable rates. The 5/1 mortgage provides a fixed rate for the first five years and then automatically converts to a one year adjustable rate mortgage for the remaining term. You get an initial 5 year fixed rate that's lower than most 15 or 30 year fixed rate mortgages.

Plus, as with other American Trust mortgages, you have the opportunity to choose a biweekly payment feature that saves thousands of dollars in interest paid over the term, a no points option and a low downpayment option.

Visit any American Trust Bank community office for further details on how you can get a fixed rate and adjustable rate mortgage in ONE!

EGLON HOME MAKERS

The June 7 meeting of the Eglon Extension Home-makers was held at the Eglon Memorial Building and opening devotions were led by Mary Rembold and Sandra Hauser.

Rebecca Teets led the discussion of "Growing Older: The Young-Old Years." She displayed books which help develop both good attitude and physical activity.

Mary Rembold reported on the success of the Spring Fling. Plans were made for a family picnic to be held July 12 at Cathedral State Park at 6:30 p.m.

The club members reported that 10 hours had been spent reading to children. Many of the members have no grandchildren nearby with whom to spend time. Activity books were placed in the waiting room of the Eglon Clinic for the use of children there.

Hostess for the day, Mary Rembold, displayed a hand-sewn and stuffed frog which her son had made in school. Linda Lewis provided a bit of levity and Jean Winters showed copies of a living will and advanced medical directives as further follow-up on her lesson on wills.

Those attending were the above named and Ruth Teets, Mary Teets, Avenell Parsons, Nina Layman, Lectie Bonner, Lillian Knotts. The next meeting will be the July 12 picnic at Cathedral State Park.

The members of the late Amelias and Ada Beachy Fike met Sunday for a reunion at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building.

Cousins Robbie Frantz and Melvin Ray Frantz of Eglon were involved in an automobile accident on Saturday morning on the Ben DeWitt Road. Both were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment, where Robbie was admitted for observation with a concussion.

Both vehicles were destroyed. Robbie is the son of Robert and Kathy Frantz and Melvin is the son of Don and Neva Frantz.

Vernon Harsh of Eglon was transported by ambulance from Coastal Lumber at Horse Shoe Run to Garrett Memorial Hospital last week, but able to return to his home.

Harry Albright, father of Sharon Hammel, Eglon, was released from the hospital and returned last Wednesday to his home.

Robert Hauser of Gnegy Church is a patient in Ruby Memorial Hospital.

Sunday guests at the Maple Spring Church were pastors Don and Eleanor Robinson, Earle W. and Jean Fike, Dale and Gladys Hylton. All are members of the 1952 graduating class of Bethany Biblical Seminary and they, along with other classmates, are vacationing this week at Deep Creek Lake. Mrs. Robinson is the former Eleanor Judy, whose parents were Ray and Carrie Judy of Eglon. The Rev. Fike is a grandson of the late Ezra Fike of Eglon and a childhood visitor here. The Rev. Hylton is a cousin of former pastor, Clyde Hylton.

Recent guests of Beadie and Barbara Heckert in Eglon were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strawser and Linda

Marjorie Kuhlman of Mtn. Lake Park was admitted Sunday to Garrett Memorial Hospital. She is a sister of Mrs. Lectie Bonner, Eglon.

Members of the eighth grade class of Thomas Davis Elementary and Middle School went last week to Washington, D.C., where they visited several places of interest, including the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. They met with Congressman Alan Mollohan, and stayed overnight.

The following day was spent at King's Dominion.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Winters of Columbus, Ohio, were Saturday overnight guests of her brother-in-law and sister, Lewis and Hazel Durst at Amboy.

Frances Stemple of Eglon was taken Saturday afternoon to Garrett County Memorial Hospital after a fall at her home.

Garrett Legion Team Captures First-Half Title

The Garrett County Junior American Legion baseball team, coached by Ed Wildesen, captured the first-half division title in the Mountain District by edging Fort Cumberland Post 13 Tuesday evening at Garrett Community College and improving its district record to 5-0.

Garrett came into the contest after defeating the same team last Thursday evening, 3-1, in Cumberland.

In Thursday's contest, Alan Sebald, who has been drafted by the Baltimore Orioles, smacked a two-run double to account for two of Garrett's runs. Garrett scored all three of its runs in the fifth inning.

Sebald also recorded a single and Bobby Fritz added a double and a single in Garrett's seven-hit offense.

Fort Cumberland managed just four hits off Jeff Martin and Jeremy Fitzwater, with Jason Holler getting two singles.

In Tuesday's contest, the Garrett County hurlers were down 7-6 going into the bottom of the eighth inning, but rallied for three runs and the win.

Tim Sines drew a walk with one out in the inning and then moved to third on a double by Rich Warnick. Fritz followed with a sacrifice fly to score Sines and Warnick came home on a passed ball to give Garrett the lead for good at 8-7.

Warnick finished with two doubles and scored twice, Josh Woods doubled and singled, and Sebald doubled for Garrett.

Grantsville Falls To Central, Then Tops Ellerslie

Grantsville was stopped in Bi-State Pony League action at home Saturday by county rival Central Garrett, 20-9, as Central avenged an earlier loss to the Grantsville team.

Zack Leverenz, Jason King, and Herman Arndt each homered and singled to pace Central's 11-hit effort.

Central seemed to have the game under control after three and one-half innings by moving out to a 9-1 advantage, but Grantsville came back to record eight runs in the bottom of the fourth to tie the score.

Central Garrett answered with 11 more runs over the final three innings, while holding Grantsville scoreless, to earn the win.

Andy Brenneman and Leverenz allowed only five Grantsville hits. Joe Layman had two of them, a homer and a single, while Zach Rawe and Aaron Blocher each had a double.

The result left both teams with a 4-2 record; however, Grantsville rebounded Sunday to defeat host Ellerslie, 9-2, despite being out-hit 11-6 by the home team.

Joe Fullerton singled twice to lead Grantsville's offense, while Matt Fritz fanned seven batters to earn the complete-game win on the mound.

Mike Brailer rapped a double and a pair of singles for Ellerslie (4-3), Brian

After winning league championships in 1986 and 1989, the young Oaks are sporting a new look for the 1994 season with replicas of the Pittsburgh Pirate home uniforms.

The Pen-Mar League spawned players like John Kruk, Leo Mazzone, Sam Perlozzo, and recently drafted Greg and Tony Whiteman. Persons interested in playing or desiring more information may call Terry Helbig at 334-3343 or 334-4491.

Garrett Leads Record Spring Turkey Harvest

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Division announced recently that hunters bagged a record number of wild turkeys during the 1994 spring gobbler season. A total of 1,726 wild turkeys were reported harvested during the four-week season, a 30 percent increase from 1993's record of 1,326 turkeys. The leading counties were Garrett, 559; Allegany, 394; Washington, 283; Calvert, 128; and Frederick, 110.

Many sportsmen were concerned that the severe winter weather caused mortality in the wild turkey population. Only minimal winter mortality was documented and turkey populations appeared very healthy going into the spring season.

All areas across the state reported good numbers of turkeys in the fall as a result of an excellent hatch year in 1993. This factor and good weather conditions during the spring hunting season resulted in a record kill during the 1994 spring gobbler season.

The number harvested in Garrett County (559) was also a record, as only 378 were taken last spring, 396 in 1992, 379 in 1991, and 356 in 1990.

The success of the wild turkey trap and transplant program is evident by the increasing number of turkeys being harvested from the transplant areas. A total of 806 wild turkeys have been released in unoccupied habitats in Maryland since 1979, with 421 turkeys released since 1990. Wild turkey populations have now been established in all counties of the state, providing recreational opportunities for sportsmen and citizens. Maryland's wild turkey population is estimated to be between 15-18,000 birds, a dramatic improvement directly related to the trap and transplant program.

How To Watch A Soccer Game

by Dave Spirk

Part I of this series focused on soccer trivia. In Part II we focused on the 17 laws of the Game of Soccer to try to explain some of the basic rules of play. This time we will begin to talk a little about how the game is played. If you really want to understand what's going on you've got to watch some games. This is how you will be able to begin to translate these works into your own personal understanding of the game. Now, let's talk about...

The Positions of Soccer

Soccer is a funny game in that there are several names for the same positions. However, there are basically three positions on the field. They are defenders, mid fielders, and forwards. Let's talk defense first.

The anchor of the team is the Goalkeeper. He is sometimes called the Goalie or the Keeper, but not a Goal tender as in hockey. This is the only person on the whole field who may use his hands when controlling the ball. He can only use his hands when he is inside the Penalty Area, the large rectangular box painted on the field in front of the goal. However, he is not allowed to handle the ball anywhere if one of his own team mates kicks it to him. (This prevents stalling and time wasting.) He can play anywhere on the field just like a field player, but his main job is to stop shots on goal from going into the net. He is easy to find because he must dress differently from all his team mates and he can't even match the other team's colors. Usually he wears some sort of protective clothing with long sleeves or pants and most often he wears specialized gloves to help in controlling the ball.

Most teams use four other defenders. The one closest in front of the Goalie is called a Sweeper. His job is to serve as the final line of defense to prevent shots on goal. Usually to the left and right of the sweeper are the Fullbacks, sometimes called Wing Defenders. Their job is to prevent attacks from the outside areas of the field. The lead defender plays a bit more up the field and in the middle of the area. He is called a Stopper. It is his job to break up an attack that comes through the heart of the defense where shots have a good chance of going into the net.

Using this same system, the next line of players moving up the field are called Midfielders. Sometimes they are referred to as Halfbacks. Whichever they are called, they are usually designated as left, right, and center. These players must be in top condition because they must set up breakaways on offense and just as quickly recover to prevent breakaways by the opponents. They must go both ways to ensure success. It is commonly known that the team that controls the midfield wins the game. The Center Halfback is typically one of the best ball handlers on the field and tends to be a play maker for his team.

The front line players are called Forwards. Their job is to score goals. They must come back on defense somewhat, but rarely go into their own territory beyond the halfway line. In the system I have described thus far, there

Youth Soccer Registration Deadline Noted

Nearly 300 area youth from Garrett County and neighboring West Virginia and Pennsylvania areas have registered to play in the fall season of the Mountaintop Youth Soccer League, according to Carole Ann Lovett, Mountaintop Soccer Association president.

Registration will continue into the summer, but a late fee of $10 will be added to the regular $15 registration fee after June 25.

Thus, all youth ages 5-17 who plan to participate in the league are urged to register as soon as possible to avoid the late fee and to assure themselves assignment to a team.

Uniforms will be ordered in July this year and practice will begin in late August. For more information, persons may contact Jan Finkel at 387-5488 or Sandi Flockhart at 387-7585.

Strategy

The system I have described for you is referred to as a 4-3-3 system of player. (4 defenders, 3 midfielders, and 3 forwards). You never count the Goalie when you set up a system, and they are always counted from the back (defense) to the front (offense). Other systems commonly used in full-sided games include a 3-3-4, a 4-3-4, and a 5-3-2 (most common to international competition). Coaches design their system around the skills of their players and the style of their opponents.

As you begin to watch soccer, you will begin to understand more about the game. One key difference you will quickly note is that any player may go forward and score. This is called total soccer and is played by very skilled teams. It takes a high level of concentration by the midfielders who often must drop back and cover a zone vacated by a defender who is "making a run." Some teams will even have players roam to "mark" a star player man-to-man for the entire game. Others will play a very strict zone defense. There are no illegal defenses and there are no shot clocks.

Until you develop an eye for the game, you may wonder why so many passes go into open space. These are not messed passes, they are usually a lead pass behind a defender which is set up to allow a forward to run onto the ball and gain speed to try to score. Attackers always try to create space and use their speed to set up a score. Defenders always try to condense space and delay speed to shut down an attacker.

With a clock that doesn't stop, neither does the action. The non-stop action of soccer really adds to the excitement! Even this year's sponsors have adapted their advertising to support the game. All you will see on TV during live action is a Corporate logo in the corner of your screen.

The next article will be the final part of this series. It is designed to tell you a bit about the officiating crew who are trained not to influence the outcome of the game... merely to fairly and impartially control it. Here's hoping that you're enjoying this information and that may be you've even gone out and caught a local kids' game/practice session to further develop your appreciation of the "World's Favorite Sport."

Men's Doubles Tennis League Formed At MLP

A men's doubles tennis league has been organized at the Mtn. Lake Park Tennis Club courts, as eight teams began play on Monday. The teams will play on Mondays for the next eight weeks.

The team of Jack Jones and Bob Teets defeated the team of Darrell and Gary Gregory in Monday's action, while Sean Gregory and Hugh Umbel topped the team of Mark and Brandon Ferguson.

There are also two women's doubles leagues playing on the clay courts, one on Tuesday mornings and the other on Wednesday mornings.

This Saturday, June 18, there will be a free tennis clinic for area youth ages 8 to 16 (see separate story). Tennis rackets, balls, and prizes will be provided.

"We are hoping that the league play, the youth clinic, and the three tournaments that are scheduled for the summer will elevate the popularity of tennis locally," stated Darrell Gregory, representing the MLP Tennis Club.

Food For Thought

McClive's Restaurant

Flavors of the Mediterranean—onion, tomatoes and artichokes—are wonderful for braising chicken. In Italy, the chicken is seasoned with fennel and oregano and served with pasta. On the Eastern side of the sea, there's cinnamon in the pot and couscous on the plate.

Barbecue foods taste best made on a clean grill. The easy way: heat the grill, then clean the rack with a wire brush dipped in water. Brush rack with oil, to prevent sticking, just before adding food.

Healthful, low-cost snacks for the kids: juice on a stick. Make your own pops with juice in a paper cup. Cover with foil and poke in a wooden stick. Freeze. To eat, remove the cup and the foil.

A gallon-size plastic bag will keep your cookbook or recipe file free of spills and splatters when you cook.

The very best nectarines and peaches have golden yellow skin without tinges of green. Buy firm fruit by color, then let ripen at room temperature in a paper bag.

Bike Rodeo In Crellin Slated For This Monday

Bike riders of all ages are invited to attend Crellin's bicycle safety rodeo on Monday, June 20, at 6 p.m. at the Crellin Elementary School parking area. Organized by the Garrett County Health Department's Community Outreach Team and Crellin's Summer Youth Program, the event incorporates bicycle inspections, skills tests for riders, a safety course on cycling rules and proper helmet use, and outdoor activities and certificates for all participants. The rodeo will be the official kick-off event for Crellin's Summer Youth Program.

Riders will have the opportunity to have their bicycles inspected for free by the staff of High Mountain Sports from Deep Creek Lake before testing their skills in more than 10 riding obstacle courses. Riders will practice stopping and starting, as well as balancing, signaling, and controlling on their bikes. All participants will be given a brief safety presentation discussing the rules of the road, as well as the importance of always wearing a bicycle helmet properly when riding. Numerous activities, including relay games, will take place during the course of the rodeo, and refreshments and participation certificates will be available for everyone present.

Volunteer service hours are available to local students who donate their time to help organize and setup this event. Anyone interested in volunteering for the rodeo should contact Michael Mudge at 334-9795 or Joelle Plauger at 334-8111.

CRELLIN STUDENTS RECEIVE BIKE HELMETS - A bike safety program was held recently at Crellin Elementary School for kindergarten through fifth grade students. The Garrett County Health Department presented the safety program and the Garrett County Board of Education contributed 16 bike helmets to be given to students via a lottery drawing process. The winners are pictured. In the front row, left to right, are Cane Baker, Randy Roy, Kalle Hostutler, and David Burns. In the second row, same order, are Brian Edwards, Chaz Lantz, Amanda Joseph, Dana Stemple, Trista Guthrie, Mindy Bolyard, and Jimmy Sisler. In the third row, same order, are Ryan Upole, Josh Porter, Angela Upole, Tina Corby, and June Ours.

Crellin's bike rodeo is the third in a series of community bicycle events being sponsored throughout the summer by the Outreach Team and local community groups. The rodeos are part of a bicycle safety mini-grant that was awarded to the Health Department by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Injury Prevention program.

BICYCLE SAFETY -- Students at Crellin Elementary School recently received a lesson in bicycle safety and helmet use by two members of the Garrett County Health Department's Community Outreach Team. Nancy Rhine and Sharon Savage, along with their special guest "Buckle Bear," talked to kindergarten through fifth grade students about where to ride bikes in their community, what to wear when riding, how to use proper hand signals and follow the rules of the road, and how to take care of their bikes. In addition, the Outreach Team members demonstrated how to properly wear bicycle helmets when riding. Pictured is Jonathan Stern from the kindergarten class helping Ms. Rhine with the helmet demonstration. All participants received handouts and activity books on bicycle safety as part of the presentation. Students were also reminded of the upcoming Crellin Bicycle Safety Rodeo, scheduled for Monday, June 20, at 6 p.m., at the elementary school and Crellin United Brethren Church area. Following the activity, Keith Harvey, principal of Crellin Elementary School, held a drawing and presented 16 new bicycle helmets to winning students. The helmets were donated to the school by the local Board of Education.

her staff, as well as all physicians, were asked to present suggestions on cost savings and cost containment. Many of the suggestions received have been incorporated in the overall plan that was presented by the hospital administration to the Board of Governors on Monday.

Four and one-half full-time positions were eliminated, resulting in the layoff of five employees. An additional 11 fulltime positions that are presently open through attrition will not be filled, Rosenthal said.

"These efforts, some of which are painful, are being implemented to assure a strong and viable future for our community's hospital," Rosenthal said. "We want to continue to maintain the hospital services that the community expects, needs, and deserves, and to accomplish that in the most cost-efficient way without eroding the quality of those services."

Cost containment efforts will continue to be an ongoing process, along with the researching of other revenue enhancing programs, Rosenthal said.

"Many of these actions are reflective of the pressures all health care providers are facing as the nation tries to deal with major health care reform issues," he said.

Bartlett Still Pushing For Info From White House

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (MD-6) vowed yesterday to push forward with his efforts to convince -- or free -- the White House to release helicopter travel records for staff in the wake of last month's discovery of abuse of the Marine helicopters by White House staff that resulted in the firing of White House Administrator David Watkins.

The Bartlett amendment to the Treasury, Postal Service Appropriations Bill to withhold $13,129.66 from the White House Administrative budget until the White House releases complete documentation on White House staff helicopter travel failed in the House Wednesday by a 195 to 236 vote. Bartlett now plans to request the GAO (Government Accounting Office) to launch an official investigation.

According to Bartlett, the amendment was a symbolic measure to provide Congress with a voice in communicating to the White House that full disclosure was needed on helicopter travel at taxpayer expense. The $13,129.66 was the White House estimate of the cost of the staff golf outing led by David Watkins on May 24. The congressman said he has sent three letters to the White House requesting the helicopter travel logs and manifests, but has been issued no response.

Bartlett said, although many Democrats voted for his amendment, too many more were urged by the Democratic leadership to vote along party lines. "When a great deal of pressure is applied to be strictly partisan, democrats in Congress are fearful to vote their own minds, and the wishes of their constituents," said Bartlett. "I did not want this to be a partisan vote, but there apparently was a high degree of arm twisting by the Democratic leadership as they tried to circle the wagons around President Clinton."

Garth is the grandson of Fred Glotfelty, Oakland, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Stemple, Crellin.

Public Works Bd. May Reclaim Vindex Mine Site

The state Board of Public Works is expected to vote this month on a $2.9 million contract to reclaim land at the old Vindex coal mine site near Kitzmiller.

According to written reports, mining at the Vindex site preceded federal regulations and has left a series of public and safety hazards. If approved, the reclamation work will include regrading the site to knock down refuse piles, putting a layer of topsoil down, and planting grass and other vegetation.

The Board of Public Works put off approval of the program earlier this month, because it was decided the reclamation work will not stop acidic water draining from the mine, a major source of pollution for the North Branch of the Potomac River and its tributaries.

The Maryland Bureau of Mines, under the direction of Tony Abar, "would like to take care of the water quality problems," but federal policy prohibits such action.

Under current federal policy, state officials are allowed to use only 10 percent of the federal money they receive for mine reclamation for reasons such as improving water quality, according to Abar. Maryland uses that part of its allocation to defray the cost of four lime dosers placed along the Potomac River and its tributaries. The dosers release crushed limestone into the rivers to bring down the acidity of the water.

Officials said additional money is being sought to fund a doser at the Vindex mine, which was reportedly owned by Manor Coal Co. from 1903 through the late '50s. In 1967 the 74-acre site was bought by the Douglas Coal Co., Elkins, W.Va., which has not mined it, and the company's president, Christopher Polino, had no comment as to whether it would be mined in the near future. At this point, the Douglas Coal Co. is not responsible for the cleanup's cost, officials said.

Q. My hooked rug pictures a dog sled and driver in a snow scene. On the back of the rug is the label "Grenfell Industries, Newfoundland, Labrador." How old is it?

A. Sir Wilfred Grenfell was a medical missionary in Labrador, visiting Eskimo patients in remote areas. He also set up a rugmaking industry to help earn money. Rugs were sold through the Grenfell missions in Labrador. Typical designs included scenes with dogsleds, polar bears, puffins and Canada geese. They were made from about 1900 to 1930. Collectors will pay hundreds of dollars for the small rugs. The large ones sell for over $1,000.

Q. My Mutt and Jeff bank was hiding in the rafters of my old house. It is made of cast iron with gold paint and is five inches high. What is its age and value?

A. The A.C. Williams Co. of Ravenna, Ohio, made the Mutt and Jeff bank from 1912 to 1931. Mutt and Jeff were comic strip characters created by H.C. Fisher in 1907. The value of your bank in good condition is over $200.

Tip: Don't soak ivory in water. It will soften any glue and may damage the patina.

Q. Why does so much Victorian and Art Nouveau jewelry picture snakes, salamanders and insects? It seems like a strange idea to wear an unattractive reptile as a necklace.

A. The language of love usually suggests that jewelry for sweethearts should be hearts, flowers or Cupids. The "vocabulary" was somewhat different in the past. The snake swallowing its tail is an ancient symbol of eternal love. The salamander, which was thought to withstand burns, was a symbol of passionate love. The butterfly was a symbol of Psyche, the goddess of higher emotions, including love. The fly represented humility, an appropriate virtue for the ideal woman of the 19th century.

Other popular symbols of love and romance used in 19th-century jewelry included Cupids, arrows, wishbones, small boats, doves and even wings from birds. The lovers' knot and the Japanese Musubikiri knot, which could not easily be untied, were always popular. The color illustrated book, "The Triumph of Love: Jewelry 1530 to 1930," by Geoffrey C. Munn (Thames and Hudson, $29.95) explains more about the symbolism used for jewelry.

GOOD READING: For too many seniors, the dream of living out their lives in their own homes is being shattered because of an amendment that was thrust into the new Federal Omnibus Budget Act at the last moment. This provides that states who wish to do so are permitted to recoup Medicaid expenses from surviving spouses or children. This means a widow or widower, for example, who had been forced to rely on Medicaid to help pay for a loved one's care, may find a lien put on his or her house. Indeed, the state could put a lien on any asset, including a wedding ring.

Nolo Press, which publishes helpful guides on various legal matters that are relevant to many of us at some time in our lives, recently published "Beat the Nursing Home Trap: Choosing & Financing Long Term Care" by San Francisco lawyer, Joseph Matthews. Among other points of interest in the book is the one that can help people protect their assets from Medicaid liens. Meanwhile, contact your congressional representative and senator and demand that this provision of the Budget Act be removed. I know for a fact that some of my most fiscally conservative colleagues were shocked to learn the price many Americans will be forced to pay for states to keep then budgets balanced.

I'd also like to recommend "Unbelievably Good Deals: Great Adventures That You Absolutely Can't Get Unless You're Over 50." This updated version of the only book to win the 1993 Mature Media Award is filled with information about money-saving ventures for everything from college educations to worldwide vacations with the grandkids. It's written by Joan Ratner Heilman and published by Contemporary.

WATCH OUT FOR HOME SCAMS: There are reports of older people being offered loans, regardless of their ability to repay, with their homes used as collateral. High interest rates (some as much as 25 to 30 percent) and high monthly payments, plus bogus fees and a balloon payment at the end of the loan are contributing to a growing number of people losing their homes because they cannot repay their debt.

If you need cash, please do not do business with anyone until you have had them checked out by your local Better Business Bureau.

Home Tips

FAST LID. — This tip concerns how to manage refrigerated leftovers.

I bought a grease pencil and wrote the name of the leftover on the lid of the plastic container I store it in. It is easily removed with warm water and a little kitchen cleaner.

I also keep a roll of masking tape handy, and if there is no place on the lid to write, I put the name on a small piece of tape.

Either method marks each container individually and works much better than a list hanging on the refrigerator or freezer door. Mandy R., Brooklyn, N.Y.

DAINTY DUDS. — Those perfumed pages in magazines are useful to me. I open the pages so the perfumed paper is exposed and place them in the folds of my newly laundered towels, lingerie and handkerchiefs. Betty H., Philadelphia, Pa.

ODOR ABSORBER. — A few years ago, my wife and I had a problem with odor in our new refrigerator. We tried many solutions, including throwing out opened and leftover foods. When nothing worked, we contacted the manufacturer's representative. He said to put several flat trays of deodorized catbox filler in the refrigerator and leave it there for several days. That did the trick! Hal M., Jersey City, N.J.

NO MORE SKINNED KNEES. — I have a solution to skinned and grubby knees on babies who are just starting to crawl. My husband wears out the toes of his tube socks before the tops, so I cut the tops off and put them on my daughter as knee pads. The different colors match her outfits and keep her knees clean and protected as she crawls around. It also makes wash day easier and keeps those little outfits looking brand new. Mary Anne G., W. Nyack, N.Y.

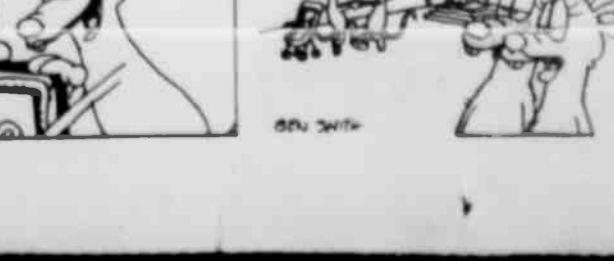

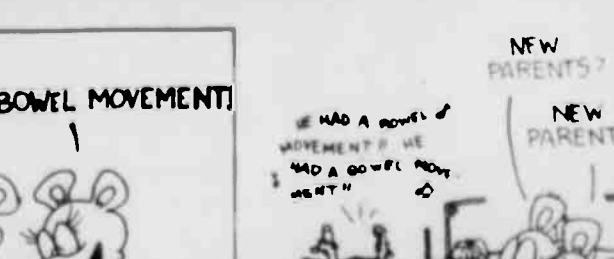

A LITTLE OFF THE TOP. — Like most people today, my husband and I are trying to cut the amount of fat in our diets. Often the recipes call for chicken broth with the fat "strained" out. Much to my delight, I discovered that keeping canned broth in the refrigerator works just like other forms of liquid fat. When I open the refrigerated cans of broth, it's easy to lift the ball of fat right out of the can. Gracie M., Jacksonville, Fla.

Burlington United Methodist Family Services, Inc. will be conducting an Adoption Information Workshop from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 25. The workshop is free of charge and will be open to anyone interested in learning more about adoption. The day long event will be held at Burlington United Methodist Family Services' offices on U.S. Route 220 just south of Keyser, W. Va. COVER STORY

ABC, ESPN embrace coverage of World Cup

BY SARA BENNETT

This is a sport that really hasn't been embraced in this country," says ABC and ESPN play-by-play man Roger Twibell referring to soccer.

Why, then, is the United States playing host to the World Cup, the largest single-sport event on the planet?

We really just ought to look at this really big time of coming here and take it in that, and let it go," Twibell says.

Such is the sentiment among many broadcasters set to call the action, which began Friday, June 17, and continues through the final on Sunday, July 17.

ABC, ESPN and ESPN2 will broadcast all 52 games, mostly live. The nine chosen regions are Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles, Orlando, Fla., Boston, New York, Washington, D.C., San Francisco and Detroit, whose Pontiac Silverdome becomes the first indoor venue ever to be used in World Cup competition.

Although the competition among the world's best is nothing short of fierce, interest in soccer in the United States just doesn't compare to the support shown in other countries.

You're going to be treated to the best soccer in the world," says ESPN play-by-play announcer Bob Ley, "the best soccer players in the world, the most incredible passions and vignettes and moments of comic opera and high drama. And there's no way that anything we can put on, be it the new league next year, be it the collegiate league, can compare to this."

The new Major Soccer League will kick off next year as a requirement imposed by the Federation Internationale de Football Association (FIFA) would not have allowed the United States to serve as the World Cup's host country if a major outdoor league had not been in the works.

But "the sport has many hur-

dles to overcome before it can sustain itself professionally at a level that anywhere approaches any of the European or South American nations," Ley says. "It (the World Cup) will be a marvelous event for 31 days, and after that we'll be roughly right back where we started."

Putting aside the upcoming league, the current tournament features fantastic matchups worthy of some attention.

After opening up against Switzerland on Saturday, June 18, the U.S. team faces a tough Colombian squad, Wednesday, June 22, on ESPN. And ABC continues with live first-round coverage of the U.S. vs. Romania on Sunday, June 26.

The U.S. team may not measure up to some of the other powers (Germany, Brazil, Italy, Argentina and Colombia), but the team's strength lies in the fact that "a large number of them (players) have been able to train together over the course of nearly a year-and-a-half," says Ty Kough, an ESPN analyst.

"It's also a minus," he adds, "due to the fact that we do not have a major professional outdoor soccer league, so the guys have been available to play together almost two, three times a month."

Perhaps the new league will provide a much-needed boost to U.S. soccer in time for the next World Cup.

'Homeward Bound' looks at families on film

BY SUZANNE GILL

If American Movie Classics' original programs haven't begun showing up in the curricula of college film schools already, they will soon.

The 9-year-old cable movie channel has made it a habit not only to show older films in uncut, noncolorized and frequently restored versions, it has provided context for them in its interview series "Reflections on the Silver Screen" and its frequent specials.

The latest of these is "Homeward Bound," debuting Tuesday, June 21, at the conclusion of AMC's Family Film Festival, which begins on Father's Day, Sunday, June 19.

From "The Grapes of Wrath" to "Menace II Society," the hour-long special examines the changing values and traditions of the American family, as reflected in popular films. Among those interviewed are Stanley Kramer ("Guess Who's Coming to Dinner"), Paul Mazursky ("Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice"), Ron Howard ("Parenthood"), Julie Harris ("East of Eden"), Ellen Burstyn ("Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"), Barry Levinson ("Avalon") and authors David Conisidine and Stephanie Coontz.

Additional film clips come from "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "The Best Years of Our Lives," "Father of the Bride," "Rebel Without a Cause," "Ordinary People," "Kramer vs. Kramer" and "A Raisin in the Sun." They show how the relationships within the family have changed over half a century, and how a more diverse and less idealized vision emerged after decades of painful experimentation. The new movie families, the filmmakers conclude, show their resiliency and their value to society.

She had a recurring role on "The Hogan Family" for two years and starred in the TV movies "Danielle Steel's 'Secrets'" and "Posing." Feature films include "The Book of Love." The Seattle native lives in Los Angeles with her husband, Rob Estes of "Silk Stalkings."

Q: Please tell me how to get in touch with Sylvester Stallone. -Peggy Lynn, Findlay, Ohio.

A: Try writing to him C/O CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

A: C/O ICM, 8942 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211.

A: Write to Linda C/O Fox Broadcasting Company, 10201 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90035. The two actresses are not related.

Q: Please help me find my cousin! David Clennon, who played Miles Drentell on "thirtysomething," is my relative, according to research. Where can I write him? -Maggie Clennon, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A: Your cousin is one of my favorite actors, Maggie, so I worked overtime on this one. Unfortunately, he recently left the last agency he was listed with, and no one at several places I contacted, including the Screen Actors Guild, had any forwarding information for him. Sorry.

Q: How do I reach Cindy Crawford? My 7-year-old has a letter for her. -Eina Routzahn, St. Peters, Mo.

A: Write to her C/O MTV, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036.

A: Write to him C/O ABC Television Network, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

Q: I recently heard that Mark-Paul Gosselaar was killed. Is this why "Saved by the Bell: The College Years" doesn't come on anymore? -Tiffany Reid, Champaign, Ill.

A: Gosselaar is fine but understandably ticked off by that rumor. "Bell" was yanked after it bombed in the ratings.

SOAP TALK

Stabb making slow, steady progress

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I haven't heard anything lately about the young actor who played Hart on "Guiding Light." I thought he was wonderful and I really miss his character.

Could you please tell me if he is still in a coma? I would also like to know where I can write to him. I want to let him know that his fans are still thinking about him. -C.S. in Maine.

Dear Reader: Leonard Stabb (Hart) is doing much better, according to a source close to the show. He is out of the coma and can maneuver his wheelchair on his own. The doctors say he still has a great deal of recovery yet to come, but they will not give a time line as to how quickly Stabb may heal.

You can write to him C/O Guiding Light, CBS TV, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Candace: My grandma and I are hoping you can settle an argument. I say that the actress who plays Dru on "The Young and the Restless" is also on the nighttime show "Diagnosis Murder" with Dick Van Dyke. My grandma says it is two different actresses. I know she will believe you. Really continued in Texas.

Dear Reader: Sorry grandma, but this time the grandchild is right. Victoria Rowell, who portrays Drucilla on "Y&R," also plays a doctor, Amanda, on "Diagnosis Murder."

Dear Candace: While watching "Y&R," I found one thing that I find most annoying is the constant interference into lives of others. The biggest culprit is Jack. At the best of times

Victoria Rowell

I can't stand this free-loading guy with his arrogance and sneering grin.

I know "Y&R" likes to keep current with their subject matter. I can understand their latest effort to deal with impotence, but the idea that a son and daughter would discuss this with their father is quite out of line and unacceptable.

I believe that "Y&R" should be taken to task on this one. -Mary Ashby, Toronto.

Dear Reader: Jack, who has been played by Peter Bergman for the last five years, has never been a very likable character. But that hasn't kept Bergman from picking up two Emmys for outstanding acting.

This isn't the first time impotence has been handled on a soap. "Loving" did it a few years ago, in that case, too, the entire family was involved.

MOVIE MARQUEE

Check gold retirement watches at the door

BY JEFF PLASS

"I may not be able to digest fried foods, but I can still digest clues," says Chance Wayne (Dennis Weaver) in the two-hour premiere of "Greyhounds," Friday, June 24, on CBS.

Yes, for those who can't get enough of meddling old geezers who don't know when to just sit back and collect social security, "Greyhounds" is here.

It's almost as if "Burke's Law" and "Diagnosis, Murder" got together with "Murder, She Wrote" in some Frankenstein-esque laboratory and resurrected "McCloud," "Benson" and Arnold from "Happy Days" into a medication-popping, blood-pressure-checking, crime-solving machine.

Weaver, Robert Guillaume, Pat Morita and James Coburn make up the "Greyhounds."

Weaver stars as Chance Wayne, a retired sheriff who has, for years, been investigating the murder of a college co-ed.

When an informant turns up dead, Chance seeks help from two old friends, retired judge Robert "Maximum Bob" Smith (Guillaume) and ex-policie psychiatrist Akira "Mochi" Mochizuki (Morita), and from a long time foe, "reformed" con artist John Dolan (Coburn).

Impressed with their seasoned savvy, attractive, young U.S. Attorney Jolo Golina (Rosann Baggs) turns to the veteran foursome for help with the case.

Now here comes the fun part. It's not all that bad.

Is "Greyhounds" cheesy? Of course it is, but since when is cheesiness any reason not to watch something?

Based on a story co-written by Stephen J. Cannell, who's had a few hits on TV in his day, "Greyhounds" is just cute enough to make viewers forget that they shouldn't be watching it.

After all, what's new, different or exciting about four old-timers who sleuth a murder that the "whippersnapping" federal agents can't seem to put together?

Only those who watch it will ever know.

Other movies on TV this week include ABC's salute to Father's Day, "Dad," starring Ted Danson, Jack Lemmon and Ethan Hawke, on Sunday, June 19.

On Monday, June 20, Fox and NBC offer rebroadcasts of "M.A.N.I.T.S." and "In the Line of Duty. Anubish in Wa-co," respectively. Patty Duke stars as herself in "Call Me Anna," on ABC. CBS presents graduation day for the kids of "DeGrass High" in "School's Out" (check local listings).

TIME OUT

Fox preparing kickoff of pro football coverage

BY JEANNE MARINO

Fox will use new technology to tackle coverage of the NFL. The San Francisco 49ers and Denver Broncos signal a new era for the young network in a preseason matchup on Friday, Aug. 12.

David Hill, president of Fox Sports, heads creation of the sports division including NFL broadcasts. Hill is no stranger to launching sports networks, listing the start of Sky Sports, the United Kingdom's first dedicated sports channel, among his credits.

He emphasizes Fox will not "trivialize" the NFL, stating, "We realize that we have been given a sacred trust, in sporting terms, and we're going to treat it with the reverence that it deserves."

One of the moves made to help ensure Fox's success in coverage of the NFL is recruiting some of the staff from the network it was able to grab the NFL contract away from CBS.

The converts include 10-time Emmy-winning producer Ed Goren and the highly regarded broadcasting team of John Madden and Pat Summerall.

Ron Pitts, Tim Green, Matt Miller and Anthony Munoz round out the roster of game analysts.

Terry Bradshaw, Howie Long and former Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson will man the studio for an hour-long pregame show and halftime reports.

Hill believes the inclusion of ex-athletes is important because "the only person who can really tell you what it's like, really talk about the pain, really talk about the pride, is someone who's been there."

While many of the faces will be familiar to fans used to CBS' coverage of the NFL, they can expect some changes designed to make viewers feel like part of the action. Fox plans to use more cameras than its predecessor and add new sound technology.

Hill has learned through his previous association with the World League of American Football, where the helmet cam was used, that there are many interesting technologies available. He doesn't discount anything as simply a gimmick.

"Anything that's within our power to bring the fan closer to the cold face of the game, I believe is in our back pocket to do."

Fox has committed to NFL coverage as its sole sports venture. It hopes to build on its appeal to the 18-34 age group.

"We're determined that the sports division can be a leader in Fox's history of the history of the world," Hill says.

CABLE OVERVIEW

Discovery explores the world of dreams

BY JOHN CROOK

While Alexander the Great was laying siege to the city of Tyre, he dreamed he was pursuing a satyr ("satyrus" in Greek). The horned creature taunted him, then finally capitulated and calmly took its place in the warrior's hand.

His seers and counselors told Alexander his dream contained a welcome message: Tyre ("Tyrus") will be yours ("sa"). Soon thereafter the city fell.

Such is "The Power of Dreams," according to a fascinating three-part series premiering Sunday, June 19, on The Discovery Channel. Sam Waterston ("I'll Fly Away") narrates the hour-long, back-to-back episodes, which feature an evocative musical score by Thomas Dolby.

The first (and most interesting) hour covers the two prevailing schools of dream theory. The more widely held and known is the premise that dreams may be the subconscious mind's way of speaking to the captive dreamer, revealing important ideas or solutions to problems.

The opposing viewpoint holds that dreams are nothing more than the brain's natural attempt to impose order on random images by arranging them into a "story" of sorts.

Whichever theory holds, the series suggests, no one can deny that dreams can provide a fertile ground for creativity. People in artistic professions seem to dream more often and more vividly than those in more rigidly structured lines of work. Singer-songwriter Billy Joel says flatly that all the music for his songs comes to him in dreams. Novelist William Styron is more pragmatic, saying he thinks most dreams are meaningless, but he credits one with inspiring "Sophie's Choice."

Also this week, "Sleepless in Seattle" stars Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan, Sunday on Showtime.

Sir Anthony Hopkins is saluted in a Disney Channel festival beginning Tuesday, June 21. Offerings include the Disney production of "Great Expectations" and the premiere of "The Efficiency Expert."

Is this "Wings" or "Frasier"? Among the USA Network's syndicated episodes of the former Kelsey Grammer makes an Emmy-winning guest appearance on Tuesday. On Thursday, June 23, Peri Gilpin (whose "Frasier" character was named after "Wings" producer Roz Doyle) also guest stars.

"A Phyllis George Special" includes an interview with President Bill Clinton, Wednesday, June 22, on The Nashville Network.

Cases Of Arson Decline During First Quarter

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has announced a reduction in arson offenses for the first quarter of 1994 in the state of Maryland.

According to data collected through the Uniform Crime Reporting Program, arson offenses decreased by approximately 1% during the first quarter of 1994 as compared with the same period last year. There were 517 arsons recorded between January through March of this year as compared with 524 such incidents for the first three months of 1993.

The most significant reduction in arson occurred in the Eastern Shore region, which consists of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Caroline, Talbot, Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties. In this region, arson dropped by approximately 18.4% during the quarter. There were 38 reported arsons in the region during the first three months of 1993 as compared with only 31 such incidents this year.

The Western region, consisting of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties, recorded a 2.9% decrease in arson offenses for the first quarter of 1994.

The Baltimore-Metropolitan region, consisting of Baltimore City, Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Harford and Howard counties, remained at relatively the same level for the number of arson offenses recorded between the first quarter of 1993 and this same period in 1994. There were 237 reported arsons during the first quarter of 1993 as compared with 239 such incidents this year.

The Washington-Metropolitan region, which includes the counties of Montgomery and Prince George's, also remained relatively constant between the first quarter of 1993 and 1994. There were 144 arsons recorded during the first three months of last year as compared with 146 documented cases during the first quarter of this year.

The Southern Maryland region, which includes Charles, St. Mary's and Calvert counties, showed a dramatic increase in overall arson between the first quarter of 1993 and the first quarter of 1994. Arson increased by 81.3% during this period, with 29 reported arson incidents for the first three months of this year and only 16 for this same period last year.

Gabriele is urging anyone with information regarding any arson fire in Maryland to contact the State-wide Arson Hotline at 1-800-492-7529. An arson tip reward of up to $5,000 may be provided to anyone supplying information on an arson crime which leads to an arrest or indictment of the person or persons responsible for committing the crime.

CHERRIES

America loves 'em

This summer make use of tart cherries in Power Bars and easy snack mixes. Enjoy fresh sweet cherries out of hand, one by one.

TART CHERRIES

This tangy, colorful fruit has been enjoyed for centuries by Roman conquerors, Chinese noblemen, early American settlers and today's food lovers. You know tart cherries best as the key ingredient in cherry pie and as a topping for cherry cheesecake, but tart cherries are more than dessert. They also are tasty when used in main courses, side dishes, salads and breads.

Tart cherries, which are sometimes called pie cherries or sour cherries, are seldom sold fresh

Canned and frozen tart cherries are available year round at supermarkets. Dried tart cherries are a new way to enjoy this succulent fruit. It takes about eight pounds of fresh tart cherries to make just one pound of dried cherries. They can be found at gourmet and specialty stores and selected supermarkets.

CHERRY SNACK MIX

Take this energy-packed treat on your next summer outing.

- 1 cup dried tart cherries
- 1/2 cup chopped dates
- 1/2 cup semisweet chocolate morsels
- 1/3 cup smoked almonds or honey roasted peanuts

In a medium bowl, combine dried cherries, dates, chocolate morsels and almonds, mix well. Store in a tightly covered container.

SWEET CHERRIES

Sweet, plump, juicy, cool, refreshing... simply irresistible. Fresh sweet cherries are a summer delight.

While there are many ways to use sweet cherries, most fresh sweet cherries are eaten out of hand as snacks.

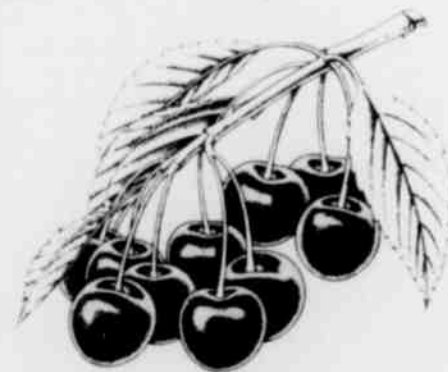

They are sold in the produce department, but only for a few months. Sweet cherries are one of the few fresh fruits that is still truly seasonal. U.S.-grown sweet cherries are available May through mid-August. Peak season is late June through early August.

Snacking

Fresh sweet cherries are at their best enjoyed one by one.

A bowl of fresh sweet cherries makes a refreshing, light dessert. Fresh sweet cherries are nutritious, delicious and only about 4 calories each.

Fun to eat, sweet cherries are perfectly bite-size. And, they are quick and easy to transport. Just rinse and put in a bag, bowl or cooler for picnics, beach parties, camping or bicycling.

Selecting and Keeping

Dark sweet cherries should be plump and shiny. Fruit should be well-colored with green stems.

Rainiers should be plump and shiny with green stems. Although slight markings may detract from the appearance, it is normal for this golden-skin variety and often indicates a very high sugar content.

Sweet cherries should be refrigerated, without rinsing, and will keep several days. The ideal storage temperature is 32 degrees Fahrenheit (0 degrees Celsius).

1-2-FREEZE!

Freeze sweet cherries to extend the season or to enjoy as a cool summer treat. It's easy.

1. Rinse and drain sweet cherries thoroughly.
2. Pack in freezer proof containers or plastic freezer bags.
3. Freeze!

Note: Frozen sweet cherries maintain their color and flavor for up to a year.

Enjoying Frozen Sweet Cherries

To enjoy frozen sweet cherries year round, simply remove them from the freezer and set out for 30 minutes or microwave for 45 seconds.

- Dip in chocolate for an easy, tasty snack or dessert.
- Bake a sweet cherry cobbler or top a cheesecake.
- Mix with pancake batter or use as a yummy topping.
- Make a sauce for ham, poultry, pork or beef.
- Top yogurt or ice cream for a special treat.
- Eat them one by one—refreshing!

POWER BARS

A great pick-me-up any time of day.

- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 cups old-fashioned or quick-cooking oats, uncooked
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1 can (21 ounce) cherry filling and topping
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract

In a mixing bowl, beat butter and brown sugar with an electric mixer until light and fluffy. Combine flour, oats and baking soda. Add to sugar mixture, mix on low speed until crumbly.

Spread two-thirds of the oat mixture into the bottom of an ungreased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Press down to make a firm layer.

Puree cherry filling with an electric blender or food processor. Pour pureed cherry filling into a medium saucepan. Combine granulated sugar and cornstarch, stir into cherry filling. Cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until mixture is thick and bubbly. Stir in almond extract. Pour cherry mixture over oat layer, spread evenly. Top with remaining oat mixture.

Bake in a preheated 325 degree oven 45 minutes, or until golden brown. Let cool before cutting into bars.
Makes 24 bars.

TANGY SPARKLER

Quench your summer thirst with this refreshing beverage.

- 1 quart cherry juice blend
- 2 cups red grapefruit juice
- 2 tablespoons grenadine syrup
- 2 cups lemon-lime carbonated beverage, chilled
- Maraschino cherries, for garnish

In a large pitcher, combine cherry juice blend, grapefruit juice and grenadine. Let chill. Just before serving, add lemon lime carbonated beverage. Serve over ice. Garnish with maraschino cherries.
Makes 8 (1 cup) servings.

CHERRIES 'N' CASHEWS

Only two ingredients needed for a spectacular snack!

- 1 cup dried tart cherries
- 1/2 cup lightly salted cashews

In a small bowl, combine cherries and cashews. Store in a tightly covered container.

Potomac Edison Checking Lines Via Helicopters

The Potomac Edison Company began inspections of power lines using helicopters this week to check vegetation conditions as part of the company's right-of-way maintenance program. The annual inspections are one way Potomac Edison works to ensure a safe and reliable source of electricity for its customers.

"Right-of-way maintenance is an important aspect of serving customers well," said Potomac Edison right-of-way maintenance technician Keith Martin.

"This year, Potomac Edison will spend nearly $11 million on vegetation management to ensure the reliability of our transmission and distribution systems. Aerial patrols provide us with the opportunity to observe the condition of each line and develop vegetation maintenance schedules."

"Customers should be aware that they may see helicopters flying just above the power lines and trees," Martin added. "With low-flying helicopters, our linemen and foresters are able to look at large sections of power lines in short periods of time."

According to Martin, aerial patrols of power lines are the first step in the company's comprehensive right-of-way maintenance program. Helicopters, flown by qualified pilots who are accompanied by a Potomac Edison lineman or forester, fly along power lines to identify potential problems. Following these inspections, power lines may also be checked from the ground to get a closer look at the condition of the right-of-way. Recommendations are then made concerning what action should be taken to maintain the area.

Trees located near rights-of-way may be trimmed or removed or an environmentally-safe selective herbicide, designed only to eliminate undesirable species of underbrush and tall-growing trees, may be sprayed under power lines by ground crews. Martin said it is important to keep the rights-of-way clear so that Potomac Edison linemen can have safe and easy access to power lines to make repairs, if needed.

Inspections of power lines by helicopter are completed in three phases each year. During the initial phase, which is completed early in the spring, a Potomac Edison lineman will scout by air all 34.5-kilovolt (KV) and larger transmission lines for hardware that may need repair or replacement following winter.

"When the first round of inspections are complete, a company forester will also examine power line rights-of-way from the air, not only for trees that may threaten lines, but also to check for brush that may need to be controlled and for soil erosion," Martin said.

A more comprehensive inspection of 69-KV and larger power lines is also completed each year. Inspectors thoroughly check each structure and conductor in the company's transmission system from an aerial platform attached to a helicopter. These inspections are done on a 10-year rotation for all power lines except the 500-KV lines, which are examined every two years.

"Potomac Edison's aggressive forestry program also includes activities designed with the protection of the environment in mind," Martin said. "Successful tree replacement programs have been conducted in 24 historical communities throughout Potomac Edison's service territory. Under the program, more than 1,500 undesirable or decaying trees, which may pose a safety hazard and which could interfere with power lines, have been replaced by healthy, low-growing trees."

At the company's Black Oak Substation in Allegany County, nearly 100 acres of agricultural land have been converted to timberland. More than 60,000 trees have been planted at the site, with thousands more planned for the future.

Famous Author Visits Students At Northern Middle

Several Northern Middle School language arts classes recently had the privilege of meeting award-winning author Will Hobbs.

Through arrangements made by L. Green and the Teacher Education Center, Mr. Hobbs spoke to classes of students who had read one or more of his novels. Pupils from Nancy Frank's classes under the instruction of Frostburg State University intern Jennifer Kordek, and Rebecca Brennenman's classes read Hobbs' novel Bearstone to prepare for his visit.

Because novels are an integral part of Northern Middle's Language Arts curriculum, a class set of novels was purchased by the Teacher Education Center, which will be used again with upcoming classes. Ms. Brennenman's sixth grade students purchased individual copies of Bearstone and had them each autographed by the author during his visit.

A slide show detailing the settings of several of his novels was a highlight of Hobbs' session. He shared pictures that he had taken of the Colorado landforms mentioned in Bearstone, and explained how he created his characters and developed the plots of not only Bearstone but also Bearance, Downriver, Changes in Latitudes, and The Big Wander. The author then gave students a sneak preview of the cover sketch for a novel not yet published.

During Hobbs' visit, students were able to ask numerous questions and were especially intrigued, as Hobbs recalled his experiences as a beginning author trying to get a transcript published. He encouraged student writers never to be afraid to revise writings or accept constructive criticism.

Will Hobbs' novels are geared toward upper elementary to high school readers, and deal with real life situations in real life settings. They have achieved

Frankford Corp. Merges Into Keystone, Inc.

Shareholders of Keystone Financial, Inc., Pennsylvania's seventh largest bank holding company, at their annual meeting June 7 approved the merger of Frankford Corporation, Horsham, Pa., into Keystone. The action also was approved by Frankford shareholders at a special meeting held on May 25.

Frankford is a bank holding company with $661 million in assets and 17 full-service community offices in Southeastern Pennsylvania. Shareholders of Frankford will receive 1,333 shares of Keystone common stock for each of the approximately 3,169,000 outstanding Frankford shares. The merger, subject to approval by regulatory agencies, is expected to be completed in the third quarter of 1994.

It was also reported that shareholders of American Savings Bank, Tamaqua, Pa., at a special meeting held in Pottsville Pa., also approved the merger into Keystone. Approval by Keystone shareholders was not required.

American Savings Bank, a chartered state savings bank, has $136 million in assets and operates eight community offices. Keystone will issue 0.69 share of its common stock for each American share, or an equivalent amount of cash. The stock issuance is limited to 60 percent of the total consideration. American Savings Bank has approximately 720,000 common shares outstanding. The transaction is also scheduled for completion during the third quarter of 1994, subject to regulatory approvals.

Among Keystone Financial's member banks is American Trust Bank, Cumberland.

Annual July 4 Art Exhibition Set In Accident

The Accident Cultural and Historical Society is sponsoring its fifth annual Accident Independence Day Art Show, July 3, 4 and 5, to be held in conjunction with other Accident July 4 celebrations.

The show has experienced constant positive community response and participation has grown from a few area exhibitors to countywide participation, according to Linda Bender, coordinator. It is sponsored in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Grants have also been received from Aid Association of Lutherans (AAL), the Board of County Commissioners, and donations from Beachy Lumber Company.

This year's committee plans to expand the show by creating more divisions to place the wide range of artwork received. "There is interest in expanding the professional category because of the potential educational value this may have for young people," Bender said.

Other plans include creating a division in which work may be shown as a public service, without awards. Subjects including design in industry could be emphasized, Bender noted.

The exhibit has been moved to Flowery Vale Senior Center with more exhibition space, and will be open to the public on July 3 from 1:30-5 p.m., and July 4-5 from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

The show is judged yearly by qualified practicing artists and is set up by volunteers. The use of the building is donated, and handicapped rest rooms are available.

The aim of the art show is to raise the level of art appreciation through participation. For this to occur, an atmosphere of encouragement and respect for all levels of achievement must be created, Bender noted.

The categories in this year's competition include: professional, adult, high school and beginning adult, children, grades 5-8, and children, grades 4 and under. Cash prizes will be awarded in each category, and all artwork must be original (no kits or paint by numbers). School children are encouraged to participate.

Artwork will be accepted at the Flowery Vale Senior Center on July 1, from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., and at The Art Garret in Oakland on June 29, from 11 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Artwork may be picked up following the exhibit at the senior center on July 7, between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Oakland's pick up date will be announced later.

For more information about the art exhibit, or for a list of divisions within each category, persons may call Bender at 746-8413, or Pauline Georg, 746-8134.

Bartlett Testifies On Congressional Reform Bill

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (MD-6) gave testimony Tuesday on his congressional reform legislation before the House Administration Committee at the invitation of the Committee.

The Congressman told the Committee, "Even though I am a co-sponsor of other reform bills, I do not think they fully meet the requirements of the American people in terms of what they expect with regard to the reform of this institution."

Bartlett's congressional reform bill, introduced May 18 of this year, contains the most comprehensive reform language of any legislation to date. HR 4444, "The Congressional Equity Act," essentially requires Congress to live under the same laws it passes for the rest of the country, including forcing Congress to live under whatever health care plan it forces on the nation, OSIA standards, and the same retirement system Congress voted for other government employees.

In his testimony, Bartlett said, "There is no such thing as a free lunch for the American people and there should not be a free lunch for members of Congress, either."

The bill also removes the remaining perks Congress has provided for itself at the expense of the taxpayers, including free reserved airport parking spots, free parking under the Congressional buildings and taxpayer-funded elevator operators when Congress is in session.

Middle School Students Take Trip To Florida

A group of middle school students recently participated in a field trip to Orlando, Florida. Chaperoning their fourth trip, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spiker took 26 seventh and eighth graders and two adults on a four-day learning adventure to MGM Studios, EPCOT Center, and Sea World.

The group left Pittsburgh May 26th and flew non-stop to Orlando. For many this was their first flying experience, according to Mrs. Spiker.

Upon arrival in Orlando, the travelers were escorted to Sonesta Villa, where they were housed in luxurious suites or villas surrounding their own private hot tub. That afternoon was spent at a swim party and the evening was topped off with a "rockin' and rollin' eating adventure" at the Hard Rock Cafe. Trip participants were chosen to lead Hard Rock's 400 diners in a swinging rendition of "Y.M.C.A." with group participants dancing on the tabletops.

Friday's lessons took the travelers to MGM Studios where they took a backstage tour, learning the basics of stage design and sound stage construction techniques. Julie Giotfelly, John Andrews, Daniel Sincell, and Karlo Gesner performed on stage, recreating sounds for a five-minute production starring

In the second row, same order, are: Sharon Compitello, Ashley Reese, John Andrews, Daniel Sincell, Robert Unger, Julie Giotfelly, Jeannine Meyers, and Rachel Farmer. In the back row, same order, are: Jeremiah Johnson, Stacy Lewis, Erin Wampler, Erin McClive, Andrew Harvey, Scott Elliott, Andrew Granke, Josh Teets, and Patrick McCauley. Below is Stacey Pennell, a Northern Middle School student who also went on the trip, as she receives a hug from "Wild Bill" at the rodeo round-up in Ft. Liberty, Fla. Other adult chaperones were Carl Spiker, Margaret Sowers, and Dawn Scheffel.

Martin Short and Chevy Chase. On a backdrop of New York City, students Andrew Harvey, Erin Wampler, Devon McClive, and Andi Bender created false images in perspective.

At the battleship site, Beau Gibson and Andrew Granke fought a naval attack and got wet defending their station. Later, in "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids," Scott Elliott saved Rachel Farmer while flying high on a huge bumble bee.

Friday evening was spent at Wild Bill's Ft. Liberty, a two-hour dinner theatre. Everyone participated in the new dance craze, line dancing, and watched spectacular stage performances by authentic Indian dancers, knife throwers, and juggling acts. Even Mr. and Mrs. Spiker were selected to perform on stage, with Mrs. Spiker shooting arrows at the blindfolded Mr. Spiker from a distance of about 30 yards. (She was assisted by an expert marksman.)

Back at the hotel, the evening was concluded with a late-night swim.

Saturday's adventure took the group to EPCOT Center, where classes were taught on-site by Boston University instructors through the countries of Norway, China, Morocco, Germany, and France. Following lunch in America, students were given free time to explore other countries and Future World exhibits and rides.

Several groups of students chose different dining spots, including the Teppanyaki Dining Room in Japan and the Rose and Crown in Britain. The laser light show and illuminations, a grand fireworks display, culminated the day.

The last day, Sunday, was spent at Sea World. As this was a non-teaching day, students traveled in groups, visiting a variety of pavilions, exhibits, and shows including the Shamu Stadium, Terrors of the Deep, and the Wild West Show on Skis.

Trip participants examined marine environments, were invited to feed dolphins, handle stingrays, and observe characteristics, habitats, and training techniques of marine animals.

Traveling directly from Sea World to the airport in the late afternoon, the group returned to Pittsburgh airport at 8:30 p.m. on May 29. Several students commented on their trip.

"This was truly a trip I will never forget. It went by too fast. I didn't want to come home," stated John Andrews.

"This is the most fun I've ever had. I know I learned a lot and I will never forget the Hard Rock Cafe; it was fantastic," said Andi Bender.

Andrew Harvey added, "I wish it wasn't over. I liked visiting Norway at EPCOT the best. Our guides from Boston University were great. You could tell they liked what they were doing." "These were the fastest four days of my life. I had the most fun and saw things I had never seen before."

We didn't sleep much, but we sure had fun," stated Stacey Pennell.

Mr. and Mrs. Spiker's Earth Shuttle participants will be attending a wrap-up and covered-dish dinner in the South Middle School cafeteria this evening at 6 p.m.

Seventh Annual Highland Fest Deemed Success

The Seventh Annual McHenry Highland Festival, held Saturday, June 4 at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry, was deemed a "huge success" by organizers, as over 2,000 persons attended the full day of entertainment and activities for the whole family.

Twenty-two Scottish Clan and Celtic Societies from throughout the eastern U.S. participated, as well as a wide array of entertainers, pipe bands, Celtic and Scottish vendors, and local food concessions.

Amateur Solo Piping Competitions sanctioned by the Eastern United States Pipe Band were held, and the Piper of the Day was Debbie Willis of Greensburg, Pa., who has won this honor for the fourth year. The seven Scottish Athletic Competitions were also held, and Athlete of the Day was John Paul Wright of Broad Run, Va. First-place winners of other events were: Kilted Mile, (Over 30 Category) -- first place, John Heycock, York Springs, Pa.; second place, Jim Miller, New Kensington, Pa.; (Under 30 Category) -- first place, Michael Shuey, Merryville, Pa.; second place, Arthur McClelland, Morgantown, W.Va. Ladies' Haggis Hurl -- first place, JoAnn Richardson; second place, Nancy McKenzie, Westminster; and third place, Valerie Murchison Messent, Frederick. Winners of the Bonnie Knees were: first place, Richard McClelland, Springfield, Va.; second place, Francis Packard, III, Baltimore; and third place, Linn Hamilton.

The festival was sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council and Bell Atlantic Maryland and funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council, Maryland State Arts Council. The Saturday evening ceilidh at the McHenry House at Wisp was co-hosted by the Wisp Golf & Ski Resort and the Festival Committee, and Sunday morning's Kirkin' O' the Tartans was hosted by St. John's Episcopal Church in Deer Park, with the Reverend William "Chip" Lee, Vicar, officiating.

Economist Reports On 1994 Dairy Situation And Outlook

PRODUCTION

Dairy production trends in 1994 include structural changes in numbers of dairy producers, feed quality and prices, and bovine somatotropin (bST). Expected lower milk prices probably will keep pressure on weaker producers. Milk cow numbers are expected to be more than one percent below a year earlier throughout 1994. However, the declines may lessen during the year as a more normal share of producers starts to expand.

Due to the sodden crops last year in the Midwest, dairy feed prices are expected to rise five to eight percent. In addition, significant amounts of poor forage and little top-quality forage will make feed management challenging.

The first bST product has been cleared by the Food and Drug Administration. Use of bST will boost the production of treated cows and can lower costs per hundredweight. However, a farmer stampede to buy bST is unlikely. Most farmers are aware that use of bST requires very careful management. The relatively low milk-feed price ratios will lessen the incentive to use bST. In addition, forage problems may hold back some farmers.

Milk per cow in 1994 is forecast to grow more than two percent, with considerably larger gains by late 1994. This would result in about a one percent rise in milk production for the year.

FARM AND RETAIL PRICES

Farmers received an average of $12.80 for their 1993 milk, down about three percent from 1992. Milk prices were below a year earlier during the first and third quarters and near a year earlier during the second and fourth quarters. Farm milk prices held up surprisingly well in light of the rising surplus of skim solids.

Farm milk prices in 1994 are projected to fall to the $12.00 vicinity, as the surplus of both milkfat and skim solids is expected to be sizable. However, extraordinary uncertainty about supply and demand conditions make accurate predictions difficult. Retail dairy prices for 1993 were close to year-earlier levels. The annual average was up less than one percent for dairy products, well behind price increases of all food or of all items. Retail dairy prices are projected to be about steady in 1994.

UTILIZATION

Bernice Koppie, Farm Editor

ucts was generally weak in 1993, as the erratic recovery in the economy was not reflected in dairy markets. Although retail dairy prices were relatively favorable, growth in cheese use has been considerably slower than normal, and fluid milk sales have fallen. Commercial use of most other products has been stagnant.

The aggregate commercial disappearance data were dominated by massive shifts in cream and skim milk markets. Butter sales in 1993 exceeded one billion pounds for the first time since the mid-sixties. Commercial disappearance rose 2.5 percent.

NAFTA

The U.S. dairy industry will benefit moderately from the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), because Mexico's population and income growth are projected to outpace its dairy production growth for many years. Dairy product exports will increase faster than without NAFTA.

Maryland Ag Land Values Increase

Maryland agricultural land values increased almost 14 percent from 1993 to 1994. In 1994 the average price of farm land in Maryland reached $2,866 per acre. The inflation-adjusted value for 1994, using 1982 as the base year was only $1,939 and showed an increase of almost 11 percent from 1993. The three percentage point difference between the nominal value and the inflation-adjusted value was caused by inflation. Crop-land rented for $60.80 per acre in Maryland for the 1994 crop season; up $5.40 per acre from the previous year. Pasture land rented for $32.40 for 1994 showing an increase of 90 cents per acre from 1993.

United States agricultural land values increased over six percent from 1993 to 1994 marking the seventh consecutive increase since 1987. In 1994 the average price of farm land in the United States reached $744 per acre, 24 percent above the most recent low of $599 in 1987 and 10 percent below the record high of $823 in 1982. The inflation-adjusted value for 1994, using 1982 as the base year was only $503 and showed an increase of almost four percent from 1993. The three percentage point difference between the nominal value and the inflation-adjusted value was caused by inflation. Recovery patterns among states and regions showed considerable variation. Strongest gains in values since 1987 occurred in the Northern Plains, Corn Belt, and Lake States. These predominantly agricultural regions had earlier realized the largest drops from the record high values of the early 1980's. In 1993 lower interest rates and a continued economic recovery stimulated demand for farmland for nonagricultural uses, particularly near urban centers.

New Program Developed For "Dairy Maids"

The Maryland Dairy Princess Committee has developed a new program in an attempt to interest younger girls in becoming Dairy Princesses. The younger girls would be called Dairy Maids, and would help and assist the Dairy Princess.

The girls must be at least 14 years of age, with the consent of a parent or guardian if under 18. They are required to be available throughout the year to assist the Dairy Princess.

They must maintain residency in Maryland, and be the daughter of one of the following: a dairy farmer, a dairy farm manager or herdsman, someone employed in a dairy related industry, or owner of dairy animals in a bonafide 4-H or FFA project. For more information or an application, those interested should contact Nancy Savage at 746-8174 after 6 p.m.

State Sees Low Moisture Levels

During the week ending June 12, rye and barley harvests were beginning and wheat harvest was approaching. Soybean planting was expected to be light until more small grain was harvested and more moisture becomes available. Some insect pressure was noted. Harvest of peas and strawberries continued. Melon and corn planting were nearly complete; vegetable planting was active. Crops in some areas were showing stress from low moisture levels.

Topsoil moisture rating averaged 50 percent very short, 46 percent short and four percent adequate, while subsoil moisture was rated eight percent very short, 60 percent short and 32 percent adequate. Conditions allowed an average of 6.7 days suitable for fieldwork, according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service.

Pasture feed averaged in mostly good condition, with haymaking active in excellent conditions. Small grains were rated in fair to good condition. Peaches were in poor to fair condition with a below average fruit set. Apples rated better, mostly fair, with average to above average fruit set.

the week ending June 13 was as follows, listing the item, this year's percentage, last year's percentage and a percentage for the 5-year average.

Planting progress: soybeans, 61, 51, 56; sorghum, 82, 53, 41. Small grains: wheat turning, 55, 38, 49; barley, turning, 90, 94, 92; harvested, 14, 6, 17; rye, turning, 50, 37, 58; oats, turning, 7, 5, 8; Alfalfa hay, second cutting, 7, 1, 5; other hay, second cutting, 2, 1, 2; strawberries harvested, 60, 66, 73.

WEATHER

Maryland weather for the week ending June 10 had above normal temperatures and light precipitation. Temperatures averaged 71.7 degrees, 2.6 degrees above the normal of 69.1 degrees for the June 4 to June 10 period. Minimum temperatures ranged from 39 degrees in Oakland to 59 at Patuxent, but generally in the high 40's and low 50's. Maximum temperatures ranged from 82 degrees at Oakland to 97 at Washington National, but generally in the 90's. Precipitation averaged only 0.14 inch, 0.76 inch below the normal of 0.90 inch. Precipitation ranged from none at many locations to 0.59 inch at Hancock and Wye Research Center. Regional rainfall averages were: western, 0.29; north central, 0.03; southern Maryland west of the Bay, 0.17; and Eastern Shore, 0.17 inch.

U.S. Ag Land About 1 Percent Foreign-Owned

Slightly more than one percent of privately owned U.S. agricultural land, or about 14.6 million acres, is owned by foreign interests, as of Dec. 31, 1993, according to USDA. This percentage has stayed about the same since 1981.

About 53 percent of the reported foreign holdings involves land actually owned by U.S. corporations. They are required by law to register their landholdings as foreign if as little as 10 percent of their stock is held by foreign investors.

Forestland accounts for 48 percent of all foreign-owned acreage; cropland, 17 percent; pasture and other agricultural land, 32 percent, and non-agricultural land, three percent. The largest foreign-owned acreage, mostly timberland, was reported in Maine.

Canadian investors own 23 percent of the foreign-held acreage, leading all countries. Japanese investors own only 3 percent. Investors from Canada, the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Switzerland, the Netherlands Antilles, and the Netherlands own 72 percent of the foreign total.

Conservation Credit Initiative Could Benefit Farm Land

As conservation reserve program contracts expire next year, farmers are wondering what will happen next. Will the land go back into production? How will the income from those rental contracts be replaced?

They also are curious about whether provisions of the reauthorized Clean Water Act will be mandatory or voluntary. Some wonder how to continue a conservation-oriented program that will provide the most conservation return for the money spent.

Given the tightness of the federal budget, it is not likely there will be any wholesale renewal of 10-year contracts, but some of that land will still need to be treated carefully to avoid losing some of the soil-building benefits that accrued while it was in the CRP.

In a survey conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation, farmers who were members of AFBF advisory committees that deal with commodities and natural resources issues were asked about their attitudes toward the potential for a conservation credit program and its relation to the CRP.

Responses to the survey were received from 77 members in 31 states. Nearly 80 percent said they would voluntarily adopt a total resource management plan that would meet local goals for soil erosion control, nutrient management and pesticide use, if doing so would reduce their property tax or significantly reduce their federal income tax.

Seventy-five percent of the respondents said the fairest way to implement a conservation credit program would be to provide a fixed rate of credit per cropland acre that could be applied to any local, state or federal tax on income or property or other obligation to the federal government.

By a margin of more than 3 to 1, those responding favored a combination of a conservation credit program with a CRP program that could still keep the most sensitive land out of production with a much lower funding level.

Respondents also favored allowing early conversion of CRP land to perennial crops that could be converted to renewable energy sources, or to another productive purpose that could replace the income from the expiring CRP payments.

About half the respondents thought a conservation credit on property tax would induce absentee landowners to participate in conservation practices.

Most of the producers said they have not had an opportunity to participate in a conservation equipment rental program. An expansion of such programs would lead to increased adoption of conservation techniques and further development and use of conservation equipment, suggested Jim Porterfield, AFBF land and water resources specialist.

Approximately $2 billion per year is now being spent for rental of land in the conservation reserve program, according to Porterfield. "If that expenditure could be shifted to an incentive program for conservation, it may be the most cost-effective way to obtain the proper balance in land use between clean water, wildlife preservation, open space and food production desired by the public and farmers," Porterfield said.

Current Farm Bureau policy supports tax credits to encourage farmers and ranchers to implement best management practices, continued enrollment of CRP land already in the program, future enrollment of only highly erodible and other environmentally sensitive land in the CRP and voluntary conversion of land to critical habitat reserve for protection of endangered species.

Two very successful programs have been carried out in Wisconsin, where credits against property taxes have been used to encourage voluntary efforts to control soil erosion. These programs provided enough incentive to enable Pepin County, Wis., to double the number of farms with conservation plans. Within two years, farmers helped to reduce county-wide cropland soil erosion by 72 percent. Also, their efforts resulted in increased retention and maintenance of conservation practices at a lower cost compared to more traditional conservation programs.

The encouraging results of these pilot programs suggest the feasibility of extending similar efforts to other locations. Guiding principles for such programs include keeping them voluntary; rewarding positive behavior; providing for annual renewal; having them directed locally; keeping participation simple, flexible and adaptable; involving federal, state and local agencies cooperatively; and allowing them to complement existing programs.

Maryland Milk Production Down

Maryland dairy farmers produced 1,404 million pounds of milk during 1993. Ten million pounds were used on the farms where it was produced with the vast majority of the milk marketed off the farm.

Milk was valued at $13.40 per hundredweight which brought in cash receipts of $186,796,000 for the year. Cash receipts were down seven percent from 1992. Lower milk production accounted for three percentage points of the reduced income; four percent of the reduction was from lower milk prices.

Proposal Could Harm Ag Programs Through Spending Cuts

If some members of the House have their way, federal programs—including agriculture programs—will be susceptible to immediate spending cuts without the direction of committees or the opportunity for public comment.

A bill (H.R. 3266) written by Reps. Robert Andrews (D-N.J.) and Bill Zeliff (R-N.H.), known as the A to Z spending cuts proposal, would allow any House member to subject any federal spending program to a budget-cutting amendment. If this measure reaches the House floor, members immediately would begin a 58-hour session, with all but two of the hours dedicated to spending-cut amendments, an hour at a time.

The A to Z proposal would allow members to offer amendments to reduce spending limits for program budgets from fiscal years 1994 to 1998. Lawmakers also could tinker with program authorizations and entitlement programs such as Medicare or Social Security. Tax expenditures, however, would be off-limits. Congressional purists view the proposal as unconventional for bypassing the committee hearing process and ignoring House rules requiring written reports and the opportunity for dissenting views to be filed. Proponents perceive it as an easy way to rid the government of unwanted policies.

One danger of this proposal is that established agricultural programs will be vulnerable to sudden funding cuts. Important agricultural research programs could easily be targeted for cuts. Agriculture already has taken substantial cuts in recent years, and Farm Bureau feels agricultural programs should not be laid out for more retrenchment.

The A to Z proposal has the backing of 230 co-sponsors and is currently moving through the discharge petition process. In order to see floor action under this unusual procedure, 218 representatives must sign the discharge petition to bring the bill directly to the floor without consideration by either the House Appropriations or Rules committees. As of press time, sponsors of the bill had not accumulated the necessary signatures for discharge.

The House Democratic leadership has taken up the fight against A to Z and its mandated 58 hours of floor debate. If passed, A to Z could command a special, marathon 10-day session. Alternatives to the A to Z bill have been discussed on Capitol Hill. One proposal by Rep. David Obey (D-Wis.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, would require at least one week's notice of proposed cuts and require that program cuts occur in the offering member's home district.

F.B. Pushing For Positive Ethanol Ruling

The Environmental Protection Agency is set to publish the final rule on the reformulated gasoline (RFG) program, and Farm Bureau is continuing to urge for a significant and immediate role for corn-based ethanol.

The final rule is expected by the end of this month. It is anticipated that EPA will require a two percent oxygenate blend for gasoline. EPA previously proposed that 30 percent of that oxygenate requirement come from renewable ethanol.

Nine U.S. cities with the worst clean air problems, along with other cities that have "opted-in" on the program, will be required to use the blended fuel in motor vehicles. Implementation is scheduled to begin on Jan. 1, 1995.

West Virginia 1994 Nitrogen Testing Offered

It's that time of year again. Warm weather has arrived and so has corn planting. Even though the weather has been inconsistent causing delays in planting for most farmers in Preston County, the Soil Conservation Service will offer free nitrogen testing once again this year.

Nitrogen is a vital nutrient to corn plants, which needs the greatest amount of nitrogen beginning 30 to 45 days after emergence.

This time frame is appropriate because Soil Conservation staff can extract soil samples from producers' fields, analyze the nitrogen present, and provide recommendations the next day. By side-dressing at this time, corn receives all the nitrogen it requires for the rest of the season without having excess in the soil which could affect water quality. The nitrogen soil test is taken when corn reaches a height of at least six inches but not taller than 18 inches. Recommendations are based on soil nitrate levels and realistic yield goals, which are based on soil capabilities and management. Realistic yield goals set by the producer can still be met or exceeded.

by implementing this program. As a result of the Corn Nitrogen Testing Program, environmental impact is reduced because nitrogen is utilized and not leached out of the soil.

In 1993, according to the evaluation of corn in Preston County, corn producers achieved 91 percent of their production goals. Average silage and grain yields were 15.8 tons acre and 127 bushels acre, respectively. Of the 32 farms participating in the program, 46,397 pounds of nitrogen fertilizer was prevented from entering nearby streams. As a result, approximately $11,135.21 was saved in fertilizer costs on the farms tested. The SCS hopes to test 1,500 acres or more during this year's growing season.

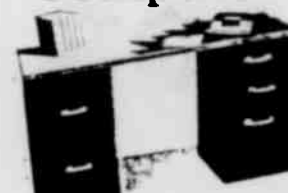

To inquire about the soil nitrogen test, those interested should contact Joe Hutton, NPS Environmental Specialist, WVSSCA, at 329-1922 or in care of the Soil Conservation Service, 300 Tunnelton St., Kingwood, WV 26537.

Fruit Damage

The extreme winter conditions and cool spring temperatures have taken its toll on fruit crops over the entire area. There are no stone fruits except for a few plums and sour cherries from central Maryland going west. Virginia, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania seem to be equally affected. We have also noted much damage to red raspberries and blackberries. Floricanes, which were not covered by snow, were severely damaged. Apple bloom in most areas appear to be erratic. In some cases trees of the same variety, in the same location, may have one with apple bloom and another with none. Local fruit this year is probably going to be scarce and expensive.

No Evidence Of A "New" Weak Calf Syndrome

A condition termed "weak calf syndrome" in beef calves was first described in the 1960's. Since then, causes have been suggested, including viral and bacterial agents, nutritional deficiencies, toxicities, and environmental conditions leading to stress. In retrospect, it appears that a deficiency in the dam's protein and energy intake, set the stage for the syndrome.

Last spring, cattle producers saw an increase in death losses of calves to a weak calf syndrome. There was an increase in calves being stillborn or calves born normally, but unable to stand and nurse resulting in death. Some calves were born normally, vigorous and nursing, but exhibiting signs of diarrhea, respiratory disease, or naval ill, resulting in death in the first three days of life. It appears that the 1993 spring outbreak of weak calf syndrome is consistent with the situation described in the 1960's. Poor forage production in 1992 led to limited feed supplies on beef operations. Bad weather induced early onset of the feeding period. Faced with small forage supplies and a prolonged feeding period, producers reduced the amounts of feed to cows. The result was cows in poor body condition as they entered the calving season. Calves from these cows were likely stressed because of weather conditions and suffered some degree of failure of passive transfer of antibodies from the dam. Failure of antibody transfer created the opportunity for infection with common disease organisms. These infections were responsible for diarrhea or signs of respiratory disease in calves. More attention to colostrum management would probably have had little effect in the outcome in such cases. (Information from the National Animal Health Monitoring System.)

What Do You Do If Yellow Nutsedge And Quackgrass Are In The Corn Field?

Unfortunately, if you have nutsedge combined with any other grass such as quackgrass, fall panicum, etc., your choices of herbicides are "slim." For the post-emergence nutsedge, your best selection would be Basagran. For the other grasses, I would suggest Accent or Beacon. However, Basagran cannot be mixed with Accent or Beacon. Split applications, approximately seven days apart, is necessary. From my past experience, the best control for yellow nutsedge is rotating to a hay crop.

Supplementary Health Care Bill Addresses Some Rural Concerns

The legislation includes grants for technical assistance and networks to encourage the cooperation of rural doctors and hospitals. Network members would be able to share expenses, develop telecommunications systems and hold down costs by utilizing local providers and facilities.

Roberts said the legislation would ensure that rural priorities get fair consideration when the limited federal health care pie is sliced. "Rural communities are ready and willing to develop solutions to their unique problems," Roberts said. "However, they need the proper tools. I don't believe that big sums of money or regulatory schemes represent the answer."

Farm Program Task Force Named

A farm program task force to guide Farm Bureau through its policy development process toward congressional enactment of 1995 farm program legislation has been named by American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner.

The task force, named last week during AFBF's June board meeting in Anchorage, Alaska, consists of nine board members. They will be assisted by state Farm Bureau staff and AFBF public policy and governmental relations staff.

"We need to consider all the options available," said Kleckner. "The next farm bill will have to comply with budget, environmental and trade agreement pressures. Agriculture is a favorite target of budget-cutters, but their aim is misdirected in light of the size of farm spending compared to total government outlays."

Kleckner charged the task force with pulling together all the ideas that have emerged in Farm Bureaus across the country with the objective of enhancing the policy development process this fall. Task force members include state Farm Bureau presidents: Keith Eckel, Pennsylvania; T.M. "Mort" Ewing, Georgia; Dave McClure, Montana; Harry Pearson, Indiana; Merlin Plagge, Iowa; William Sprague, Kentucky; Bob Stallman, Texas; and Charles Wille, New York. Kleckner will chair the group.

This year's policy development process would culminate with the establishment of national Farm Bureau policy at the AFBF annual meeting in January 1995. If the five-year legislation follows previous patterns, legislative activity will accelerate in early 1995 and new farm program legislation would be signed in December.

Dept. Of Agriculture Warns Of Sleeping Sickness In State's Horses

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that problems experienced with viral encephalomyelitis in horses, also known as sleeping sickness, are likely to occur this year, unless proper preventive measures are taken.

"I urge all persons to use repellents to protect themselves from mosquitoes, especially people who are outside a lot of the time such as farmers, fishermen, hunters and golfers. All horse owners should have their animals vaccinated both in the spring and again in August," said Riley.

"I am also pleased to report that the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Mosquito Control Section is actively conducting field spraying to kill mosquitoes in highly infested areas. Taken together, these measures can go along way to protect both our horses and our citizens," Riley said.

Viral encephalitis often occurs during the late summer and early fall, until the first few frosts. The encephalitis virus circulates in a bird-mosquito-bird cycle with viral "spill over" into horses and people. Although horses and people are victims of this viral disease, they are not involved in its spread. Captive wild birds, such as those found on game farms, are often affected with the eastern viral type.

There are three types of viral encephalitis that affect horses. They are eastern, western and Venezuelan. The eastern type predominates in the eastern United States with mortality reaching 85 to 90 percent in infected horses and 70 to 90 percent mortality in humans.

Farm Value Of Food Dollar Is Theme Of '94 Fair Kit

Did you know that the average farmer or rancher produces enough food and fiber for 128.7 people? Or that U.S. consumers spend only 11.2 percent on their disposable income on food?

If these facts are a surprise to you, just picture the "wheels turning" when your non-farm neighbors visit the fair this summer, where your Farm Bureau booth displays these and other farm facts.

The American Farm Bureau Federation's 1994 fair exhibit kit is the perfect centerpiece for any Farm Bureau exhibit. Each display includes a banner highlighting the theme, American Agriculture: Quality, Efficiency, Productivity; a four-color center panel and two side panels, titled "The Success Story..." and "...Starts on the Farm."

The top banner measure 54 inches wide by 12 inches deep. The center panel is 54 inches by 42 inches, and each side panel is 24 inches by 42 inches. All four pieces are printed on extra-heavy glossy paper using colorful, fade-resistant inks.

The kit is available at the same price as last year: $27.95 each, including postage, with a 10 percent discount for orders of 15 or more. State Farm Bureaus are encouraged to consolidate orders by various divisions and county Farm ground chuck, eggs, milk, cheese, cereal, cooking oil, shortening and mayonnaise.

Since AFBF began tracking market basket prices five years ago, aggregate prices have remained within a narrow range, from a low of $28.50 in the first quarter of 1989, to a high of $31.44 in the third quarter of 1990.

At $30.21, the latest report was $1.23 below that third-quarter 1990 receipt, but it did represent the highest market basket price reported since the third quarter of 1991 ($30.27).

More than 90 shoppers in 30 states participated in the latest survey, which was conducted in late May.

Items that carried slightly higher prices this quarter included sirloin tip roast, pork chops, bacon, whole fryers, apples, potatoes, flour and bread. Items that went down in price included

Students Attend Alcohol Drug Prevention Event

Prevention is the Key to a Healthy Future was the theme for the 10th Annual Prevention Conference, sponsored by the Maryland State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Administration. The two-day conference was held at the Baltimore Convention Center.

Students from both Northern and Southern middle and high schools attended the events. Their participation was made possible by funding provided through The Drug Free School Grant. This is the fourth year the grant has been able to provide students with the opportunity to attend the conference.

State Performance Tests Tested in Private Schools

State School Superintendent Nancy Grasmick has released the first part of a study of the Maryland School Performance Assessment Program to confirm the developmental appropriateness of the state assessments.

MSPAP tests are given in grades 3, 5 and 8 and cover reading, writing, language usage, mathematics, science, and social studies. The tests, first administered in May 1991, are part of a total school reform effort designed to stimulate, over a period of time, higher levels of instruction and student performance.

The study of the developmental appropriateness of the tests is being conducted to make sure that these tests -- intended to represent high levels of student achievement -- are appropriately demanding for the students tested. The administration of the tests in non-public schools is the first part of the study. Other elements will include administering the test in selected schools in Taiwan and Germany and analysis of the tests by developmental psychologists. Results of these elements are expected to be announced next fall.

Grasmick said the 1993 tests were administered for the first time to 844 students in non-public schools, which provided no test preparation for their students. The schools, which volunteered to participate on condition that their individual results not be reported, included some of Maryland's private independent schools with selective admissions as well as parochial schools with more open admissions policies. Fifty-six percent of the non-public third grade students scored at the satisfactory level in mathematics, 62 percent in science, and 61 percent in social studies. This performance contrasts with scores in the public schools, where fewer than a third of students attained satisfactory standards.

The non-public study provided an opportunity to examine the performance of a population that is typically expected to perform at higher levels. Strong performance by participating private schools, as well as by high performing public schools, indicates that highly able third, fifth, and eighth grade students found the tasks accessible and developmentally appropriate.

"The scores of these non-public school students demonstrate what we have been saying about these tests from the beginning -- that they are challenging, but not impossible," Dr. Grasmick said.

The MSPAP assessment tasks were developed by public school teachers, who made judgments about the appropriateness of the tasks based on their classroom experience. The study of the MSPAP was designed as a "test of the test" to confirm these teachers' judgment.

The State Superintendent said the results of the non-public school administration of the MSPAP validate the teachers' judgment.

"These tests are helping schools concentrate on higher levels of achievement," Dr. Grasmick said. "We will see the results of that kind of focus on school improvement as the gap between the performance of public school students and that of non-public school students closes over the next few years."

Investigation Generates Fuel Tax Assessments

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said his office has levied more than $300,000 in tax assessments against three oil and trucking companies in Maryland for failing to pay state motor fuel taxes on diesel fuel being used illegally.

"These assessments are the first results of an expanded statewide investigation we began last winter to monitor diesel fuel sales in Maryland and crack down on tax cheats," Goldstein said. "New federal regulations governing the use of high sulfur diesel fuel are being jointly enforced by the Comptroller's Office and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The results of the investigation are being shared with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) as well."

Federal officials from the EPA and the IRS are expected to impose civil penalties as well for environmental and federal tax violations.

The comptroller said enforcement agents observed the violators using high sulfur diesel fuel illegally in highway vehicles or selling it to other individuals who used it illegally. Enforcement agents took samples of the fuel from trucks at locations involved, had the samples analyzed at the comptroller's petroleum testing laboratory and issued subpoenas for fuel use records. Diesel fuel is now injected with dyes to denote sulfur content and tax exempt status under federal guidelines established by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Internal Revenue Service.

Diesel fuel that is dyed blue has a higher sulfur content and is intended for home heating and off-road use and is not to be used on highways. It is exempt from the federal excise tax on motor fuel and the Maryland motor fuel tax. Low sulfur diesel fuel dyed red for municipal government use is exempt from federal tax. Undyed, low sulfur diesel fuel is intended for highway use and remains taxable.

Violators who could not provide tax records for the fuel use were assessed the maximum tax allowed under Maryland law. Maryland's motor fuel tax on special fuels - 24 1/4 cents per gallon - levied on 40 gallons per day per vehicle. Untaxed sales were assessed for tax, penalties and interest. The assessments are subject to appeal by the companies.

"Our investigations are continuing. We are continuing to watch diesel fuel sellers and users to make sure that they comply with federal and state law," Mr. Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that motor fuel inspectors from his office collect fuel samples - including diesel - from all along the supply chain in Maryland and deliver the samples to his petroleum testing laboratory in Jessup where they are rigorously tested for quality standards.

In the recent assessment cases, lab chemists verified the high sulfur content of the diesel fuel and the presence of dye in samples taken from the vehicles under surveillance. Gasoline, kerosene, heating oil and other fuel products are also tested at the lab for quality specifications. Since the testing program began 20 years ago, the failure rate of substandard fuel has dropped from as high as 10% in 1974 to less than one percent in recent years.

"Clearly, the Maryland consumer has benefitted from a better product, thanks to our testing program. We want to make sure you get what you pay for," Goldstein said.

Legislation enacted in 1969 by the Maryland General Assembly first empowered the State Comptroller's Office to inspect fuel

Reporting Of HIV Infection Begins in State

The Maryland AIDS Administration has begun collecting data on individuals infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), according to Nelson J. Sabatini, secretary of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH). Under regulations issued by the secretary, laboratory reporting of HIV infection by unique patient identifier (UI) began June 1. Reporting by the use of a unique identifier is aimed at protecting the patient's anonymity, while providing the state with crucial information to better monitor the progress of HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Prior to June 1, only individuals meeting the AIDS case definition and those exhibiting symptoms of HIV were reported to the Health Department.

"Until now, we have had to rely on reports of cases of AIDS to see how the disease was spreading," said Sabatini. "Since it takes an average of 10 years for infection with HIV to develop into full-blown AIDS, we were getting a snapshot of what was happening 10 years ago. With this system, we hope to get more of a 'real time' view of what's going on."

This reporting system has been developed by the AIDS Administration, in consultation with selected groups and individuals, as directed by legislation passed in the 1993 session of the Maryland General Assembly.

The legislation requires medical laboratory directors to report specific information for all confirmed HIV positive tests and all CD4+ lymphocyte counts less than 200 cells/mm³ (cubic millimeter) to the local health department.

"The information we will learn from the reporting of HIV infection by unique identifier should help us to better target our HIV prevention and treatment efforts," said Kathleen I. Edwards, Ph.D., R.N., director of the AIDS Administration. "We hope to have more information on how quickly HIV is spreading into the community, and it may help us confirm that, in Maryland, HIV is more and more a risk among injecting drug users, as well as among heterosexuals."

The UI is a 12 digit number that should result in the same UI for an individual, regardless of who requests the laboratory examination or how often the laboratory request is completed, while preserving the individual's anonymity.

The UI consists of the last four digits of the patient's Social Security number (SSN), six digits representing the patient's date of birth, one digit representing the patient's racial or ethnic group, and one digit representing the patient's gender.

By state regulations, the health care practitioner constructing the UI must obtain the patient's permission before using part of his/her SSN. In an additional effort to maintain the patient's anonymity, this system will not be used at any state health department.

designated anonymous testing sites.

It is estimated that over 29,000 Marylanders are infected with HIV. There have been 8,547 cases of AIDS reported to the state health department through May 31. Since January 1, 227 cases of AIDS have been diagnosed and reported in Maryland.

Groves Will Not Seek Re-Election As Commissioner

Garrett County Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II (Republican, District I) has announced his decision not to seek re-election for an unprecedented fourth term on the Board of Garrett County Commissioners.

In a prepared statement, Groves said, "After much thoughtful consideration, I have decided not to seek re-election to another term on the board of county commissioners. Having served in this office for the past 12 years, I believe that the completion of my third consecutive term presents me with an appropriate time to make this major career decision and to pursue some other goals in life which are important to me and my family."

Groves expressed appreciation for his faithful friends and supporters who have contributed to his electoral success in the last three local elections, having first been elected in 1982. He also thanked his associates within county government during his tenure in office.

"Most of all, I will be eternally grateful to those good people of Garrett County who bestowed upon me the public trust and the great honor of serving them on the board of county commissioners for the past 12 years," he concluded.

Terra Alta Man Arrested On Drug Charges

A 19-year-old Terra Alta, W.Va., man was arrested last week after police officers reportedly observed him selling suspected marijuana in an Oakland store. Adam G. Tibbs was charged with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia, and was later charged with an additional possession violation in connection with an incident in May, according to a report at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Detective J. Murphy reported that the officer received information about a possible drug buy at the Napa Auto Parts Store in Oakland last Tuesday evening. The officer set up surveillance outside the establishment and stated that he and other police officers observed an individual enter the store and talk with Tibbs, who was already inside. The two

"AH, THIS IS THE LIFE!" says one refreshed boy to the other. These two guys - Robert and Ricky Johnson - know just what to do to beat the heat, as they lie "sardine style" in their portable pond. All Garrett Countians have been seeking similar relief in the past week as temperatures have reached record highs and unusual humidity has closed in. Out-of-towners still think it's the coolest place to be, but natives are complaining. Relief has come in the form of fairly good rain showers this week, and temperatures did indeed drop yesterday, as did the humidity. Summer is here, officially arriving Tuesday, and is scheduled to last several more months. Move over, Ricky and Robert.

GCC Board of Trustees Meets, Discusses Sexual Assault Policy

The Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening with Douglas Sites, acting chairman, conducting the meeting in the absence of Board Chairman Charles R. Bender.

CHAIRMAN'S REPORT
Rob Michael, chairman of the nominating committee, reported the members have a slate of officers to propose. Official action will be taken at the July meeting.

Dr. Stephen Herman, GCC president, noted he had recently attended a Maryland Association of Community Colleges (MACC) meeting. The topic of discussion was Prince George's Community College's desire to resign from the organization.

Herman noted all colleges represented at the meeting implored Prince George's board of trustees to reconsider its decision, which would be effective July 1. He noted that if the college doesn't return, the budget, which was adopted on a contingent basis, will not be increased, and the expenditures will be decreased, so that the dues for the individual remaining members will not rise in FY'95. For GCC, that amount is $400. In the event Prince George's does return to the MACC, the original budget will rise to the amount originally projected, he said, and will be determined by its trustees' decision. In either event, Herman noted, GCC will remain unaffected, regardless of what they decide.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT
Dr. Herman introduced Lonnie Brewster, professor of English at the college, who talked to the board about his department's restructuring of the language arts program.

Brewster noted he and his associates have met for the past two years with high school teachers in the county to help prepare students for the 21st century. He noted that according to a 1983 report titled, A Nation at Risk, 2 percent of the students are taking what are considered "core curriculum" in high school (four years of English, three of social studies, five of math, and two of foreign language). Even though more students are taking the core curriculum, many are coming to the college level unprepared, Brewster said.

He also noted that the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) and the International Reading Association (IRA) have vowed to continue develop-

Totally Tropic Setting Is Created For Garrett Lakes Arts Fest Gala

by Jenianne Stitt
Weekenders and vacationers will join local theater buffs and music lovers this weekend for the annual Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, which this year transformed the McHenry House into a tropic island, lush with foliage, flowers and exotic birds, for the "Totally Tropic" Gala.

Straw hats and sandals, bright colors and exotic prints will be the uniform for the party where guests will be greeted and presented favors by officers of the GLAF Board of Directors and the spouses of Benefit Committee members.

Over 70 tropical birds, the work of Garrett County students from both middle and high schools, will be used as a focal point of the decoration which has been coordinated to enhance the auction that makes the party traditionally one of the most successful charity fundraisers in Garrett County.

The committee for 1994 also includes Nancy Nemith, general chairperson, Charity Janssen, auction chairperson, Mary Warther and Chan Bell, co-chairs.

Red Cross Issues Emergency Appeal For Blood Donors

American Red Cross Services, Johnstown Region, has announced an emergency appeal for Oakland area donors of all blood types to give blood on Monday, June 27, at the Oakland Armory. An emergency bloodmobile will be at that location from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Johnstown Region serves donors, hospitals, and patients in 61 counties in Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia, and the Region's blood inventory has recently decreased to approximately half of minimum desired levels in O positive, O negative, A negative, and B negative. While the Red Cross has not asked hospitals to postpone elective surgeries, that remains an option if blood collections do not increase, according to Robert F. Kramer, M.D., chief medical officer of the Johnstown Region.

Kramer attributes the shortage to donor vacations, college breaks, and summertime activities combined with compounding inventory shortages.

THE MIGHTY FORCES OF NATURE were quite apparent last Thursday afternoon as a bolt of lightning struck the chimney of Dannon Road Elementary School, catapulting brick fragments out in all directions. Fortunately, students had been dismissed about an hour before the 1:40 p.m. blast. Teachers and staff members remained, however, and the strike was frighteningly loud for all inside. Bricks were forced through the roofing and broke through the skylights in the kitchen where employees were gathered to clean. Three windows in a classroom were also shattered by brick fragments. No one was injured, according to reports, and repairs have been initiated.

GLAF To Unveil Preliminary Plan For Art, Theater Center

A "multi-purpose art and community center" which would include a small theater for the performing arts has been proposed by the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, according to James Harvey, GLAF president. The initial idea was that of Ellie Delligatti and she and her husband Jim Delligatti have agreed to provide the initial seed money and two acres of land behind the Deep Creek Baptist Church to get the project started, Harvey said.

GLAF's Facilities Committee Chairman Fred Warther unveiled an artist's rendition of the tentatively named "Garrett Showcase" or "Garrett Festival Hall" at GLAF's recent board meeting, at which the concept was approved and further feasibility studies, programming, and business plans were authorized.

Warther stated that the facility would have three main sections as well as some meeting rooms and support facilities. The main sections could be used separately or as one large hall for events that would require more space. One side would house a "black box" theater to be designed by GLAF's theater consultant Ben Sincell. The theater would have moveable seating banks that would allow for several stage arrangements, such as theater-in-the-round, proscenium theater, or three-quarter-thrust. The area could also be used as part of the larger hall when needed.

The other side would be a large open hall which could be rented for shows, weddings, and other events. The middle section would be a large lobby with adjacent restrooms and other support facilities.

"We want to build a facility that will serve a variety of county needs on a year-round basis," Warther said. "We want to re-create good repertory or summer stock theater, similar to the old Blue Barn Playhouse, and have a place for our excellent Garrett Choral Society, community theater,

Lawn Tractor Is Reported Stolen From R.H. School

A John Deere lawn tractor worth $7,714 was reported stolen this week from a storage building on the property of Red House Elementary School, according to a report from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Also reported stolen was an Echo lawn trimmer worth $350.

School officials contacted the sheriff's office and told investigators that the suspects entered the building sometime between 7:15 p.m. on June 16 and 9 a.m. on June 17. Officers responded and noted that the culprits apparently forced entry by prying away the siding and removing studs. They also apparently cut a lock on the tractor's axle that was securing it to the building with a cable.

Pianists Kreider, Connell To Perform At Penn Alps

David Kreider and Michael Connell will perform piano and four handed piano works on Saturday, July 2, at 7 p.m. as a part of the continuing summer series, Music at Penn Alps. Tickets will be available at the door.

Kreider will perform several selections by Chopin and Debussy, and Connell will play a medley of tunes by Gershwin. The program also includes Ravel's Mother Goose Suite and three Hungarian Dances by Brahms, both for four hands.

Since 1981, Dr. Kreider has served as senior lecturer in piano at Western Maryland College. He is a graduate of the Peabody Conservatory, having earned a master's degree in music. He studied in Vienna and London as a Fulbright scholar in 1984 and earned a doctorate in music from the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C. His Carnegie Hall debut took place in 1986.

BRICK FRAGMENTS WERE EVERYWHERE after the chimney at Dennett Road Elementary School was struck by lightning last Thursday afternoon. The lightning carved a curving line in the chimney and sent pieces of brick as far away as to the porches of residences near the school. The blast was nearly deafening to those still inside the building, and was described as "bone-shaking" by one teacher. All were relieved that students had been sent home prior to the blast, and the last day of school was canceled for them as the school was deemed unsafe.

Another son, Louie (Rob Smith), a gangster, is also in the picture, as is daughter Gertrude (Sue Harkins) who has a nervous speech impediment. The play covers nearly a year in the lives of this family during the turmoil of war.

"days," Kramer stated, "regional hospitals have reported unexpected needs for blood transfusions because of ruptured aneurysms, open heart surgeries, and other health emergencies. Hospitals must have an adequate supply at all times."

To give blood, individuals must be at least age 17, weight at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. Persons can safely give blood every 56 days. One donor can help three or more people, Kramer said.

Red Cross officials did note that the last bloodmobile in Oakland was in operation fewer than 56 days ago, so all who gave blood at that time should not give at the emergency bloodmobile. However, several regular donors reportedly missed the most recent visit and are strongly urged to give on Monday. New donors are always welcome, the spokesperson said.

All donors should bring their Red Cross donor cards, driver's licenses, or other form of positive identification with them when they give blood.

Boating Regulations At Deep Creek Lake

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary Torrey C. Brown, M.C., announced the Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive, and Legislative Review (AJELR) has approved emergency action on reinstating Deep Creek Lake boating regulations retroactive to June 20. The emergency provisions of this regulation will be in effect until Dec. 3, Brown said.

This action ends a brief lapse in Deep Creek Lake boating regulations brought on earlier this year by a delay in the signing of a lease agreement between Pennsylvania Electric Co. (Penelec) and Maryland Department of Natural Resources, according to Brown. "With the busy boating season beginning, the enforceability of these regulations, which promote safety on the water and conservation, is imperative," he said.

Deep Creek Lake boaters are reminded of the following regulations:

- Personal watercraft (PWC) and hovercraft may not operate on the lake from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays until after the Labor Day holiday weekend.

- A person may not operate a vessel towing a skier, aquaplane or similar device within 100 feet of any bridge on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays until after the Labor Day weekend, between the same hours as listed above. A person may not operate a vessel at any time at a speed in excess of three knots within 100 feet of the shoreline, except when towing a skier from a dock or the shore, provided that the person immediately leaves the 100-foot area.

In Loving Memory of CLIFFORD FRIEND 1963 - 1981

Little did I know that afternoon
The sorrow the day would bring
God took you into heaven
To hear the angels sing
A million times I've missed you
A million times I've cried
If love could have saved you
You never would have died
Some may think you are forgotten
Though on earth you are no more
But in memory you still are with us
As you always were before

D-Day Marked With Ceremonies Throughout County

As the fiftieth anniversary of the Allied landings at Normandy on D-Day, June 6, 1944, was marked with ceremonies throughout the country, three special commemorative programs were presented in Garrett County at Northern and Southern high schools and at Garrett Community College in the evening.

Planned by the WWII Commemorative committee headed by Paul Shogren and John Grant, the programs consisted of color ceremonies, video and audio tape segments depicting the action and news broadcasts of 50 years ago, short presentations by Garrett County veterans of their experiences during the invasion, commentary by Dorothy Leighton of activities on the home front, and narration by John Grant.

During the evening program at the college, Col. Douglas Johnson of the Army War College in Carlisle, Pa., spoke on "Invasion Logistics," pointing out how it takes 90% of the personnel and other resources of any military unit to work behind the lines and support the other 10% in combat.

Local veterans of D-Day who participated were William Stemple, Eighth Air Force; Frederick Carroll, U.S. Navy; and Carl Haenftling, Walter Hanft, and Charles MacIntyre, U.S. Army. The county's three American Legion Posts (Oakland, Grantsville, and Accident) and the Deer Park VFW Post provided the color guards.

The family of H. Owen DeWitt would like to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the many acts of love and kindness during the loss of our brother and uncle.

A special thank you to the Rev. Sam Wachter and the ladies of the Hoyes community who prepared and served the meal. We are grateful to all our friends and neighbors who supported us in our time of sorrow.

May God bless all of you,
Sister, Mae Wilburn, Nieces and Nephews

LOCAL VETS SHARE D-DAY MEMORIES - Several programs were held throughout the county on June 6 to commemorate the events of that date 50 years ago on the shores of Normandy. D-Day activities held at both county high schools and Garrett Community College featured several veterans and civilians who told of their experiences during that turbulent time. See story. Pictured are some of the participants of the activities. Shown left to right are Frederick Carroll, Carl Haenftling, Dorothy Leighton, Walter Hanft, William Stemple, Charles MacIntyre, and John Grant.
